HOW THE YARROWDALE RAN BRITISH BLOCKADE AND TOOK 500 PRISONERS TO GERMANY

Last Installment of Capt. Andersen's Story Recounts the Experiences of the Thrilling Journey of the Raider Through Cordon of English Warships.

In the first installment of this story printed in the Post-Dispatch last Sunday Captain Andersen, whose ship was sunk by the German raider, Moewe, and on board which he was a prisoner, told of the destruction wrought by the scourge of commerce and described the sinking of the Voltaire and Georgic as well as many other ships. In this, the final installment, he relates his adventures on the voyage of the Yarrowdale to Germany, which successfully runs the British blockade and later tells of his experiences in the prison camp. This story is told for the first time.

By Captain A. Andersen.

Commander of the Norwegian Steamer Hallbjorg.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.

AGAIN, I take up my diary which I kept secretly and read what I wrote:

"The moment the torpedo from the raider hits the great Georgic amidships where the engines are located, an enormous column of water shoots up, and the ship shakes as if she had the palsy. The vibration causes all the ship's bells to begin ringing, and it sounds like chimes at home in the evening when they ring down the sun and the world seems at rest. It is as if these are mourning bells for the dead, both horses and men.

"All the panic-stricken men fished out of the sea in their night garments are now suffering terribly from the cold, as it takes some time before they are supplied with the necessary clothing. There is not much room left in the cargo hold by now, and there is little harmony among the great group of men of different temperaments and characters crowded in there." So much for the diary.

We Meet the Yarrowdale.

We met the Yarrowdale on Dec. 11 on her way from Philadelphia to Havre with a mixed cargo. It was a good ship—so good the Germans decided to keep her for themselves.

By this time we had 500 prisoners aboard the raider, and things had become very uncomfortable for us all because of the lack of room in the hold and the stifling air. The weather was mean and unfavorable for an attack, so the raider hung tenaciously to the Yarrowdale for two days, although the Englishman was all this time vainly trying to run away from his pursuer.

Finally the sea settled a little, and the commander of the Moewe sent 20 sailors and two officers aboard the Yarrowdale as a prize crew and she was forced to follow the raider. We now had two privateers in our fleet.

On Dec. 12 the two sea wolves met the Saint Theodore of London, out of Baltimore, laden with coal. The raider put a German crew aboard her also, and the St. Theodore was added to our fleet with the raider as the flagship.

The sea was now smooth, and the German Admiral of his privateer fleet, so easily collected, determined to make some shifts in the crews. Most of us prisoners were transferred to the Yarrowdale about 9 o'clock in the morning while all the firemen were sent to the latest captive. Both the Saint Theodore and the commerce raider then faded off the horizon and the Yarrowdale took a course not known to us prisoners, even though we were all seafaring men. The last thing we thought she would attempt to do was to reach Germany past the British blockade. This we decided privately.

The Yarrowdale's Commander.

The course of the ship was altered the next morning, and, when we were on deck, we were able to observe that some strange instruments attached to long wires were sw[illegible] overboard and were trailing be[illegible] the steamer in the sea. We also [illegible] they all led to the little cabin w[illegible] the navigating instruments [illegible] charts were kept.

We finally succeeded in ascertaining it was a new invention of the Germans—an undersea telegraph—by means of which orders could be received and given at a distance of 150 miles. This meant we were still in constant communciation with the raider and she with us. Anything suspicious could be reported at once and one sea rover go to the assistance of the other if necessary.

The name of the commander of the Yarrowdale was Bordewitz, and I have never, in all the years I have sailed the sea, seen or met so nervous and ruthless a man, but he was not alone severe and hard with the captives. He treated his own crew almost as badly, and he showed his temper at every opportunity. He even struck one of his officers in the face with his fist one day.

Bordewitz was a strong actor. Apparently, he never slept, and, from the first day he took over the command of the ship, I never saw him leave the bridge. Not a minute did he spend in his cabin, the strain of the responsibility seemed to be so heavy on him. His only rest appeared to be sitting in a chair once in a while, but even then, his eyes were only half closed.

Spent a Sad Christmas.

We celebrated Christmas with him in command—a sad Christmas for us, as I will show later. It was a strange Christmas, for we were up near Iceland and then we were skirting the Norwegian coast. At first we were steering northeast—this was on Christmas day—until we had almost reached the southern coast of Iceland. Several of us thought we could see land. It was very cold. Next we headed direct east with all our lights covered and not even showing running lights. Then we ran down the coast of Norway.

At the point of Trondhjem, we are only from eight to ten sea miles from land, and we hold this same distance as we steam south. About dinner time on Dec. 28 we pass the beacon south of Bergen, and at 10 o'clock in the morning of Dec. 29 we are abreast of Cape Lindenes in splendid weather. I cannot stand it any longer, so near is my native land. I can see it and actually breathe its air. I go up on the bridge where Commander Hordewitz always is and request permission to take one of the boats, so my crew and I can go ashore and home.

"No," he answered sharply. "You are to regard yourself and your crew as the rest (the Englishmen). You are prisoners."

I left the bridge at once, for he was in a terrific temper, as always, and having seen before of what he was capable, I did not know how he might treat me or my sailors. He cherished a hatred for Englishmen which was insane in its intensity, but surely this was no fault of ours.

Next we are crossing the Skagerak and coming down through Cattegat until we make out the coast of Denmark. We see the outline of the famous old castle of Kronberg, and later we can distinguish the little city of Hilsignore, which marks the entrance into Ore-sund, the narrow passage between Denmark and Sweden.

We pass between the Island of Hveen and Sweden on the afternoon of Dec. 30, where we cast anchor. Here a small German patrol boat meets us, and, after a little while we both move towards the Swedish coast, where we anchor for the night. We are committing a breach of international law by invading the territorial waters of Sweden, but that makes small matter to Bordewitz.

Attempt to Swim Ashore.

Our moving picture operator was now aboard the Yarrowdale, and some new and interesting material was added to the great German war film which had been chronicling the voyage so conscientiously on the night of Dec. 29 and 30.

It is a little after midnight when the watch is alarmed. Two young, strong British gunners from the crew of one of the armed English ships, captured and sunk, are attempting escape and have daringly jumped overboard and are swimming for shore.

In the next minute the water is brilliantly illuminated by the spraying of

'AMERICA'S PART IN IT DEPENDS ON HER MILITARY STRENGTH'

Frederic R. Coudert of New York, on Visit Here, Predicts Use of Submarines in War Will Be Curbed and Unity of English-Speaking and French Peoples Will Assure Power to Enforce Peace.

By CARLOS F. HURD.

THE re-establishment of international law will be the world's biggest task after the war, in the belief of Frederic R. Coudert, New York lawyer and authority on international law, who was in St. Louis Thursday.

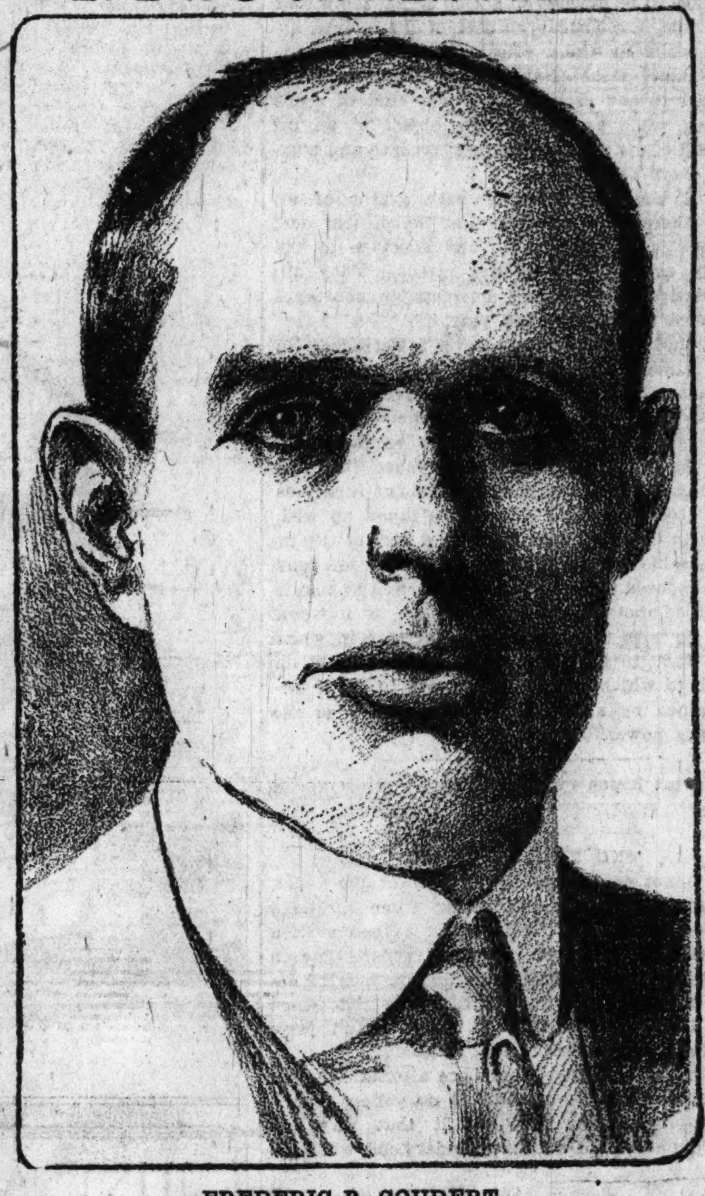
He also believes that the United States will have an important part in this work, if this country attains a military strength commensurate with its size and importance; and that if it fails to attain such military strength it will not cut much of a figure in questions of world importance.

Coudert came here with Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, and Frederick C. Walcott, to address two gatherings of business men, but was called back to New York by a telegram before the time for the first of his engagements.

At the Warwick Hotel Coudert told a Post-Dispatch reporter of a conversation which he had with Sir Edward Grey, British Foreign Minister, last October, and which, he believed, showed what the United States must do if it would have its proper weight in the future councils of the world.

"Sir Edward Gray said to me," Coudert related, "that he would never again enter a body like The Hague tribunal, to lay down rules for the arbitration of future disputes, or to place restrictions on the practices of war, with any nation which is not willing and able to back up such rules with armed force.

"If we, as a nation, can't have a systematic citizen soldiery commensurate in size with the power and importance of the country we may as well realize that we will have no voice in laying down the international law of the future.



FREDERIC R. COUDERT.

COUDERT'S STORY OF BETHMANN-HOLLWEG.

COUDERT quotes Jules Cambon, former French Ambassador to the United States, as authority for this story:

Six months before the war, Cambon was conferring with Minister von Bethmann-Hollweg, in Berlin, when Bethmann proposed to him that Germany and France should partition the Belgian Congo between them.

The Prussian statesman argued that it was not fitting for Belgium to have such large colonial possessions, when France and Germany needed additional colonies; and he proposed a plan of seizure and division.

M. Cambon replied that he would not even transmit such a nefarious proposal to his Government, and that if von Bethmann-Hollweg wished to submit such a scheme to the French Government, he would have to find some other vehicle.

"Oh, well," remarked Bethmann, "I was only making a private suggestion. If you repeat it, I shall deny it."

Allied Governments Now in a War to Enforce Peace

"In my belief," Coudert continued, "the world is not ripe for a general League of Peace. But America, France, Great Britain and a reorganized Russia could, should and would form a real and effective League of Peace.

"The allied Governments have really been a League to Enforce Peace. They have carried on, and are carrying on, a war against war. Now that the United States has joined them, it will be possible to form a permanent league, which will provide a sanction and a backing for international law.

"The difficulty about international law has been not so much that its terms were uncertain, but that there was no one behind it to enforce it.

"Germany felt strong enough to violate The Hague conventions. Everything done by Germany in Belgium was contrary to those conventions. They were just so many 'scraps of paper.' But now that the English-speaking people and France are a unit in support of the principles of international law, we may look forward to the time when the republic of Germany will join in adherence to the same principles.

"Whatever is written into the international law of the future, or omitted from it, we may be sure that there will be no recognition of the submarine, in the uses which Germany has made of it in this war. The primary principle of international law, in its application to war, is the protection of noncombatants. That principle is disregarded by Germany, which has tried to take the usages of war back to the days before the Roman empire. Germany, in her use of the submarine, has declared that the noncombatant has no right except to be slaughtered. Such a doctrine can never be sanctioned by a modern international tribunal.

Question Is Whether Law or Force Is to Govern World

"I have found, in visiting the West, that, while there is not the slightest sign of disloyalty, there is a tendency to ask this question—whether our entrance into the war was not brought about by difficult questions of international law, which it is difficult for the public to grasp.

"The answer to such a question is that we are fighting for the same cause for which Belgium has suffered—the cause of national right and independence.

"International law does figure in the matter, it is true, but it is not a question of some recondite doctrine. The question is whether the world is to be governed by law or by force. The question is not what law shall prevail, but whether any law is to survive. It is a question of the existence of all law, human and divine.

"When Prussian militarism, having developed the law of necessity, attacked Belgium, which was protected by the most sacred covenant the world has seen since the days of Moses, it struck a fundamental blow at everything for which the United States has stood since the Declaration of Independence.

"The Prussian disregard for law, and the workings of the doctrine of necessity, are shown in Germany's relations with the United States.

"It has used its embassies in a way hitherto unknown, making them the center for fermenting intrigue and carrying on practical war against our country. Our Government, after months of patience, had to expel Ambassador Dumba, for his offenses against lives and property of American citizens.

"The outrages on the high seas, the same in principle as the attack on Belgium, were followed finally by a blockade of our ships in New York harbor for two weeks.

"Minister Zimmermann sent our Government an insolent note, telling us we might send one ship a week, painted like a barber's pole, across the Atlantic. The answer to this, very properly, was the sailing of the St. Louis with her six-inch guns fore and aft.

Ambition for World Rule Has Been Drilled Into Germans

"The need of the present time is for the fullest co-operation with the great democracies, France, Great Britain and now Russia, which struck down Czarism because it was naturally kindred to Kaiserism, and because it betrayed the Russian people in their struggle against pan-Germanism and for the rights of small nations, particularly Servia.

"Our war, as the President has said, is not against the German people. It is against the little Prussian ring, which is an autocratic regime, a survival of a past age. The landholding noble has three votes to the ordinary elector's one. The German people have been forced to submit to this, and if they are freed it may have to be by pressure from without.

"This Prussian autocracy has imposed on the German people a system of force which has made it impossible for the other peoples of the world to live with them. Their philosophers and their authors taught the young men the philosophy of force, or pan-Germanism, as the philosophy which was to rule the world. A pastor of the Episcopal Church has told me that in his student days in a German university he heard lectures on the Monroe Doctrine, in which the lecturers said: 'The Monroe Doctrine is a theory cherished by Americans, which will last until the German fleet gets ready to put an end to it.'

"When, on Aug. 3, 1914, Belgium was brutally invaded, against all law save the law of necessity—the necessity of pan-Germanism—the whole structure of international law and treaties went by the board. I believed then, and I know now, that ultimately, and before the questions growing out of that hideous wrong could be settled, the United States, either alone or with the allies, either during the great war or after the great war, would have to engage in a death struggle. For, if the principles of Prussian militarism, that force made right, were to be allowed to destory that little people and the principles that underlay all the law of nations, then America would have to fight for its life.

"It is idle to talk international law after that crime. Our Department of State, with a patience that I have admired, though I have sometimes deplored it, kept up for long months a controversy with the German Foreign Office—at a time when thousands of women were being systematically deported into foul and hideous bondage. What a sad waste of time to talk about international law, with such a Government committing such crimes against humanity!

"And while talking with us of peace, this same Foreign Office was trying to organize Mexico and Japan into a conspiracy against us. We have known of Germany's desire for a place in the warm sun of South America, and the menace to this country was realized by our Government when it lately made haste to buy the Danish West Indies, and took steps to unite the Pan-American nations in support of the Monroe Doctrine.

"I find in some places in the West a feeling that Wall street and the munitions plants have had a part in getting this country into the war. I am glad I have no interest in munitions companies, for some of those I know are financially embarrassed at present, and most of them have found that they undertook more than they could handle. But at the present time they are a potent instrumentality for national defense.

"As for Wall street, if it brought about the declaration of war, it is entitled to more respect than we have ever felt for Wall street heretofore.

Coudert, in advocating universal compulsory military service, points to nearly every phase of the European war as upholding his position.

"Belgium relied on Germany's honor, and on international law," he said. "Switzerland relies on its 250,000 soldiers. And although the Germans could gain as great military advantage by getting through Switzerland as they did by getting through Belgium, Switzerland has not been invaded.

U. S. Must Build Army to Stand Behind Its Agreements

"The United States is now protected by the French army and the British fleet. If this country wishes to maintain its position among the nations, and enjoy peace in the future, it must make its international agreements good by a just and democratic system of manhood service.

"The French mobilization, which I witnessed, was a sublime uprising of a people who had voluntarily imposed manhood service requirements on themselves.

"It has been said that every man has two countries, France and his own. The great English philosopher, Lecky, spoke of France as the one country which had through purely disinterested and unselfish motives, unsheathed the sword and unstintingly given of its blood and of its treasure to aid a small and obscure people struggling 3000 miles away, because the principles and ideals of that people so appealed to the people of France that they were willing to put their own nation into bankruptcy and to go to the extent of an awful war for the purpose of aiding Washington and the English-speaking colonies to strike off the fetters of liberty imposed

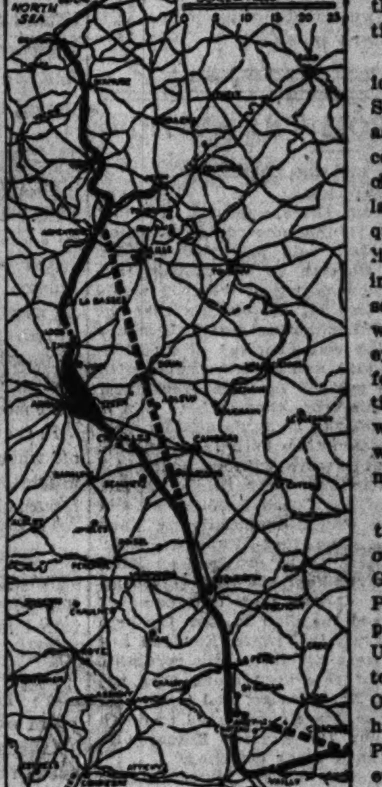
U. S. Must Send a Small Army to France Immediately to Hearten Allies, Says Simonds

Just as Important as Steel for France and Food for Britain, Observer Argues—America's Entrance Already Like Transfusion of Blood.

By Frank H. Simonds,

Noted observer who recently returned from the Western front, where he interviewed powerful military and civilian leaders of the allied cause.

"YOU will probably come into the war too late to train large bodies of troops for service in the trenches, but I feel sure that many volunteers could come and will come over and pass through our training camps. Why, there are already 30,000 Americans at the front in our armies now." This comment, made to me in the third week of February by the British Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, fairly expresses the view that prevailed in London at that moment of American military participation in the war.



Solid black line is western front before recent British advance. Black spot represents ground gained by British first half of week. Dotted line is that to which Germans are expected to withdraw.

It is interesting to recall now that there was not the slightest doubt in Lloyd George's mind at that time as to the entrance of America into the war. He was not only confident of it, but he spoke to Senator Hale and myself about it as an assured thing.

"I could not understand how you could endure this German policy so long," he said; "it is incredible—and now that they have prescribed that you shall send only one ship a week, and that ship marked like a Dutch paddle steamer—no—you cannot endure it."

Even more interesting was his comment about the feeling he had toward America as an ally. We were sitting in the big Cabinet room at the Prime Minister's official residence in Downing street, the room of which he remarked, rather whimsically, "You Americans should be interested in this room, because here American independence was made certain." He meant that the British policies here adopted provoked the Revolution. "When the time for peace comes," Lloyd George asserted, "I believe that America will have a useful role to play about the council board. I have always looked forward to American participation, and I believe that American influence will be a good thing, which, for myself, I shall welcome."

The comment of Sir William Robertson, the British chief of staff, was also instructive. Welcoming me as an American, he said with a twinkle in his eye: "Well, are you still too pround to fight? It looks to me as if you weren't quite as proud now as you were a little while ago."

Then, quite seriously, he discussed the American entrance. "You will have to come in; you can't avoid it," he said, expressing firm conviction; "and then your problem will be just what ours was. You have the best material in the world to make soldiers."

Then, quite suddenly, he said: "Do you know Henderson's 'Life of Stonewall Jackson?' Henderson discovered the Civil War for the British army. He was a teacher at the Staff College when Haig and I were there together. I think he must have known that some time we were to have the test that has come, and he saw in the Civil War the solution of our problem."

I asked the British General if he thought the war would go another year.

Germans Have Men and Munitions.

"I do not say it will; I do not say it won't; it may," he responded. But a moment later he extended this Scotch answer, by conceding that "the Germans have men enough. They have released enough by using enforced labor; as for munitions, they are piling them up, piling them up," and his hands went above his head. My impression was clear that Robertson believed the war would go through 1918, in any event.

I visited the British army three days after the break in relations with Germany, and everywhere I was greeted by the same question.

"What is America going to do?" Sir Douglas Haig asked, and from commander in chief down to the last subaltern the query was on all lips. It was more interesting to the soldiers than the war before their eyes, and I confess their conviction that America would "come in" was greater than mine.

As for France, the breaking off of relations with Germany was for Paris, ultimate proof that the United States was to enter the war. On the day this happened all Paris rose to the event as it had not risen to any incident in the war. "Paris sees American troops already coming down the Champs Elysees," Joseph Reinach, the famous statesman-journalist, said to me. And it was the fact. American flags began to appear besides those of the allies in Paris, and France celebrated, soberly but quite unmistakably, "the greatest event," as Reinach said, "since the German defeat at Verdun."

Moral Effect Surpassing.

Now that the United States is in the war, I confess that in the light of my own experiences of a few weeks ago I do not believe it is possible to exaggerate the moral effect. I remember that Jules Cambon, French Ambassador in Berlin at the moment the war began, and now in the French State Department, said to me: "All of Mr. Wilson's statements are splendid, save 'Peace without victory;' what can it mean? Surely France cannot accept that."

Today all this has passed. The fear that Mr. Wilson would apply a rallying point for the pacifists of France and of Great Britain, a basis for the groups that desire peace at any price and at the cost of national safety, is gone. Even if the summer campaign does not bring decisive victory, it will be hard to start a new peace agitation like that of last fall, because there will be no President Wilson to serve as the mouthpiece of such proposals.

Moral Effect Greatest.

Going back to my own impressions of what Europe expected of a belligerent United States, I should say this: In France and in England there was the desire to see the United States in the war, first because it was believed that our entrance would be the greatest moral victory for the allies, the greatest moral disaster for the Germans, that the war had seen since the Marne. With our entrance, French and British leaders agreed, all peace sentiment would be silenced in both countries, the hands of the Government would be strengthened, the people would be heartened and

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Austria and the Czechs.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In the Post-Dispatch there appeared a short press dispatch from Vienna, according to which Czech newspaperss vigorously protested against the introduction of German as the official language of Austria, the meaning of which I would like to elucidate. First, let me explain that the Czechs are the rightful inhabitants of Bohemia, a Slavonic nation, which was deprived of its independence in the year 1620, and has been ruled with an iron hand by its present masters ever since. The histor yof Bohemia from that date to this is one constant and unceasing struggle against Germanization, during which time both fair and foul means were tried but always without success!

There was a time in the early rule of Franz Joseph when some of the Czech leaders actually believed that justice would eventually be done them. In fact, at one time, that "Foxy Grandpa" of an Emperor promised to be crowned as King of Bohemia, but he never kept his word (the original scrap of paper). It was then that some of Czech leaders conceived the plan to look for help outside the state, mainly in France, England and Russia, where they were received most cordially. It was for activity of this kind alone that the Czech representative, Dr. Kramar, and three others who were with him, were condemned to death and later reprieved by the present Emperor to long sentences with hard labor attached.

During the present war a holy terror reigned in fair Bohemia; thousands were hanged, jailed or otherwise persecuted, but all to no avail. It is well known to the outside world that Slavs of Austria never sympathized with her war program, that being one reason why the Austrian Parliament was never called to deliberate on the war issues. When all means of cruel and tyrannical persecution failed to make Germans out of Czechs and water began to flow into their boots, they reversed their policy and tried to win the nation by appointing two Czech Ministers, Clam-Martine and Czernin (though in name only), but the nation now united, remembered the value of Austrian promises and positively declined to be bluffed. When all else failed, Emperor Charles himself tried to reconcile the nation by offering himself to be crowned as King of Bohemia. Even his overtures were firmly refused. That is the real reason why the order was put into effect and why new persecutions immediately began, but if they failed to Germanize Bohemia in 300 years they will ingloriously fail now.

Buttons for Rejected Recruits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

My son tendered himself the other evening for enlistment in Battery A, National Guard o Missouri, and was rejected because of deficient eyesight. He is but one of many other patriotic young men who are ready to serve their country, but have not been accepted for service for some similar manner. They must not be exposed to the reflection that they are "slackers." Uncle Sam should, I think, provide a button or some other device for their use, which will advertise that the holder has offered himself and is still ready to answer the call of his country. Such badges should be issued only by the public authorities, perhaps for a small cash payment, which all will be glad to contribute to the Red Cross.

A PROUD, IF INTERESTED, FATHER.

Justice for Ireland.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Kindly advise blundering England that if honest Col. Roosevelt had only the Irish Nation tramping to war with him the last battle for the rights of Humanly would soon be won.

The granting of Home Rule even at this late date would gain for old "Brittania" a store of the best ammunition in the world—enthusiasm.

The enemy's propoganda journals in this country have over-worked an offensive word to designate any expression of patriotic feeling that is not sentimentalism for the "World-State." But all the gibes in the dictionary cannot conceal the truth that enthusiasm is of our immortal spirit and the very wings of victory. And who has more of this great motive-power than the Celt?

Time to Tread Carefully.

From the Sioux City Tribune.

This is no time for fussy persons to be nosing around in a suspicious manner on the theory that, as American citizens, they may do as they please. Conditions now are abnormal and ordinary privileges are subject to restrictions.

Still Unchanged.

From the Toledo Blade.

Bulletin: The Ohio State Journal finds no change in human nature since the last preceding report.

A PATRIOTIC INVESTMENT.

Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the City National Bank of New York, is pessimistic over the question of floating the $5,000,000,000 loan Congress is about to authorize. Mr. Vanderlip doubts if it can be done in one lump and says that floating a loan of $2,000,000,000 will be a hard task, requiring all the energy and ingenuity of bankers.

Mr. Vanderlip is an authority on finance and his opinion is worthy of note. But his view is that of a banker and, doubtless, he regards the loan from the standpoint of an extraordinary financial transaction. Does he take into account the patriotic sentiment that is involved? Does he reckon with the spirit of the American people?

Supporting the Government in its effort to finance the war for a successful issue is a patriotic duty. It is as much a duty of citizenship to help carry out the Government financial plans as to engage in any branch of service. When the American people realize that not only the prestige, but the honor and safety, of the nation is involved in the success of this loan, will they not rally to the aid of the Government with as much zeal as they would respond to any other call of patriotic duty?

The bonds should be placed within reach of the humblest investor. Every postoffice should be turned into a loan office. Every citizen should be given an opportunity to invest as much as he can afford. It should be a popular loan in the fullest meaning of the word.

The American people, under these circumstances, may astonish Mr. Vanderlip. They may, and we believe they will, upset all the ordinary calculations of the financiers. They have done this in the past and they will do it again.

Members of the House of Representatives have no doubts as to the success of the loan. The unanimous vote by which the authorization bill passed the House expresses American sentiment and is a notice to the world of American determination to back the war to a finish.

PATRIOTISM IN DIXIE.

From Mississippi comes a story of a youth who quit his job in a saw mill and walked 19 miles to a recruiting station to join the navy. He forfeited the few days' pay due him and had no money. He was a satisfactory recruit except that he was under age and his father's consent was required. Someone gave him a dinner and he walked 19 miles back home, got the parent's approval and was at the recruiting station when it opened the next morning, having walked 57 miles in 24 hours.

In that same State many small towns took a day off when parties of from 10 to 20 departed for the nearest recruiting station to join their country's forces. Nor is Mississippi alone in this spirit.

All through the South the colleges are organizing their youths into companies and batteries and awaiting a call. The college authorities are offering diplomas to all upper class men if they are called into service. This is done in most cases without action of boards, the executive contenting himself by explaining the precedent established more than 50 years ago when a recruiting wave swept over the country.

Indeed, the stories that are coming from the South are very like those told of former days. It is the same from Virginia to Texas, the chief difference being the offers of negro recruits if local organizations are permitted. The most noticeable difference between the South and the North in spirit these days, is the almost entire lack of German influence in the South, where there are fewer Germans and no Germanism.

THE DRAFT IS NOT MILITARISM.

No single question in our scheme of national defense is of such vital importance as that now before Congress concerning the manner of raising armies.

There is a hesitancy to adopt the thoroughly democratic principle of universal military service with which to fight the Prussian military autocracy for fear that we ourselves will thereby become Prussianized. There is a feeling that we may build up a military caste in this country which, sooner or later, will embark us on ambitious enterprises inconsistent with our peace-loving traditions.

In discussions of this question, the fact is ordinarily lost sight of that there is an inherent and fundamental difference between Prussia and the United States in their conceptions of Government. The English-speaking peoples have learned through centuries of bitter experience—and it is reflected in our present timidity—that wherever the military arm of the Government becomes paramount to the civil arm, there the people lose their rights. It is therefore an article of faith with us that the military shall always be subordinate. Even in time of war our military is under the control of an impeachable and removable civil officer, the President.

In Prussia the reverse is true. It is the military arm, even in peace, that tolerates the civil, while during war, the civil arm is altogether extinguished, all power passing to the military under an irremovable and unaccountable ruler. This may be seen from the fact that the German Constitution provides for the establishment of martial law throughout the empire ipso facto, with the outbreak of war. All civil officers become immediately subject to the military.

In the United States nothing of the sort occurs, though the President may proclaim martial law in such places as the civil authorities are unable to preserve order and uphold the laws.

The Teutonic peoples have not yet learned this political lesson, as the English-speaking peoples have done, though they are undergoing the same bitter course today in the school of experience. It can not be doubted that in time they will learn, as Switzerland, one of the world's oldest democracies, has learned, to enjoy the benefits of national military discipline under a civil authority that remains supreme.

The people of the United States are conspicuously undisciplined, with a corresponding loss in their efficiency, in spite of their tremendous energy. Our liberty has led not infrequently to license. We do not submit readily to co-operation for the common good. Even if universal liability to military service were not needed as an urgent requirement of national defense, its benefits in promoting the orderly life of the nation alone would warrant its adoption.

In the present crisis the selective draft is an imperative necessity which overrules all other considerations. Fortunately, all other considerations favor it.

OUR IMPUDENT FOOD DICTATORS.

The quotation on the May wheat option passed the $2.40 mark in the St. Louis market. Cash wheat fluctuated around $2.60 for the higher grades. Cash corn was approximating the astounding price of $1.50 a bushel.

These artificial prices were forced in the face of nation-wide preparations for unprecedented increases in our production of foodstuffs. New acreages are to be devoted to spring wheat more than offsetting a reported prospect of diminished average yields in winter wheat acreages. A tremendous enlargement of the farm and garden areas devoted to the growing of every kind of crops having value as food is the object of an organized effort which is gaining strength and numbers every day.

With elevators bursting with grains of all sorts, there is no pretense that the present outrageous prices are due to any shortage in the supply available to existing needs. They are speculative prices, based on possible shortages predicted for later in the year.

But those shortages may never materialize. No such campaign as is now being made to promote agricultural activity can fail to give results on a vast scale. In a market controlled by natural influences, anticipation of those results would have caused a decline, not an advance, in prices.

The case of the consumer against the rapacious speculator is, we are told, to be taken up with vigor in Congress next week as a part of the indispensable war legislation. It is none too soon. We supposed that progressive extortion by unofficial food dictators had gone as far as it would dare go with the unjustifiable increase in wheat from $1.80 to $2. But we see that there is no length to which it lacks impudence to go, if unrestrained by an authority as summary as the military power.

"NO YELLOW THERE"

It is not often that the dignity of the bench condescends to the vernacular when a Judge wishes to make a telling point. When such a surprising thing does happen it usually goes a great way to show that even a Judge may be delightfully human. Such a case was that when His Honor, instructing a Texas grand jury, pointed to an American flag and said:

"Observe this flag—there are alternate stripes of red and white but there is no yellow there."

Coke would not have put it that way and Blackstone would not have understood what the Judge meant. But who would wish to be a disloyalist or a slacker whose case that grand jury might be called upon to investigate?

REFINING SQUIRE WEDDINGS.

Girls who giggle and chew gum while getting married will hereafter be at a disadvantage if they get married in Clayton. A Clayton Justice of the Peace who has married many gigglers and gum-chewers has started a campaign to discourage both practices. He will give a prize each month to the most charming bride married by him in the course of that month. And he announces that all gigglers and gum-chewers will be disqualified.

It is fitting that this movement should be started by a Justice of the Peace. Most of the giggling and gum chewing is done at justice-shop weddings. Matrimony is not a giggling matter, but when it is contracted with the aid of a marrying Justice it has none of the solemnity which should attend it and giggling and gum-chewing take its place.

The Clayton Justice might go a step further and make a rule that he will not perform a ceremony until the bride gets through giggling, and require her to stick her gum on the judicial furniture before making the responses.

Giggling at justice-shop weddings has this excuse, however: It is the giggler's last chance. There is not much to encourage giggling in the married life that follows some quick 'Squire weddings.

CANADA'S PART IN THE WAR.

Scraps of a conversation he had with a German officer captured by Canadians on Vimy Ridge are reported in this wise by a war correspondent with the British army:

> "What about America?" I asked. He shrugged his shoulders.
> "America can't send an army across the ocean," he said.
> At this statement, the Candian soldiers standing around laughed loudly and said:
> "Don't you fool yourself, old sport. We have come over to fight you and the Yanks will do the same."

When the Dominion has completed the full quota it set for itself, which will be in a few weeks now, it will have furnished half a million troops for service in the war. The enlistment of a like number from our continental population would give us an army of 7,000,000 men. The demand on our resources in equipping and maintaining so gigantic a force would proportionately be less than the demand on Canada in sending her half million, our per capita wealth being greater than that of Canada.

The Dominion had no military academy or standing army prior to the war. She maintained only a militia corresponding to that of our states and sharing its weaknesses. In the short cuts she took to military adequacy with her citizenship army there is much which we can study with profit—which our War Department officials doubtless have already studied with profit.

Inasmuch as one can buy at any news stand for one cent each all the pictures of the Eads Bridge anybody could want, it is not easy to understand why people photographing that structure should be arrested. We may possibly except attempt to make a flashlight of it at night, but otherwise it looks harmless enough.

MIGHT AND RIGHT.

AN Englishman has written a book entitled "Who Is Right in the War?". Why anyone should write a book trying to answer that rather beats one. Whoever wins the war was right. Is there any other means of deciding it? Let us suppose that the Germans win. Would there be anybody left to say they were wrong? Of course not. Might is right. It makes itself right. When the Germans went into Belgium they had no thought of losing the war and having to answer for that crime. Might was to make it right. It is exactly so with the submarine. The submarine is only wrong by failing to dispose of those who say it is wrong. If it destroys or conquers those people, it is right. That is, it is right so far as we shall be able to do anything about it—a new principle of war will have been established—and Germany will have gotten away with it. If that is what the book says, it is a good book—but why take so long to say it?

"What do you suppose the Kaiser said when he heard that Bolivia had joined the allies?"

"O, I suppose he simply used the historic exclamation 'Let her go, Bolivar!'"

Mr. Vanderlip says seven billion dollars is beyond the average man's conception. We admit that, but we resent having him say it as if he had it about him somewhere.

However, it wouldn't hurt any if a few bridge games were blown up in this somewhat fat and idle land.

BEAUTY CULTURE.

SPRING.—Ankles cannot be reduced as quickly as other parts of the body, so it is well not to let them spread too much or take on too great a degree of flesh. Low shoes enlarge ankles and high boots keep them trim—especially laced boots—but the bulk of mere flesh may be lessened considerably by wearing wet compresses bound tightly and covered with rubber. This brings on the profuse perspiration needed for reduction and if the bandages are worn about the house for two mornings a week great improvement will follow. Massage the skin with camphorated oil before putting them on and do the whole thing after a warm ankle bath. Bone cannot be reduced. Every exercise upon the feet improves their condition and adds to their beauty as well. So if the feet are properly shod dancing, walking, running and every sport that can be taken afoot increases the foot's prettiness and at the same time keeps the leg in shape. Indeed, it is largely the want of use, staying in the house and sitting or lolling around, instead of moving about, that causes feet and ankles to grow bulky. The circulation grows stagnant, so that the least effort causes a swelling and, with time, this cannot fail to increase size.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MILLER.—Great Britain during the Russian-Japanese War did not issue request that her subjects should not travel on the high seas, in a prescribed zone.

RUTEN.—No stamped envelope was inclosed. Anyhow, it is impossible to answer by mail, as we have no information bureau. To protect clippings you might coat them with a much-diluted white shellac.

WEBSTER GROVES.—If the title to the real estate is in wife's name, her husband, in event of sale, must sign the deed with her. If wife signs notes to secure debts of husband she is liable thereon.

X. Y. Z.—You are merely self-conscious. Don't think of yourself again for 3 months and you will be improved. Think of anything—everything—but self. As you grow older you will change and be natural. Don't think about it any more. Get very busy.

K. C. M.—To reduce abdomen, keep chest thrown out; throw hands above head with palms outward, arms extended and body thrown back as much as possible, then bend forward at the waist, keeping the knees straight, and try to touch the floor with the fingers. Cut out sugar, milk, butter and starchy foods. Get a fruit habit.

F. C. M.—To silver brass, bronze, copper, etc.: Dissolve 10 parts lunar caustic in 500 parts distilled water and 25 parts potassium cyanide (98 per cent), in 500 parts distilled water; mix both solutions with stirring, heat to 176 to 194 degrees F. in enameled vessel and enter the articles, well cleansed of fat and impurities, until a uniform coating has formed.—Henley's Recipes and Formulas.

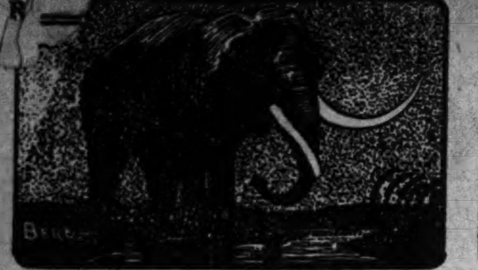
G. E. A.—Some teeth are of a yellowish tinge naturally and no amount of care can make them a glistening white; they can, however, be made a better color by constant brushing with a whitening powder and by occasionally bleaching by a dentist who understands his business. Chewing a twig of althea bush is said to whitten the teeth, but care must be taken that the pulp is not swallowed. Rubbing the surface occasionally with the inside of a lemon rind is also whitening, nor is it as much of an acid as is usually considered. The practice of using peroxide of hydrogen on the teeth as a bleach should not be indulged in without the advice of your dentist. (Constant brushing may endanger the enamel.)

G. G.—An acre contains 160 square rods. To make the acre square, the land would be arranged so that each side of the area would be equal in length to the other 3 sides. A square acre might be arranged, however, by putting all the square rods side by side, when the area would be 160 rods long and 1 rod wide. Or it could be made 320 rods long and half a rod wide. While an acre square and a square acre are the same in area, 2 acres square contain twice as much land as 2 square acres. You can understand this easily if you will draw a figure a foot square. Connect the opposite sides by straight lines an inch apart. Count the little squares thus made and you will find they number 144. 144 square inches arranged in any method make a square foot, although not necessarily a figure a foot in every boundary. If you do the same by a figure 2 feet square you will find you have made 576 square inches or 4 square feet.

H. G.—See "Butterflies" volume, in Holland's Nature Library, for capture, preparation and preservation of insect specimens. Our space is inadequate to give you satisfactorily the information you ask. The book is in public libraries, or may be had through book stores. Miss Mabel Adams Ayer of San Francisco has succeeded in training a number of butterflies. Sugar and water are the inducements and the little winged pets go through quite a few performances. Largest butterflies in the world, Ornithoptera Alexandrae, discovered in British New Guinea, are worth [illegible] apiece. The male measures eight inches across the wings; the female 11 inches. The species was discovered by a naturalist, who saw one high up in a tree and shot it. From the fragments that remained he decided that the butterfly was of an unknown species. Another expedition was organised, and specimens were secured. The large majority of butterflies and moths are beneficial. Without them we would have no honey and very few flower seeds, as their beneficent work alone makes both possible. According to the French scientific review Cosmos two French biologists have produced butterflies without heads. They carefully removed the heads of a number of larvae and most of them survived the operation, continuing to develop into the pupa stage, but only some few underwent the last change and emerged as normal butterflies—minus the head.

E. H. B.—Tissue-building foods (containing most protein): Peanuts, beans, peas, meats, fresh fish. The principal food element furnished by eggs is protein, the nitrogeneous tissue-building element whose presence in considerable portions also gives meats, fish, milk, cheese, etc., their special food value. Eggs can, therefore, be substituted in the diet for the latter foods without materially altering the proportion of protein consumed. In addition to protein eggs also furnish fat and a number of valuable mineral elements, including sulphur, phosphorus, iron, calcium and magnesium, in an easily assimilable form, and are believed also to be rich in certain essential vitalizing elements called vitamins. For constipation a physician has given this advice: Drink three quarts of distilled water daily to keep the stomach active and help clean out the intestines. Fruits, fruit juices, vegetables and outdoor exercise are helpful. A wineglassful of olive oil may be taken half an hour after meals. Eat plenty of spinach, carrots, kale, lettuce and all green vegetables, also oranges, apples and figs. Neglectful habits and lack of proper attention are greatly concerned. Take [illegible] grains of calcined magnesia in a little water before meals. Eating bran has helped many. Dr. Christian, food specialist, says: The principles involved in the treatment of constipation are: (1) Exercise. (2) Copious water drinking. (3) Coarse, plain food. (4) Light eating. (5) Omission of stimulants. (6) Omission of meat and milk.



The IVORY CHILD

By H. Rider Haggard

"BAAS," he puffed, "I have been paying the Black Kendah a visit. I crept down between their stupid outposts, who are as blind in the dark as a bat in daylight, hoping to find Jana and put a bullet in his leg or trunk. I didn't find him, Baas, although I heard him. But one of their captains stood up in front of a watchfire, giving a good shot. My bullet found him, Baas, for he tumbled back into the fire, making the sparks fly this way and that. Then I ran and, as you see, got here quite safely."

"Why did you play that fool's trick?" I asked, "seeing that it ought to have cost you your life."

"I shall die just when I have to die, not before, Baas," he replied in the intervals of reloading the little rifle. "Also, it was the trick of a wise man, not of a fool, seeing that it has made the Black Kendah think that we were attacking them and caused them to hurry on to attack us in the dark, over ground that they do not know. Listen to them coming!"

As he spoke a roar of sound told us that the great charge had swept round a turn there was in the pass and was heading toward us up the straight. Ivory horns brayed, captains shouted orders, the very mountain shook beneath the beating of thousands of feet of men and horses, while in one great yell that echoed from the cliffs and forest went up the battle cry of "Jana! Jana!"—a mixed tumult of noise which contrasted very strangely with the utter silence in our ranks.

"They will be among the pitfalls presently," sniggered Hans, shifting his weight nervously from one leg on to the other. "Hark! they are going into them."

It was true. Screams of fear and pain told me that the front ranks had begun to fall, horse and foot, together, into the cunningly devised snares of which, with so much labor, we had dug many, concealing them with earth spread over thin wickerwork, or rather interlaced boughs. Into them went the forerunners to be pierced by the sharp fire-sharpened stakes set at the bottom of each pit. Vainly did those who were near enough to understand their danger call to the ranks behind to stop. They could not or would not comprehend, and had no room to extend their front. Forward surged the human torrent, thrusting all in front of it to death by wounds or suffocation in those deadly holes, till one by one they were filled level with the ground by struggling men and horses, over whom the army still rushed on.

How many perished there I do not know, but after the battle was over we found scarcely a pit that was not crowded to the brim with dead.

Still the enemy surged on, since the pits were only large enough to hold a tithe of them, till at length horsemen and footmen mixed up together in inextricable confusion, their mighty mass became faintly visible quite close to us, a blacker blot upon the gloom.

Then my turn came. When they were not more than 50 yards away from the first wall, I shouted an order to the riflemen to fire, aiming low, and set the example by loosing both barrels of an elephant gun at the thickest of the mob. At that distance even the most inexperienced shots could not miss such a mark, especially as those bullets which went high struck among the oncoming troops behind, or caught the horsemen lifted above their fellows. Indeed, of the first few rounds I do not think that one was wasted, while often single balls killed or injured several men.

The result was instantaneous. The Black Kendah, who, be it remembered, were totally unaccustomed to the effects of rifle fire and imagined that we only possessed two or three guns in all, stopped their advance as though paralyzed. For a few seconds there was silence, except for the intermittent crackle of the rifles as my men loaded and fired. Next came the cries of the smitten men and horses that were falling everywhere and then—the unmistakable sound of a stampede.

"They have gone. That was too warm for them, Baas," chuckled Hans exultingly.

"Yes," I answered, when I had at length succeeded in stopping the firing, "but I expect they will come back with the light. Still, that little trick of yours has cost them dear, Hans."

We took count and found that up to this moment we had not lost a single man, one only having been slightly wounded by a thrown spear. As is common among semi-savages, this fact filled the White Kendah with an undue exaltation. Thinking that as the beginning was so the end must be, they cheered and shouted, shaking each other's hand, then fell to eating the food which the women brought them with appetite, chattering incessantly, although as a general rule they were a very silent people. Even the grave Harut, who arrived full of congratulations, seemed as high-spirited as a boy, till I reminded him that the real battle had not yet commenced.

About a quarter of an hour later two spies that we had set upon the top of the precipitous cliffs, whence they had a good view of the pass beyond the bend, came scrambling down the rocks like monkeys, by a route that was known to them. These boys, for they were no more, reported that the Black Kendah were reforming their army beyond the bend of the pass, and that the cavalry were dismounting and sending their horses to the rear, evidently because they found them useless in such a place. A little later solitary men appeared from behind the bend, carrying bundles of long sticks to each of which was attached a piece of white cloth, a proceeding that excited my curiosity.

Soon its object became apparent. Swiftly these men, of whom in the end there may have been 30 or 40, ran to and fro, testing the ground with spears in search for pitfalls. I think they only found a very few that had not been broken into, but in front of these and also of those that were already full of men and horses they set up the flags as a warning that they should be avoided in the advance. Also they removed a number of their wounded.

We had great difficulty in restraining the White Kandah from rushing out to attack them, which, of course, would only have led us into a trap in our turn, since they would have fled and conducted their pursuers into the arms of the enemy. Nor would I allow my riflemen to fire, as the result must have been many misses and a great waste of ammunition, which ere long would be badly needed. I, however, did shoot two or three, then gave it up as the remainder took no notice whatever.

When they had thoroughly explored the ground they retired until, a little later, the Black Kendah army began to appear, marching in serried regiments and excellent order round the bend, till perhaps eight or ten thousand of them were visible, a very fierce and awe-inspiring impi. Their front ranks halted between three and four hundred yards away, which I thought farther off than it was advisable to open fire on them with Snider rifles, held by unskilled troops. Then came a pause, which at length was broken by the blowing of horns and a sound of exultant shouting beyond the turn of the pass.

Now, from round this turn appeared the strangest sight that I think my eyes had ever seen. Yes, there came the huge elephant, Jana, at a slow, shambling trot. On his back and head were two men in whom, with my glasses, I recognized the lame priest whom I already knew too well and Simba, King of the Black Kendah, himself, gorgeously appareled and waving a long spear, seated in a kind of wooden chair. Round the brute's neck were a number of bright metal chains, 12 in all, and each of these chains was held by a spearman who ran alongside, six on one side and six on the other. Lastly, ingeniously fastened to the end of his trunk, were three other chains, to which were attached spiked knobs of metal.

On he came, as docilely as any Indian elephant used for carrying teak logs, passing through the center of the host, up a wide lane which had been left, I suppose, for his convenience, and intelligently avoiding the pitfalls filled with dead. I thought that he would stop among the first ranks. But not so. Slackening his pace to a walk, he marched forward towards our fortifications. Now, of course, I saw my chance and made sure that my double-barreled elephant rifle was ready and that Hans held a second rifle, also double-barreled and of similar caliber, full cocked, in such a position that I could snatch it from him in a moment.

"I am going to kill that elephant," I said. "Let no one else fire. Stand still and you shall see the god Jana die."

Still the enormous beast floundered forward; up to that moment I had never realized how truly huge it was, not even when it stood over me in the moonlight about to crush me with its foot. Of this I am sure, that none to equal it ever lived in Africa, at least in any times of which I have knowledge.

"Fire, Baas," whispered Haas; "it is near enough."

But, like the Frenchman and the cock pheasant, I determined to wait until it stopped, wishing to finish it with a single ball, if only for the prestige of the thing.

At length it did stop and, opening its cavern of a mouth, lifted up its great trunk and trumpeted, while Simba, standing up in his chair, began to shout out some command to us to surrender to the god Jana, "the invincible, the invulnerable."

"I will show you if you are invulnerable my boy," said I to myself, glancing round to make sure Hans had the second rifle ready and catching sight of Ragnall and Harut and all the White Kendah standing up in their trenches, brathlessly awaiting the end, as were the Black Kendah a few hundred yards away. Never could there have been a fairer shot and one more certain to result in a fatal wound. The brute's head was up and its mouth was open. All I had to do was to send a hard-tipped bullet crashing through the palate to the brain behind. It was so easy that I would have made a bet that I could have finished him with one hand tied behind me.

I lifted the heavy rifle. I got the sights dead on to a certain spot at the back of that red cave. I pressed the trigger; the charge boomed—and nothing happened! I heard no bullet strike and Jana did not even take the trouble to close his mouth.

An exclamation of "O-oh!" went up from the watchers. Before it had died away the second bullet followed the first, with the same result, or rather lack of result, and another louder "O-oh!" arose. Then Jana tranquilly shut his mouth, having finished trumpeting, and as though to give me a still better target, turned broadside on and stood quite still.

With an inward curse, I snatched the second rifle and, aiming behind the ear at a spot which long experience told me covered the heart, let drive again, first one barrel and then the other.

Jana never stirred. No bullet thudded. No mark of blood appeared upon his side. The horrible thought overcame me that I, Allan Quatermain; I, the famous shot, the renowned hunter, had four times missed this haystack of a brute from a distance of 40 yards. So great was my shame I think I almost fainted. Through a kind of mist I heard various ejaculations:

"Great heavens!" said Ragnall.

"Allemagte!" remarked Hans.

"The Child help us!" muttered Harut.

All the rest of them stared at me as though I were a freak or a lunatic. Then somebody laughed nervously, and immediately everybody began to laugh. Even the distant army of the Black Kendah became convulsed with roars of unholy merriment and I, Allan Quatermain, was the center of all this mockery, till I felt as though I were going mad. Suddenly the laughter ceased and once more Simba, the King, began to roar out something about "Jana, the invincible and invulnerable," to which the White Kendah replied with cries of "Magic!" and "Bewitched! Bewitched!"

"Yes," yelled Simba, "no bullet can touch Jana, the god, not even those of the white Lord who was brought from far to kill him."

Hans leaped on to the top of the wall, where he danced up and down like an intoxicated monkey, and screamed:

Hans ceased from dancing on the wall and, steadying himself, lifted the little rifle Intombi, shouting:

"Let us see whether, after all, this beast is a god or an elephant."

Then he touched the trigger, and simultaneously with the report I heard the bullet clap and saw blood appear on Jana's side just by that very spot over the heart at which I had aimed without result. Of course, the soft ball driven from a small-bore rifle with a light charge of powder was far too weak to penetrate the vitals. Probably it did not do much more than pierce through the skin and an inch or two of flesh behind it.

Still, its effects upon this "invulnerable" god were of a marked order. He whipped around; he lifted his trunk and screamed with rage and pain. Then off he lumbered back towards his own people, at such a pace that the attendants who held the chains on either side of him were thrown over and forced to leave go of him, while the King and the priest upon his back could only retain their seats by clinging to the chair and the rope about his neck.

The result was satisfactory so far as the dispelling of magical illusions went, but it left me in a worse position than before, since now it became evident that what had protected Jana from my bullets was nothing more supernatural than my own lack of skill. Oh! never in my life did I drink of such a cup of humiliation as it was my lot to drain to the dregs in this most unhappy hour. Almost did I hope that I might be killed at once.

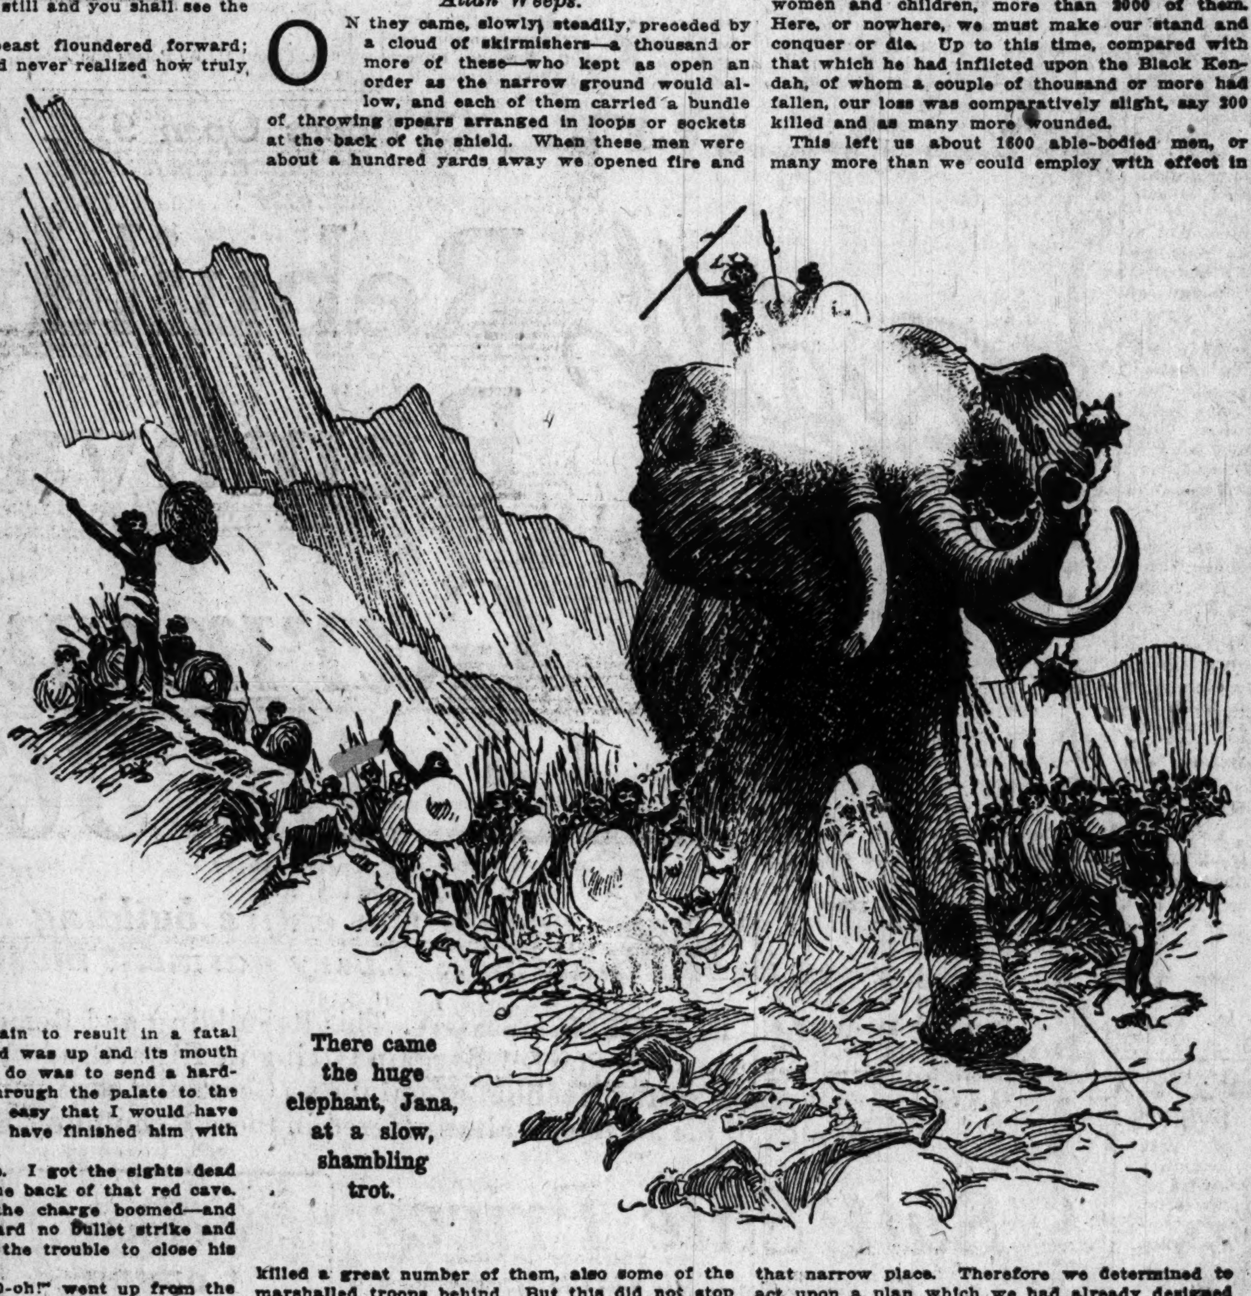
And yet, and yet, how was it possible that with all my skill I should have missed this towering mountain of flesh four times in succession? The question is one to which I have never discovered any answer, especially as Hans hit it easily enough, which at the time I wished heartily he had not done, since his success only served to emphasize my miserable failure. Fortunately, just then a diversion occurred which freed my unhappy self from further public attention. With a shout and a roar the great army of Black Kendah woke into life.

The advance had begun.

CHAPTER XX.

Allan Weeps.

ON they came, slowly, steadily, preceded by a cloud of skirmishers—a thousand or more of these—who kept as open an order as the narrow ground would allow, and each of them carried a bundle of throwing spears arranged in loops or sockets at the back of the shield. When these men were about a hundred yards away we opened fire and killed a great number of them, also some of the marshalled troops behind. But this did not stop them in the least, for what could 50 rifles do against a horde of brave barbarians who, it seemed, had no fear of death? Presently their spears were falling among us and a few casualties began to occur, not many, because of the protecting wall, but still some. Again and again we loaded and fired, sweeping away those in front of us, but always others came up to take their places. Finally, at some word of command these light skirmishers vanished, except those who were dead or wounded, taking shelter behind the advancing regiments which now were within 50 yards of us.



There came the huge elephant, Jana, at a slow, shambling trot.

Then, after a momentary pause, another command was shouted out and the first regiment charged in three solid ranks. We fired a volley point-blank into them and, as it was hopeless for 50 men to withstand such an onslaught, bolted during the temporary confusion that ensued, taking refuge, as it had been arranged that we should do, at a point of vantage further down the line of fortifications, whence we maintained our galling fire.

Now it was that the main body of the White Kendah came into action under the leadership of Ragnall and Harut. The enemy scrambled over the first wall, which we had just vacated, to find themselves in a network of other walls held by our spearsmen in a narrow place where numbers gave no great advantage.

Here the fighting was terrible and the loss of the attackers great, for always as they carried one entrenchment they found another a few yards in front of them, out of which the defenders could only be driven at much cost of life.

Two hours or more the battle went on thus. In spite of the desperate resistance which we offered, the multitude of the Black Kendah, who I must say, fought magnificently, stormed wall after wall, leaving hundreds of dead and wounded to mark their difficult progress. Meanwhile I and my riflemen rained bullets on them from certain positions which we had selected beforehand, until at length our ammunition began to run low.

At half-past eight in the morning we were driven back over the open ground to our last entrenchment, a very strong one just outside of the eastern gate of the temple, which, it will be remembered, was set in a tunnel pierced through the natural lava rock. Thrice did the Black Kendah come on and thrice did we beat them off, till the ditch in front of the wall was almost full of fallen. As fast as they climbed to the top of it the White Kendah thrust them through with their long spears, or we shot them with our rifles, the nature of the ground being such that only a direct frontal attack was possible.

In the end they drew back sullenly, having, as we hoped, given up the assault. As it turned out, this was not so. They were only resting and waiting for the arrival of their reserve. It came up shouting and singing a war song, 2000 strong or more, and presently once more they charged like a flood of water. We beat them back. They reformed and charged a second time and we beat them back.

Then they took another counsel. Standing among the dead and dying at the base of the wall, which was built of loose stones and earth, where we could not easily get at them because of the showers of spears which were rained at anyone who showed himself, they began to undermine it, levering out the bottom stones with stakes and battering them with poles.

In five minutes a breach appeared, through which they poured tumultuously. It was hopeless to withstand that onslaught of so vast a number. Fighting desperately, we were driven down the tunnel and through the doors that were opened to us into the first court of the temple. By furious efforts we managed to close these doors and block them with stones and earth. But this did not avail us long, for, bringing brushwood and dry grass, they built a fire against them that soon caught the thick cedar wood of which they were made.

While they burned we consulted together. Further retreat seemed impossible, since the second court of the temple, save for a narrow passage, was filled with corn, which allowed no room for fighting, while behind it were gathered all the women and children, more than 2000 of them. Here, or nowhere, we must make our stand and conquer or die. Up to this time, compared with that which he had inflicted upon the Black Kendah, of whom a couple of thousand or more had fallen, our loss was comparatively slight, say 200 killed and as many more wounded.

This left us about 1600 able-bodied men, or many more than we could employ with effect in that narrow place. Therefore we determined to act upon a plan which we had already designed in case such an emergency as ours should arise. About 350 of the best men were to remain to defend the temple till all were slain. The rest, to the number of over 1000, were to withdraw through the second court and the gates beyond to the camp of the women and children. These they were to conduct by secret paths that were known to them to where the camels were kraaled, and mounting as many as possible of them on the camels to fly where they could. Our hope was that the victorious Black Kendah would be too exhausted to follow them across the plain to the distant mountains. It was a dreadful determination, but we had no choice.

"What of my wife?" Ragnall asked hoarsely.

"While the temple stands she must remain in the temple," replied Harut. "But when all is lost, if I have fallen, do you, White Lord, go to the sanctuary with those who remain and take her and the Ivory Child and flee after the others. Only I lay this charge on you under pain of the curse of heaven, that you do not suffer the Ivory Child to fall into the hands of the Black Kendah. First must you burn it with fire or grind it to dust with stones. Moreover, I give this command to all in case the priests in charge of it should fail me, that they set flame to the brushwood that is built up with the stacks of corn, so that, after all, those of our enemies who escape the spear may die of famine."

Instantly and without murmuring, for never did I see more perfect discipline than that which prevailed among these poor people, the orders given by Harut, who in addition to his office as head priest, was a kind of president of what was in fact a republic, were put in the way of execution. Company by company the men appointed to escort the women and children departed through the gateway of the second court, each company turning in the gateway to salute us who remained, by raising their spears, till all were gone. Then we, the 350 who were left, marshalled ourselves as the Greeks may have done in the Pass of Thermopylae.

First stood I and my riflemen, to whom all the remaining ammunition was served out; it amounted to eight rounds per man. Then, ranged across the court in four lines, came the spearmen armed with lances and swords under the immediate command of Harut. Behind these, near the gate of the second court, so that at the last they might attempt the rescue of the priestess, were 50 picked men, captained by Ragnall, who, I forgot to say, was wounded in two places, though not badly, having received a spear thrust in the left shoulder and a sword cut on the left thigh during his desperate defense of the entrenchment.

By the time that all was ready and every man had been given to drink from the great jars of water which stood along the walls, the massive wooden doors began to burn through, though this did not happen for quite half an hour after the enemy had begun to attempt to fire them. They fell at length beneath the battering of poles, leaving only the mound of earth and stones which we had piled up in the gateway after the closing of the doors. This the Black Kendah, who had raked out the burning embers, set themselves to dig away with hands and sticks and spears, a task that was made very difficult to them by about a score of our people who stabbed at them with their long lances or dashed them down with stones, killing and disabling many. But always the dead and wounded were dragged off while the others took their places, so that at last the gateway was practically cleared. Then I called back the spearmen who passed into the ranks behind us, and made ready to play my part.

I had not long to wait. With a rush and a roar a great company of the Black Kendah charged the gateway. Just as they began to emerge into the court I gave the word to fire, sending 50 Snider bullets tearing into them from a distance of a few yards. They fell in a heap; they fell like corn before the scythe, not a man won through. Quickly we reloaded and waited for the next rush. In due course it came and the dreadful scene repeated itself. Now the gateway and the tunnel beyond were so choked with fallen men that the enemy must drag these out before they could charge any more. It was done under the fire of myself, Hans and a few picked shots—somehow it was done.

Once more they charged, and once more were mown down. So it went on till our last cartridge was spent, for never did I see more magnificent courage than was shown by those Black Kendah in the face of a terrific loss. Then my people threw aside their useless rifles, and, arming themselves with spears and swords, fell back to rest, leaving Harut and his company to take their place. For half an hour or more raged that awful struggle, since the spot being so narrow, charge as they would, the Black Kendah could not win through the spears of despairing warriors defending their lives and the sanctuary of their god. Nor, the encircling cliffs being so sheer, could they get round any other way.

At length the enemy drew back as though defeated, giving us time to drag aside our dead and wounded and drink more water, for the heat in the place was now overwhelming. We hoped against hope that they had given up the attack. But this was far from the case; they were but making a new plan.

Suddenly in the gateway there appeared the huge bulk of the elephant Jana, rushing forward at speed and being urged on by men who pricked it with spears behind. It swept through the defenders as though they were but dry grass, battering those in front of it with its great trunk, from which swung the iron balls that crushed all on whom they fell, and paying no more heed to the lance thrusts than it might have done to the bites of gnats. On it came, trumpeting and trampling, and after it in a flood flowed the Black Kendah, upon whom our spearmen flung themselves from either side.

At the time I, followed by Hans, was just returning from speaking with Ragnall at the gate of the second court. A little while before I had retired exhausted from the fierce and fearful fighting, whereon he took my place and repelled several of the Black Kendah charges, including the last. In this fray he received a further injury, a knock on the head from a stick or stone, which stunned him for a few minutes, whereon some of our people had carried him off and set him on the ground with his back against one of the pillars of the second gate. Being told that he was hurt, I ran to see what was the matter. Finding, to my joy, that it was nothing very serious, I was hurrying to the front again when I looked up and saw that devil Jana charging straight towards me, the throng of armed men parting on each side of him, as rough water does before the leaping prow of a storm-driven ship.

Now, thought I to myself with a kind of exultant thrill, now, Jana, I will wipe out both my disgrace and you. This time there shall be no mistake, or if there is, let it be my last.

On thundered Jana, whirling the iron balls among the soldiers, who fled to right and left, leaving a clear path between me and him. To make quite sure of things, for I was trembling a little with fatigue and somewhat sick from the continuous sight of bloodshed, I knelt down upon my right knee, using the other as a prop to my left elbow, and since I could not make certain of a head shot because of the continual whirling of the huge trunk, got the sight of my big-game rifle dead on to the beast where the throat joins the chest. I hoped that the heavy conical bullet would either pierce through to the spine or cut one of the large arteries in the neck, or at least that the tremendous shock of its impact would bring him down.

At about twenty paces I fired and hit—not Jana but the lame priest who was filling the office of mahout, perched upon his shoulders many feet above the point at which I had aimed. Yes, I hit him in the head, which was shattered like an egg-shell, so that he fell lifeless to the ground.

In perfect desperation again I aimed, and fired when Jana was not more than thirty feet away. This time the bullet must have gone wide to the left, for I saw a chip fly from the end of the animal's broken and deformed tusk, which struck out in that direction several feet clear of its side.

Then I gave up all hope. There was no time to gain my feet and escape; indeed I did not wish to do so, who felt that there are some failures which can only be absolved by death. I just knelt there, waiting for the end.

In an instant the gigantic creature was almost over me. I remember looking up at it and thinking in a queer sort of a way—perhaps it was some ancestral memory—that I was a little ape-like child about to be slain by a primordial elephant, thrice as big as any that now inhabits the earth. Then something appeared to happen which I only repeat to show how at such moments absurd and impossible things seem real to us.

The reader may remember the strange dream which Hans had related to me that morning.

One incident of this fantasy was that he had met the spirit of the Zulu lady Mameena, whom I knew in bygone years, and that she bade him tell me she would be with me in the battle and that I was to look for her when death drew near to me and "Jana thundered on," for then perchance I should see her.

Well, no doubt in some lightning flash of thought the memory of those words occurred to me at this juncture, with the ridiculous result that my subjective intelligence, if that be the right term, actually cheated the scene which they described. As clearly, or perhaps more clearly than ever I saw anything else in my life, I appeared to behold the beautiful Mameena in her fur cloak and her blue beads, standing between Jana and myself with her arms folded upon her breast and looking exactly as she did in the tremendous moment of her death before King Panda. I even noted how the faint breeze stirred a loose end of her outspread hair and how the sunlight caught a particular point of a copper bangle on her upper arm.

So she stood, or rather seemed to stand, quite still; and as it happened, at that moment the giant Jana, either because something had frightened him, or perhaps owing to the shock of my bullet striking on his tusk having jarred the brain, suddenly pulled up, sliding along a little with all his four feet together, till I thought he was going to sit down like a performing elephant. Then it appeared to me as though Mameena turned round very slowly, bent towards me, whispering something which I could not hear although her lips moved, looked at me sweetly with those wonderful eyes of hers and vanished away.

A fraction of a second later all this vision had gone and something that was no vision took its place. Jana had recovered himself and was at me again with open mouth and lifted trunk. I heard a Dutch curse and saw a little yellow form; saw Hans, for it was he, thrust the barrels of my second elephant rifle almost into that red cave of a mouth, which, however, they could not reach, and fire, first one barrel, then the other.

Another moment, and the mighty trunk had wrapped itself about Hans and hurled him through the air to fall on his head and arms 30 or 40 feet away.

Jana staggered as though he, too, were about to fall; recovered himself, swerved to the right, perhaps to follow Hans, stumbled on a few paces, missing me altogether, then again came to a standstill. I wriggled myself round and seated on the pavement of the court watched what followed.

First I saw Ragnall run up with a rifle and fire two barrels at the brute's head, of which he took no notice whatsoever. Then I saw his wife, who in this land was known as the Guardian of the Child, issuing from the portals of the second court, dressed in her goddess robes, wearing the cap of birds' feathers, attended by the two priestesses, also dressed as goddesses, as we had seen her on the morning of sacrifice, and holding in front of her the statue of the Ivory Child.

On she came quite quietly, her wide, empty eyes fixed upon Jana. As she advanced, the monster seemed to grow uneasy. Turning his head, he lifted his trunk and thrust it along his back until it gripped the ankle of the king Simba, who all this while was seated there in his chair making no movement.

With a slow, steady pull he dragged Simba from the chair so that he fell upon the ground near his left foreleg. Next, very composedly he wound his trunk about the body of the helpless man, whose horrified eyes I can see to this day, and began to whirl him round and round in the air, gently at first, but with a motion that grew ever more rapid, until the bright chains on the victim's breast flashed in the sunlight like a silver wheel. Then he hurled him to the ground, where the poor King lay a mere shattered pulp that had been human.

Now the priestess was standing in front of the beast god, apparently quite without fear, though her two attendants had fallen back. Ragnall sprang forward as though to drag her away, but a dozen men leapt on to him and held him fast, either to save his life or for some secret reason of their own which I never learned.

Jana looked down at her and she looked up at Jana. Then he screamed furiously and, shooting out his trunk, snatched the Ivory Child from her hands, whirled it around as he had whirled Simba, and at last dashed it to the stone pavement as he had dashed Simba, so that its substance, grown brittle in the passage of the ages, shattered into ten thousand fragments.

At this sight a great groan went up from the men of the White Kendah, the women dressed as goddesses shrieked and tore their robes, and Harut, who stood near, fell down in a fit or faint.

Once more Jana screamed. Then slowly he knelt down, beat his trunk and the clattering metal balls upon the ground thrice, as though he were making obeisance to the beautiful priestess who stood before him, shivered throughout his mighty bulk, and rolled over—dead!

The fighting ceased. The Black Kendah, who all this while had been pressing into the court of the temple, saw and stood stupefied. It was as though in the presence of events to them so pregnant and terrible men could no longer lift their swords in war.

A voice called: "The god is dead! The king is dead! Jana has slain Simba and has himself been slain! Shattered is the Child; spilt is the blood of Jana! Fly, People of the Black Kendah; fly, for the gods are dead and your land is a land of ghosts!"

From every side was this wail echoed! "Fly, People of the Black Kendah, for the gods are dead!"

They turned; they sped away like shadows, carrying their wounded with them, nor did any attempt to stay them. Thirty minutes later, save for some desperately hurt or dying men, not one of them was left in the temple or the pass beyond. They had all gone, leaving none but the dead behind them.

The fight was finished. The fight that had seemed lost was won!

I dragged myself from the ground. As I gained my tottering feet, for now that all was over I felt as if I were made of running water, I saw the men who held Ragnall loose their grip of him. He sprang to where his wife was and stood before her as though confused, much as Jana had stood, Jana against whose head he rested, his left hand holding to the brute's gigantic tusk, for I think that he also was weak with toil, terror, loss of blood and emoton.

"Luna," he gasped, "Luna!"

Leaning on the shoulder of a Kendah man, I drew nearer to see what passed between them for my curiosity overcame my faintness. For quite a long while she stared at him, till suddenly her eyes began to change. It was as though a soul were arising in their emptiness as the moon arises in the quiet evening sky, giving them light and life. At length she spoke in a slow, hesitating voice, the tones of which I remembered well enough, saying:

"Oh! George, that dreadful brute," and she pointed to the dead elephant, "has killed our baby. Look at it! Look at it! We must be everything to each other now, dear, as we were before it came—unless God sends us another."

Then she burst into a flood of weeping and fell into his arms, after which I turned away. So, to their honor be it said, did the Kendah, leaving the pair alone behind the bulk of dead Jana.

Weddings, the Junior League "Follies" and an Extra Symphony Concert Are the Principal Events on the Social Calendar for the Week—St. Louis Girl's Engagement to Harvard Man Announced.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

WEDDINGS—two notable ones out of town—the much-heralded Junior League "Follies" and an extra Symphony concert are the principal events on the week's social calendar.

If there is anything left for which a benefit entertainment could be given—except, of course, for our own guardsmen or the St. Louis blind—it would be difficult to find. Looking over the calendar of the season just passed, it is evident that there were very few parties of any kind given for the mere sake of entertaining.

The Junior League will present its "Follies" Friday night, Saturday afternoon and evening at the Odeon. For weeks the girls and men have been rehearsing and all the dances and specialties will be presented in the most professional manner, as at all former Junioh League performances. But the "Follies" is said to be up to the minute in costumes and dancing and to be a bit more daring than any of their previous shows.

The boxes have all been sold, blocks of seats reserved, and it is expected that the amount realized from the entertainment will give them funds to carry on their good works, which really are far reaching.

TOMORROW afternoon at 4:30 o'clock one of the most important weddings of the season will take place at Christ Church Cathedral—that of Miss Mary Shepley Nagel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel of 44 Westmoreland place, to Homer Loring Sweetser of Boston. The marriage was to have been in June after Mr. Sweetser's graduation from Harvard, but as he is a member of the military organization there, and is subject to call, the date was advanced.

The wedding adds one more link to the chain connecting the Shepleys with Boston. Mrs. Nagel's sister is Mrs. Charles Allerton Coolidge of Boston; their brother, the late George F. Shepley, made his home there; two of Mrs. Nagel's nieces, Misses Margaret and Louise Lionberger, married Boston men—one Donald F. Cutler, the other John Austin Amery, and her niece, Miss Violet Shepley, married in March, John A. Sweetser, a brother of Homer Loring Sweetser. All are Harvard men, and belong to representative New England families.

Mrs. Coolidge and her daughter, Miss Julia Shepley Coolidge; Mrs. Frank Eliot Sweetser, the bridegroom's mother; his sister, Mrs. Kenneth Moller, Mr. Moller and Frank Eliot Sweetser Jr., a brother, who will be best man, have all arrived for the wedding.

The bride's sister, Miss Edith Nagel, one of last winter's debutantes, will be maid of honor, and Miss Coolidge and Miss Ann Lionberger will be bridemaids.

There will be a reception directly after the ceremony. Mr. Sweetser and his bride will go for a short wedding trip, and will return to Boston, where Mr. Sweetser will resume his studies at Harvard.

New Country Club and Sport Hats, Sally Meagher Millinery Co., 801 Century building.

Tomorrow evening at the Victoria Theater the St. Louis Art League will present two short plays from the modern Spanish: "The Street Singer" and "Ye Shall Know Them," followed by a musical program. The proceeds will be added to the funds of Donation Day. The box holders for the performance are Mesdames Daniel C. Nugent, Robert McKittrick Jones, Lon O. Hocker, Edward A. Faust, H. W. Peters and Albert H. Brueggeman.

Under the auspices of the St. Louis Drama League a puppet show will be given at the Wednesday Club Audito-

HEALTH LEAGUE WILL BEGIN WORK MAY 1

Executive Board Will Elect Officers Within a Few Days.

The formation of the St. Louis Public Health League, composed of nine medical groups which do special work in the education of the public along health lines, was perfected at the Hamilton Hotel last night when representatives from each of the groups comprising the league conferred to work out the plans of operation.

The groups which are active members are the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society, Social Hygiene Society, Prevention Committee of the Missouri Commission for the Blind, Society for the Control of Cancer, Committee on the Control of Syphilis, Baby Welfare and Visiting Nurses, Prenatal Care and Social Service Department of the Washington University, St. Louis Medical Society and City Health Department.

The character of the work is along the lines of health legislation, public lectures, special exhibits and the distribution of literature. The work is to be conducted through a central bureau in the offices of the Tuberculosis Society.

The governing body is an executive board composed of one delegate from each of the organizations comprising the league. This executive board has invited the co-operation of the universities and has asked the indorsement of the Chamber of Commerce, the Central Council of Social Agencies, the School of Social Economy and other similar organizations.

At a meeting of the executive board in a few days officers will be elected and the work of the league will be well under way by May 1.

Lectures in picture shows, churches and at mothers' clubs, by physicians along the lines of endeavor of each of the groups, traveling exhibits placed in factories, schools and other gathering places composed of features from each group along with the distribution of literature, is some of the special educational work that will start not later than May 1. More extensive work along these lines has been planned and will be carried on by the league.

NATIONAL HOSPITAL SCHOOL FOR CRIPPLES IS PLANNED

A meeting will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. at the Planters Hotel in the interest of the National Hospital School for Cripples, organized in St. Louis, branches of which are to be established in other cities.

The organization was suggested by Mrs. E. A. Morgan to a little company of ten persons Jan. 19. In the following two months nearly 500 persons were enlisted. Permanent organization was effected March 22 by the election of the following officers: President, Mrs. J. G. Nugent; vice presidents, Mrs. E. P. Nelson, Mrs. E. C. Van Nort, Mrs. W. H. Hudson and Mrs. John C. Roberts; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles McDaris; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. H. Littlefield; treasurer, Mrs. Colin M. Selph; chairman of the board, Mrs. E. A. Morgan.

The proposed institution will be for the benefit of lame children, who will be given a home, treatment, and education and industrial training.

Want Pink Cheeks—Red Lips?

Some unfortunate men and women are prone to wonder why some of their friends are blessed with an abundance of color—pink cheeks and red lips—while theirs are always colorless. The reason for this last-named condition is—there is not enough red blood corpuscles in the blood—under a microscope the blood is thin and watery. The flesh is flabby, too. Well-known physicians assert that the regular administration for several months of three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets will greatly improve the color, add to the weight, make the cheeks pink and the lips red and in general be very beneficial. For self-administration, obtain from any of the best apothecary shops.—ADVERTISEMENT.

MISSOURI TO OBSERVE 'BABY WEEK' MAY 1 TO 6

Campaign Is Designed to Lessen Infant Mortality by Teaching Child Care.

"Baby week"—a campaign of education for the lessening of infant mortality and the training of parents as to the care and needs of the child—will be celebrated all over Missouri May 1—6. Comprehensive plans are under way in St. Louis, where the movement has enlisted the co-operation of many influential organizations.

The campaign was suggested last May at the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in New York, by Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. Her suggestion met with such enthusiastic response that this spring "Baby week" will be celebrated throughout the country.

In February a committee representing the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs sent letters to all parts of the State urging every locality to do its part in "this splendid welfare movement for the babies of Missouri." The committee consists of Mrs. Charles W. Greene of Columbia, Mrs. Clarence Baxter of Kirksville, Mrs. Dora Greene Wilson of Kansas City and Mrs. Clara Graham of Charleston.

Among the St. Louis organizations which are giving their support are the Health Department, Chamber of Commerce, Provident Association, St. Louis Medical Society, Federation of Churches, the School of Social Economy, the Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls, the Children's Hospital, the Red Cross chapter of this city, the Juvenile Court, the department of public schools and the Mothers' Congress and Parent-Teachers associations.

Observances of "Baby week" are being planned in Webster, Kirkwood, Wellston, Clayton, Maplewood, Ferguson, Valley Park, Eureka and other localities in St. Louis County.

Bacon will play the Brahms F minor sonata and the Saint-Saens G minor concerto, and the quartet will sing two numbers from "The Morning of the Year," by Cadman.

Guille of the Moody Bible Institute, beginning this morning, at the Washington and Compton Avenue Presbyterian Church. He will preach every night for two weeks. The church is now without a pastor.

A New Use for Kryptoks—

They are made plain in the upper part of the lens, and ground for correction in the lower.

We are making them this way for those who need glasses to read with but do not wear them for distance.

This saves the annoyance of constantly putting on, and taking off your reading glasses—and risk from loss and breakage as well.

Blood as a Nerve Tonic

"If people would only attend to their blood, instead of worrying themselves ill," said an eminent nerve specialist, "we doctors should not see our consulting rooms crowded with nervous wrecks. More people suffer from worry than from anything else."

The sort of thing which the specialist spoke of is the nervous-run-down condition caused by overwork and the many anxieties of today. Sufferers find themselves tired, morose, low spirited, unable to keep their minds on anything. Any sudden noise hurts like a blow. They are full of groundless fears, and cannot sleep at night.

Doctoring the nerves with poisonous sedatives is a terrible mistake. The only real nerve tonic is a good supply of rich blood. Therefore the treatment for neurasthenia, nervousness, and run-down health is the new rich blood which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are able to make. The revived appetite, improved spirits and new strength which come after a few days' use of the pills will delight every sufferer.

The free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System" will interest you. Write for it today to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schnectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Price 50 cents per box.

GEN. REYES SAYS HE ALSO DISCOVERED RIVER OF DOUBT

Former Colombian President Declares He and Brother Took Safer Route Than Colonel.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Gen. Rafael Reyes, former President of the Republic of Colombia, speaking at a dinner here last night, after predicting that all the countries on the South American continent will stand beside the United States in the defense of equal rights, truth and justice, declared he and his brother discovered, almost simultaneously with Col. Roosevelt, the River of Doubt.

"At the same time Col. Roosevelt left Rio De Janeiro," he declared, "I also was leaving that city, but we took different routes. Col. Roosevelt crossed immense and unhealthy wildernesses inhabited by savages while I was following well-known trails and roads along which railroads were already being built."

In their exploration of the Upper Amazon, Gen. Reyes said, he and his brother found the outlet of a very large river, the source of which was supposed to be thousands of miles away in the mountains. This was the same stream, he asserted, that was discovered by Col. Roosevelt.

Coats, Special at $12.95 and $19.48

The greatest Coat season in many years finds us better prepared than ever before to meet the Coat demands of the smart dresser at small cost.

COATS are more in demand this season than ever, and most likely their popularity is due in no small measure to the jauntiness of the styles.

Included in our superb showing at $12.95 and $19.48 you will find a wondrous range of belted, shirred and tailored coats—models for sports, street, dress and motor wear.

VELOUR continues first in favor among the fabrics. All the new high colors are shown, but Sharon rose, French rose and various shades of green are "running ahead of the field."

Evening Wraps, Theater & Limousine Coats

Nemo STANDARD OF CORSETS —AND— SERVICE

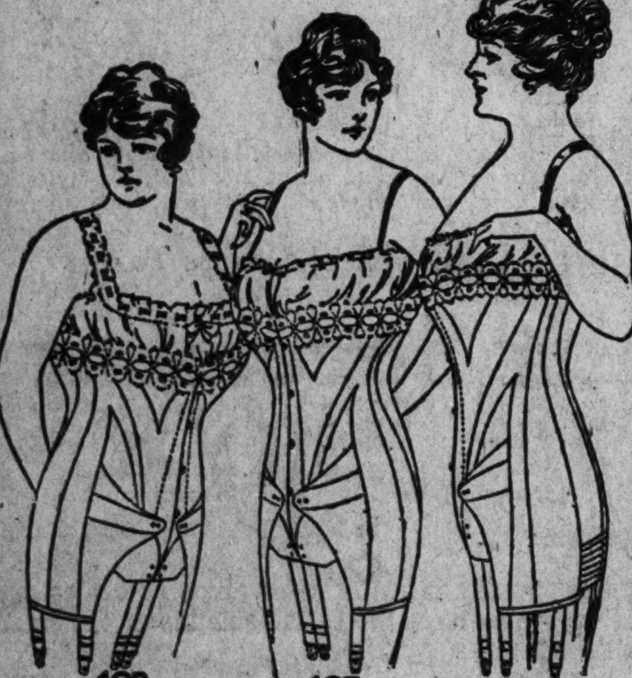
The Useless Imitations of Nemo

THE efficiency of Nemo Self-Reducing Straps is due to their patented construction, and to their partial detachment from the body of the corset. This, while insuring firm support, permits the Straps sufficient play to produce the gentle, passive massage which drives away excess fat and makes the figure really and permanently smaller.

In imitations of the Nemo you will see bands shaped and placed to LOOK somewhat like Nemo Self-Reducing Straps; but, to avoid infringement of our patents, these bands necessarily are sewed hard and fast to the corset-body, cannot move, and therefore have no massaging power to soften fatty tissues and thus dispel them.

These imitations may be "nicknamed" to sound like "Self-Reducing" or "Nemo," but have no other claim to the consideration of stout women who want to be smaller, more stylish and more comfortable.

There's NO SUBSTITUTE for the Nemo!



SELF-REDUCING SERVICE

Models with Nemo Relief Bands

These corsets are designed for women who require a little stronger abdominal support than is given by the Self-Reducing Straps alone.

The Relief Bands are composed largely of semi-elastic Lastikops Webbing, and give firm support with elastic ease. For three distinct stout types:

No. 402—for very short, very stout figures.....
No. 403—for full figures, medium proportions..
No. 405—for the tall, stately full figure.......
$4.50

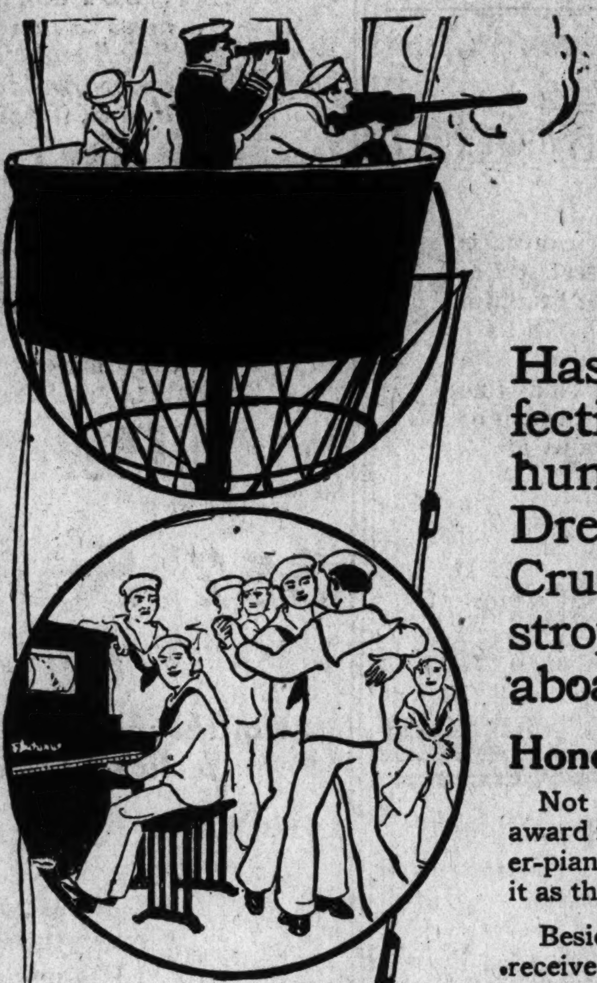
The Autopiano



Afloat and Ashore

Has won a nation's affections. More than one hundred United States Dreadnoughts, Battleships, Cruisers and Torpedo Destroyers have an Autopiano aboard.

Honors and Medals Received

Not only did the San Francisco Exposition award it the highest honors over all other player-pianos, but 16 State buildings also selected it as the official piano in their reception-rooms.

Besides these honors, the Autopiano has received 14 gold medals from all parts of the world, including those received from the Pope of Rome, King of Spain, Shah of Persia and from expositions in England, France, Italy, Holland, Russia and Germany.

Such great artists as Puccini, composer of "Madame Butterfly," "La Boheme," etc., also Victor Herbert, the popular American composer, and Mary Garden, Tetrazzini and other well-known operatic stars have written in the highest terms of the Autopiano.

There are more Autopianos in St. Louis homes than any two other makes combined, which in itself emphasizes the merit of this player-piano. The price of this instrument is within reach of all who want a first-class player-piano with a beautiful rich tone that will last a lifetime.

If you are interested, and a judge of pianos, you will buy the Autopiano, and if you know nothing about pianos, so much the more reason you should select it, because you know it is an instrument stamped with the approval of the greatest judges in the world.

RE DING LAW OF NATIONS BIG AFTER-WAR TASK

"I realized this when, in the early days of August, 1914, I happened to be in the French capital and the hour struck for France—as the hour is now striking for us—and from every village and from every hamlet in answer to one simple notice posted up in the postoffices, which said every man would refer to the little book which every Frenchman carried, and would report to the colors at the hour and on the date stated in the book.

"In answer to that little simple placard, without a word of militarism, without a single brass band—I heard no music, the hour was too solemn—every farmer and peasant left his plow, every clerk his desk. The manhood of the nation, impelled by that common impulse, self-defense, love of old France, its soil, its liberties and its institutions, went forth, knowing exactly what it meant, well knowing how few of them would come back, to repel that invader, who for 40 years had been menacing to destroy their integrity, and to battle for France, for humanity and civilization.

"The spectacle was one of the most impressive and one of the most religious that one could see. A peaceful people, abhorring war, loving to live in dreams of universal peace, having officially or unofficially started nearly every movement in this latter day for a better and more peaceful world, driven from their family life, their ties of tenderness to repel a common invader. I had hear dthe pacifists talking there in other days. I had heard those who didn't believe in general service, and I saw them march off with the others and one of the leaders of that great party was one of the first killed.

"All through that great land one heard not a voice of dissent, because republican institution and democratic principles had created an ideal which mere blood and kinship and the traditions of Louis the Fourteenth and of Napoleon had failed to create. In former wars there had been factions and discussions; here every peasant understood the cause and the question, and as a simple peasant said to me when I asked him why he was going, 'Ah, sir,' he said, 'France wishes to live.' I talked to a woman who had lost an only son and her husband, everything she had, and I said to her, Madam, this is a terrible thing. I feel concerned for the nation, the bloodletting is so awful caused by this monster, Prussian miltarism.' 'Ah, sir, better my husband should die, my son should die, I should die, the nation should die, than that we should submit to become slaves.'"

HOW THE RAIDER YARROWDALE RAN THE BRITISH BLOCKADE

searchlights from the German patrol boats, and they soon pick up a form in the water—the figure of a man propelling himself with powerful strokes toward the Swedish shore. A boat full of German sailors catches up with him, but this bold Englishman does not surrender without a fight. He battles fiercely, until the odds become too great, looking dungarees, after which change they looked like peaceful sailors.

The Swedish torpedo boat is soon alongside of us. On our ship is neither the name nor the home port, both having been carefully scraped off while lying off the coast of Norway. The Swedish captain demands to come aboard.

"You have no business aboard us." replied Commander Bordewitz, "for we are a peaceful ship."

"Yes, but you are in Swedish territory;" we below decks hear the shouted answer, and we are hopeful. "We have orders to search all ships for arms."

"Well, send one man aboard us, then," answers Bordewitz, "but hurry."

A Good German Trick.

He did. A Swedish non-commissioned officer comes over the side, and he walks, accompanied by Bordewitz, from one end of the ship to the other without seeing anything to excite his suspicion. He probably thought they were going to decorate the deck with cannon for his benefit. Now the two are saying goodbye to each other in the most cordial manner, and the Germans have scored again.

As soon as the Swedish officer had gone over the side, the Germans chuckled gleefully over having played such a successful role of peaceful sailors—a good trick.

Evidently, however, they deemed their present position a little dangerous, for the Yarrowdale at once moved out of the territorial waters and over toward a couple of German patrol boats which congratulated Bordewitz on his lucky escape. It is my opinion that the Swede came aboard intentionally blindfolded.

Both at the Island of Hveen and when the Yarrowdale was lying between Copenhagen and the Swedish coast I demanded that Capt. Bordewitz permit my crew and me to go ashore either in Sweden or Denmark. He answered sharply as always:

"Jump overboard if you want to get ashore."

The Arrival at Swinnemunde.

It was New Year's eve, Dec. 31, 1916, that the Yarrowdale reached Swinemunde, Germany, and, at last, I thought my crew and I would receive our liberty. Bordewitz had hinted to me as a half promise that we would be turned loose when his ship reached Germany, but we were again disappointed.

Once more I refer to the entries in my diary:

"Jan. 4.—Five hundred prisoners are taken to a prison camp, where they are kept two days.

"Jan. 6.—We again believe our hour of liberty has come, but we are disappointed. Under strong military escort, we are taken to the nearest railroad station and put on a train that left Swinemunde at 7:35 in the morning. Each of us receives two slices of potato bread, and, although we demand water to drink during the whole trip, which ends at 9 at night, we are unable to obtain a drop.

"We reach Neustreilitz at 9 in the evening and are locked in some empty barracks. It is bitterly cold and no heat is provided. We are first escorted to a house where every man is instructed to take a straw sack and pillow. Later we are told to put these on the floor of the barracks for they constitute our beds.

"The food could hardly be worse. (A diary entry that brings up stinging memories even now——).

"Now I demand, since all the communication I have sent to the other officers have been ignored, that I be permitted to speak to the commander. This is granted." So much for my notes.

I showed him my papers and told him all about my crew and the history of my ship. Then I asked him:

"Is Norway at war with Germany?"

"No, Norway is not at war with Germany," he replied.

"Why, then, are my crew and myself held prisoners of war?"

"You are not prisoners," he replied promptly. "You are only in quarantine." A nice distinction!

"In that case," I suggested, "I suppose I'll be permitted to go out and take a walk whenever I like."

"Under no circumstances. That would not do at all."

"Will you, then, guarantee that my ship's papers and reports are sent to my owners?"

He gave me a negative answer quite as prompt as the others. So I left him.

At last, we heard a man from Altona was expected, who would take care of me and my people. Our keeper informed me of this. There was nothing else for us to do (we were not permitted to communicate with anyone) so we had to wait.

Finally came the man from Altona, who promptly informed us he could do nothing, but said that perhaps in six weeks or so we might be permitted to depart. He also urged us to desist from complaining, as he assured us that none of the officers would pay the slightest attention. We believed him by this time.

At last, on Saturday, Jan. 27, we were released without any warning. We were taken through Germany by train to the border between Denmark and Schleswig, and now we are in Copenhagen. Thank God!

As I look back, my worst experience was during the two and one-half days were were forced to stay in the coal bunkers—an unhealthy spot—while the

A Drunkard's Plea. Tells How He Was Released From the Bondage of Alcoholic Slavery

Leading Druggists Guarantee Results.

My heart bleeds for every drunkard, and I sincerely wish I could meet them face to face and tell them how I was saved from the clutches of the demon drink. If this were possible thousands could be saved from drunkard's graves. Yes, my appetite for drink was completely destroyed. Here is the prescription that saved me: One prepared tescum powder twice a day, in coffee, tea or any liquid. Almost everything had been tried on me, without results, so don't experiment with anything but tescum powders, then you will not be disappointed. Since the powder is colorless, odorless and tasteless, it can be given secretly. It is intended to destroy the terrible craving. The results are so startling that druggists are refunding the money if it fails. (See money refund guarantee, which druggists are authorized to give when above prescription is filled). There is absolutely no risk on your part, so you have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Mothers and sisters are now able to cure their loved ones of this terrible habit with no expense if it fails. If druggists were not confident of success they could not afford to make such an offer. Have the prescription filled today, before you forget it.

Note: A leading druggist, when shown the above article, said: "Yes, tescum is a very remarkable remedy for the drink habit. It is harmless, wonderfully effective and is having an enormous sale. I advise everyone who wishes to destroy the liquor habit to give it a trial." It is sold in this city by Johnson-Enderle-Pauley, Wolff-Wilson and all other first-class druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Yarrowdale ran the British blockade, before we reached the Iceland coast. It did not make us feel any better that we were ordered into the bunkers on Christmas eve and that we spent Christmas day there. When finally off the Norwegian coast, we were permitted on the deck for fresh air.

I had no Americans among my crew, although, of course, there were several on the Yarrowdale. It is true I signed on eight men in New York, but they were all Norwegians. However, under the laws, I am obligated to return these eight to New York, which will be done in one of the Scandinavian-American line steamers.

We were the first of the 500 enemy and neutral prisoners brought to Germany on the Yarrowdale to be released. We feel sorry for the rest, especially the English. The Americans are still detained. I am now going to leave Copenhagen for Bergen, my home town, and there, in port at last, I will place all the details of my suffering and that of my crew before the proper authorities.

THE END.

corresponding depression would be created in Germany.

Quite as important to the allied point of view was the conviction that America's entrance would be useful as putting an end to all German intrigue in America, the lingering fear that we might be led into a quarrel by the German agents, that we might be tricked into a dispute with Great Britain which would threaten allied interests. This was just beginning to yield as the break with Germany promised the later declaration of war.

As to the aid that the allies could hope for, there was one idea in all minds. That we should send some troops, some regular troops—not merely volunteers to be trained, as the Prime Minister suggested, by British officers and serve under British commanders—this was the unmistakable desire of the French. For them the arrival of even a few thousand American troops in France, a handful, measured by the European standard, would be a contribution that would have immeasurable value to France, to the France which has so long borne the brunt of the German attack in the West. I do not believe that anything that we can do for the allies will be comparable with the sending of a few troops to France as soon as it is possible, not as a military but as a moral effort.

Our Burden in 1918 and 1919.

Behind this there must be the preparation for larger expeditions, for it does not seem possible to end the war this year, and my conviction, derived from talks with British and French Generals alike, is that those best informed in Europe expect to see the war go into another year, and also to see German resistance and German attack reach a new high-water mark in intensity.

Quite frankly the French recognize that their own military effort is at its maximum, and even past it. In numbers the decline in French strength must hereafter be absolute. Britain will reach her crest this summer. If Russia succeeds in getting her army reorganized there may be no need of a great American expedition, but the Russian situation must remain problematical for a long period, and it may be necessary for the United States to provide troops to share in the decisive campaign, whether it be in 1918, as seems likely now, or 1919, which is far from improbable.

Meantime the British situation must command our immediate attention. The present German submarine campaign, should it succeed, would compel Britain to make peace, and thus remove the British fleet from the count. It would end the war with Germany, so far as Europe is concerned, and it would leave Germany, possessing a huge fleet and great military strength, free to deal with its American foe.

It must be the first concern of the United States to contribute all that is possible toward breaking the German submarine blow. All the shipping that we can muster will have to be employed to carry food to Britain and steel to France. If either supply fails, the disaster will be almost immediate and our disaster only slightly delayed. This aid is what Britain expects and hopes for. This was the thing that every Briton, high and low, talked to me about. Soberly, solemnly, they discussed the submarine war as a blow at their existence heavier than any they had known.

Britain's Grim Peril to Come.

No one in authority believes that Britain can be starved in six months or a year, but if the war goes two years more the present rate of destruction of shipping will bring Britain face to face with grim peril, unless the United States, by using interned German ships, by using and building American ships, contributes to the right side of the shipping balance. Actually the British and the French believe the submarine attack is Germany's last bid for victory, and they both look to the United States as the one nation in a position to defeat this venture decisively, by policing the seas and by mobilizing its available tonnage.

The question of financial aid is more intricate but not less pressing. An extension of credit in the shape of loans to France and Belgium, as well as Great Britain, with possible loans to Italy as well, will ease the situation in all these countries; it will have something of the effect of a transfusion of blood; it will place the vast credit of the United States behind the allies at the moment when all combatants are feeling the strain of the financial burden and Germany most of all, for Germany is today bankrupt and facing ruin.

In Paris bankers talked with me and spoke in amazement of the German provocation of the United States, because they regarded the United States as the one possible lender to Germany after the war. That Germany should close this avenue for her restoration seemed to them an act of madness not to be explained save as one more proof that the German rulers had taken leave of their senses. And it seemed to me that one of the most appealing circumstances in American intervention, so far as the allies were concerned, was that it insured to these countries financial relations with the United States after the war; it assured them American money with which to rebuild their ruins and resume the work of peace.

Looking backward, it seems that the moral effect of American entrance was what was most discussed wherever I went. France and Britain never understood our neutrality; it was a puzzle and a problem; it was a darkness in which they groped hopelessly. President Wilson was inexplicable; American ignorance of the facts of the world war as Paris and London saw them a mystery beyond solution. Particularly in France there was a craving for the indorsement of French action by the other great republic which would abolish the last doubt, the last protest of the pacifist.

All this is passed now, and with it have gone the criticisms that were once rife in London, and even in Paris. These criticisms, it should be said, were far less bitter this year than I found them on my visit the year before. Already France and Britain had recognized that the United States had been in all but name an ally; that it had provided the machinery without which the war might have been lost. For I think it is the common belief in England and France, quite as much as in Germany, that had the allies not been able to employ our industrial plants they might have succumbed to Germany's superior preparation and more quickly organized war industries.

The future effects of American participation in the war cannot, I believe, be exaggerated; the relations between this country and France will hardly change, outwardly, but if so much as an American brigade goes to the front, I do not think it will ever be forgotten. And I am equally convinced that, no matter what material support we give the French, it will not take the place of an expeditionary army. A million Frenchmen have died for the cause the French never describe save as "civilization against force," and it was not until the British sacrifices at the Somme came, the loss there of 600,000 men, that France recognized Britain and British effort for what it was.

Many British and French officers and statesmen with whom I talked, notably M. Albert Thomas, the French Minister of Munitions, asked me anxiously about the possibility that when America came in, that material, vitally necessary to the allies, particularly steel in the case of France, might be diverted to the equipment of new American armies. President Wilson dealt admirably with this detail in his message to Congress. I do not think the danger can be exaggerated; certainly there were no qualifications in the words of Albert Thomas, who quite frankly pointed out that American steel was a matter of life and death with the French.

The Greatest Allied Success Since Verdun.

In sum, our entrance into the war will be for the allies, immediately, a heartening and a reinforcing which will have an effect that will be incalculable, an effect upon the firing lines, where American flags have already been shown and busy bulletin boards have transmitted the news to the German trenches. The arrival of a small expeditionary force will complete what the French and British agreed would be the greatest moral victory of the war and the most important success since the Marne.

Beyond this the material aid that we render will be viewed in the light of allied necessities. Since the submarine war is the greatest menace to Britain and to the allied cause, our aid in breaking this blockade will be most eagerly expected, as it will defeat what is regarded as the last bid of the Germans for victory, the last hope of Kaiserism. After this come questions of loans, questions of credit, with the eventual dispatch of a great army, if the war lasts for another year, as the best informed soldiers with whom I talked in England believed.

The United States has now assumed the position in the ranks of the foes of Germany long held by Britain. And Britain is holding the place, in part, of France. This year the great effort in the West and the great sacrifice must be made by the British, and it means not less than a million casualties. Next year, when we have begun to have a real army, there may be need for our man-power, too. This is the European view, where it is recognized that there may be two more years of war ahead and the defeat of Germany may not be achieved until attrition reaches a point still far distant.

ASTOUNDING REPORT FOR ST. LOUIS

The wife of a merchant had stomach trouble so bad she could eat nothing but toast, fruit and hot water. Everything else would sour and ferment. ONE SPOONFUL buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-i-ka benefited her INSTANTLY. Because Adler-i-ka flushes the ENTIRE alimentary tract it relieves ANY CASE of constipation, sour stomach or gas and prevents appendicitis. Physicians use it to remove foul and poisonous matter from the bowels which other mixtures (and the various oils and waters) are unable to dislodge. Dr. James Weaver, one of America's oldest physicians, states: "I have found nothing to excel Adler-i-ka in my fifty years' practice." CLOTHES TURNED IN HUNGARY

New Suits Which Once Cost $20 Now Are $90.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 14.—It is a badge of patriotism in Hungary nowadays to wear a coat with the side pocket on the right-hand side, revealing that the garment has been turned so as to make it presentable, thus saving the labor and expense of a new suit. In fashionable restaurants and hotels one sees many prominent people thus attired.

Nobody, not even a war millionaire, can afford many new suits nowadays, and the tailors are reluctant to make clothes even at their own price, which is now about $90, in advance, for a suit which would have cost about $20 in peace times.

$50,000 NEEDED FOR SUPPORT OF BLIND WORKSHOP

Unless Fund Is Raised, 67 Men Will Be Thrown on Own Resources.

The workshop of the Missouri Association for the Blind, at Jeferson aveneu and Howard street, giving employment to 67 blind men, which closed yesterday because Gov. Gardner had vetoed the appropriation of $50,000 made by the Legislature for pensions for the blind, will cotninue in operation for the remainder of the month.

Robert Johnson, president of the association, and W. Frank Carter, treasurer, at the solicitation of Mrs. A. F. Harris have agreed to provide funds to keep it going that long. Unless a way is found to raise $50,000 to carry on the work until the next Legislature meets, the commission's activities will have to be discontinued, according to James C. Jones, the secretary.

The commission was created two years ago on the recommendation of Gov. Major. It was financed by a legislative appropriation and subscriptions. The blind of the city and the State were employed at making baskets and towels. Blind persons living in the interior of the State were induced to come to St. Louis and take advantage of the employment offered, which was expected to be permanent. Now they will have to be sent back and, unless funds are promptly raised, some of the blind of St. Louis, who have been supporting themselves, will become dependents.

Secretary Jones expresses the hope that an effort will be made by the people of St. Louis to at least take care of the blind of the city until the next Legislature meets, and that the financial condition of the State will then be such that the Governor will find it possible to approve whatever appropriation is made.

Gov. Gardner's veto of the appropriation puts a stop to the Prevention Department, which has been conducted by Dr. W. H. Luedde, and the Home Teaching Department, which has been conducted by Annie A. Ruenzi, of St. Charles, a blind woman who has been going up and down the State teaching blind women and girls in their homes to read, knit, sew and crochet.

WILL SELL BRICKS AT TEN CENTS TO RAISE BLIND FUND

$5000 Is Sought to Pay Mortgage on Factory and to Add Another Story.

An effort is to be made by the United Workers for the Blind of Missouri to raise $5000 by selling "bricks" at 10 cents apiece. The money so raised is to be used for the payment of a mortgage of $200 on the building at 4151 Delmar boulevard, used as a factory for blind men and women, and to add a second story to enable the establishment of a workshop for blind women exlusively.

Women interested in the blind have volunteered to help sell the bricks. In no instance is any commission or other compensation to be paid. The brick plan was devised by Adolph Michaels, the blind chairman of the Building and Factory Committee, and Miss Jennie Sloan, the blind member of that committee.

The way of the transgressor is short as well as hard when "The American Girl" is on his trail.

The spirited part played by a beautiful girl in pioneer life and adventure in the camp and on the plains is depicted with wonderful realism in these dashing, spectacular photodramas.

The American Girl
By Frederick R. Bechdolt

is a charming, fearless, quick-witted daughter of the great West. Alert, impulsive and resourceful, she rides through these vivid pictures on her high-spirited horse—always ready for any adventure, no matter how dangerous, which will prevent a crime or redress a wrong.

See every one of these powerful, intensely interesting pictures—a new one every week—a complete story in itself. Played by Marin Sais. A Kalem production, and worthy of the high reputation of the producer.

A HARSH LESSON!!!
Ada Patterson of New York Journal Advises Mothers
"Mothers of daughters, if your girls that but yesterday were babes at your knee seem insensible to the words you utter; if they are unimpressed by the warnings you give, go a step further on your stern path of duty.
"Take them for an hour to Jefferson Market and let them watch the wretched procession; that bench of justice in the Night Court for Women. Let them hear the sentences passed. Tell them how innocently and carelessly, perhaps ignorantly, the unfortunate women took the first step on that downward way. A harsh lesson, I grant you, but it is one of salvation to a thoughtless girl."

JAPANESE FLYER IS KILLED

Skilled Pilot Falls From a Great Height.

TOKIO, April 14. — Lieut. Hide Sawada, regarded as the ablest pilot of the Japanese army aviation corps, was instantly killed the other day when his machine fell from a great height at Tokorozawa. The cause of the accident is unknown. He recently returned from a study of aviation in France and England.

4000 Bushels of Corn at $1.37.

DANVILLE, Ill., April 14.—William Cowling sold to a Chicago grain company 4000 bushels of corn at $1.37 a bushel, the highest price ever paid for corn in Illinois. The corn was raised on a tract where in 1856 the grandfather of Cowling raised corn which brought 6¼ cents a bushel at public sale the following spring.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY WHEN CONSTIPATED

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to consider their own health, consequently their bowels become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—ADV.

$30,000 SOUGHT FOR RELIEF OF ST. LOUIS NEEDY

Street Cars Will Carry Contribution Boxes Tomorrow, Set Aside as Donation Day.

Tomorrow is St. Louis Donation Day, when St. Louisans will give to relieve the distress which has been caused, among the city's poor, by the increased cost of living. The day was set apart by proclamation of Mayor Kiel. Gov. Gardner yesterday telegraphed to the committee in charge his indorsement of the plan and his hope for its success.

Donation boxes will be carried on all the street cars, near the regular fare boxes, and all money placed in the special boxes will go to the relief work of the Provident Association, St. Vincent de Paul Society and Jewish Charities. At least $50,000, it is announced, is needed to conduct the immediate relief work of the three organizations.

Automobile owners have been asked, in letters, to make gifts to take the place of those which they would put in the street car boxes if they traveled on the cars. Some donations have already been received from automobilists by the committee, of which George Warren Brown is chairman.

Pastors of all city churches have been asked to remind their congregations today of the need for funds for charity work. While increased food prices have worked a hardship on the well-to-do, it is declared that they have brought the menace of starvation to the poor.

Street cars will carry signs reminding passengers of the opportunity given them to help the poor as they pay their fares. Moving picture houses will show, on the screens, reminders of the duty of helping the unfortunate.

No Question of Honor Can Bring Spain Into This War, Says Premier

Neutrality Will Be Maintained at All Costs Because Nation Can Serve World Best as Neutral—Expects Growth of Friendship With America.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

MADRID, March 15.

COUNT ROMANONES, President of the Council of Ministers, received a representative of the Associated Press at the presidencia today and discussed the various questions growing out of the European war, as they affect Spain now and in the future, and the increasing importance which the war has given to strengthening the friendly relations and establishing a strong commercial understanding between Spain and the United States.

Count Romanones is not only the guiding spirit of the Government during these war days, but he is in effect the Government itself, for while head of a ministry responsible to the King and the Cortes, yet this responsibility has never been successfully challenged, so that Romanones has come to be recognized as the embodiment of Spanish policy, much as President Wilson is accepted in Europe as the exponent of American doctrine.

Determined to Remain Neutral.

"Spain appears to be firmly determined to maintain her attitude of absolute neutrality," was suggested to the President of the Council.

"Yes, absolute neutrality, together with a maintenance of international law," he replied. "We feel that both should go together, and while determined not to vary from the course of neutrality which we have observed from the outset, we believe this should be done without permitting the principles of international law and justice to be obscured or varied in the slightest degree.

"I will say frankly it is not always an easy task to reconcile this observance of neutrality with the maintenance of all the well-established safeguards of international law, because the war has created many entirely new conditions. We believe, however, that Spain will be able to accomplish these two desirable objects—neutrality and the observance of international law—and that in reality the seeming conflict between them is largely one of detail which can be adjusted by the exercise of good will and generous disposition."

No Cause to Enter War.

"From what you have said it is inferred that Spain is equally determined not to enter the war."

"That is a very definitely fixed policy on our part," he replied. "We do not want war and do not like war, and we not only hope, but we confidently expect and believe, there is no occasion whatever now, and will be no occasion in the future, requiring Spain to change her attitude of neutrality and enter the war. Spain has every interest in remaining at peace and has absolutely no interest in going to war.

"You have only to look around and see our people contented and happy.

"Why should we throw aside these splendid advantages which Providence and our isolated western geographical position give us, in order to cast our lot with those who are passing through the most fearful trials that ever fell upon nations. No, our path is clearly traced. Spain will not enter the war. There is absolutely no question of national honor involved which calls upon us in any way to enter into this dreadful slaughter."

The Submarine Menace.

"Then your excellency does not regard the submarine question as a menace likely to draw Spain into war?"

"The submarine question is undoubtedly serious," he replied, "but all things are relative, and in considering the submarine question we should have regard to its relative bearing on the larger and supreme question of preserving a policy of peace as against war. The danger zones traced around the entente nations, while they do not touch the coast of Spain, yet they completely encircle us at a distance. This has had a serious effect on our sea-borne commerce and has also affected our home industries to some extent. Spain's natural resources of iron, fruit, oil and many other products find their natural outlet to England, France, Germany and many of the other European countries, as well as to North and South America. And, on the other hand, our metal industries, railways, factories and public utilities depend to a considerable extent on getting their necessary supplies of coal from the Cardiff coal fields of England. But the danger zones encircling us have interfered with both these normal and essential branches of our trade, exportation and importation.

"Although the Government is giving the most careful consideration to solving these questions, it has never for a moment regarded them as presenting an issue likely to involve Spain in war."

Proud to Represent U. S.

"Have the losses in Spanish ships and cargoes been great?" was asked.

"Comparatively slight," he replied. "Our merchant shipping is not large and such losses as it has suffered have been in small craft, usually through accident due to the risk of passing through the dangerous zones lying around the entente nations with whom our ships seek to carry on their normal trade."

The President was asked if the action of the United States in breaking relations with Germany added to the responsibilities of Spain as the foremost neutral nation standing between the belligerents.

"It has added very greatly to our responsibilities," he replied. "And yet it is a role which Spain accepts with a certain degree of satisfaction and pride, in the belief that it enables us to perform a useful service to both sides and to the world at large. The added responsibilities of a diplomatic nature are in themselves considerable, for now that the United States no longer represents the entente nations and the central Powers vis-a-vis of each other at the various capitals, Spain has been charged very largely with these important duties. We were recently pleased to accept the representation of the United States at Berlin on the withdrawal of your Ambassador, and to take over a number of the other representations which the United States had carried on up to that time."

Too Much Peace Talk.

"But does not the new position of Spain, as the foremost neutral, give her the opportunity of initiating measures of peace when the opportune moment arrives?" was asked.

The President of the Council held up his hand in a warning manner. He had been smiling and most gracious up to this moment, but now the sternness of his look indicated that the questioner was getting on dangerous ground. Then he said:

"There has been too much talk about peace. Yes, far too much, in my opinion, to assist in the accomplishment of peace. It will be time enough to talk of that when the opportune moment arrives. To talk of it now is only to invite animosities and arouse hopes which will not be realized."

"Spain is fortunately placed," was suggested, "not only for the present, but also to realize great benefits after the war."

"It means," he said, "the birth of a new Spain. We are indeed most fortunately located outside the pale of this terrible conflict. As a purely natural and logical result of our geographical position, I believe it will be inevitable that Spain will undergo an unprecedented era of revival and reconstruction, justifying the hope of the birth of a new Spain. It is for us to prepare for this new era which lies ahead for Spain. And we are doing this in many ways, developing and modernizing our railways, steamships, ports and all the factors of modern trade and transportation. The war has opened the eyes of Spain and has disclosed to her the position of prestige in the world's affairs which properly pertains to her. That, I believe, will be one of the most important results following the war,

THE pitfalls which face the United States resemble more closely those of England and allied nations—Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa—than of France or Germany, which had long maintained large standing armies. Prior to the war the British army was a negligible quantity. In many parts of Great Britain a soldier's uniform was as rarely seen as in some parts of the United States. Indeed, I saw in one day after the fire more soldiers in San Francisco than I had ever seen in any town in England. An English army officer's uniform was almost unknown, except when the officer was accompanying his troops, as it was not fashionable for the British officer to wear it when off duty.

When in the early days of 1914 it became necessary for Great Britain to keep her solemn compact with Belgium, she was face to face with the task of taking her place in the greatest land struggle of the world's history with an army equal in size even to that of one of the smallest German states.

I have heard it said by British officers, who have been at West Point and who have seen some of your army at work, that for its size it is the best army in the world. Gen. Leonard Wood, whom I met at Washington some years ago, was good enough to return the compliment by saying that our little British army was similarly the best in Europe. But our army was, at the beginning of the war, as your army now is, really but a nucleus and, alas! we had to disperse our nucleus in France, Belgium, Egypt, Gallipoli and Mesopotamia. We were then left with the instant need of turning farm hands, mechanics, chauffeurs, clerks and all the rest into soldiers at the shortest possible moment.

The then Government, afraid to take the political risk of going at once to conscription, sought refuge in what is called the volunteer system. There was the old parrot cry: "One volunteer is worth three pressed men." This was hammered from every platform by every demagogue. Nobility of the volunteer was eulogized, especially by those who wanted him to go so that they might remain and steal his business. Then the largest campaign in the history of modern advertising was inaugurated by the Government.

Great Mystery Yet Conceals English Campaign for Volunteers

Thousands of pages of newspaper space were obtained by the Government for advertising, many of which were of a semi-blackmailing nature, by specializing such phrases as:

"What will you say to your grandson when he asks you what you did in the great war?"

"What will your best girl think of you if you keep out of uniform?"

In the great rush of anger at the German horrors in Belgium and France, hundreds of high-spirited men went to the colors without thought of their business or private fortunes. When that rush was over the recruiting slumped and the advertising campaign for volunteers began and continued until the Government was able proudly to announce the vague fact that "some 5,000,000 men have volunteered for our various naval and military services." The exact meaning of the word volunteered was never explained and is unknown to this day. Among the volunteers were counted the halt, the maimed, crippled and other ineligibles.

It speedily became obvious that the system of volunteering had broken down. Many patriotic men enlisted freely. Others, equally well disposed, declined, insisting that there might be an equality of sacrifice. If the Government told them that it was essential for them to go they would go, provided others of their age and condition were required to go also. A grossly unjust state of affairs had come into existence. Married men with children had enlisted and single men with no responsibilities had remained behind to "enjoy the war," to use the popular phrase.

Employes in patriotic stores enlisted en masse and nearby stores in the line of business did not hesitate to retain their workers and thrive.

The injustice became at last so pronounced and the cry of "single men first" so continuous that eventually, after much nervous trepidation, our Government summoned its courage and dreadful word compulsion—firstly as to young men only. With the exception of a few cowards, who posed as conscientious objectors to warfare, and also some bona fide objectors, such as members of the "Society of Friends," the whole country welcomed the abolition of the grossly unjust system whereby the patriotic mother sent her son to the great fight for liberty and the unpatriotic mother kept her boy at her side.

America Happily Can Take Her Time in Raising Army

The United States is in no such desperate hurry to raise soldiers as we were. If she desires to send a contingent overseas she will have plenty of time to send inquirers to France, to this country or to Canada to find out the latest novelties in the ever-changing demands of war as to both men and material. We were unfortunately in such haste that our men were enrolled in a way to remind one of a badly taken census. It took many months' time and the work of thousands of assistants in England and France and elsewhere to find out who the men in our army were—their trades and occupations, the conditions of their private lives and other essential details.

In the vibrant days of the summer and autumn of 1914—in the first rush of patriotic volunteers—resulting in the greatest volunteer force ever raised in the world's history, all manner of important matters broke down, most notably, perhaps, that of the medical examination of recruits. The result was that many healthy, willing young men were rejected for trifling defects, and many others physically unfit were sent to the front, only to go to the hospitals at once and otherwise cumber the earth.

It was not immediately realized that this was as much a war of machinery as of military science. We did not realize—none of the armies realized—that a division of 20,000 men requires in its immediate vicinity all sorts of workshops to look after aerial, artillery, small arms, medical and transportation equipment and other essential facilities, repairing machinery and repairing men are almost as important as to get the men in the first place and provide them with their initial equipment.

Not one man in a hundred who went to the front from England had any military experience before the war more than such as may have been derived from service with boy scouts or parading in uniform with an alleged volunteer corps.

You have to imagine that you suddenly take all the men of military age from one of your large buildings and train them during three or four months to entirely novel work, such as sky writing, bombing, mining, trench digging, tunneling, barbed-wire laying, mortar firing, raiding and all the rest of the desperate business of modern warfare.

If before the war I had been told it was possible to achieve these results and that boys of 17 could be trained to fly battle planes at 130 miles per hour, fighting at 16,000 and 18,000 feet up, I should not have believed it; but the pressure of war doubles the energy and adaptability of man. Young men you face in street cars or railroad trains reading this are the same kind of young men we had to make into soldiers quickly.

Lately we have learned an even more rigid method of teaching. We give a short preliminary training here in England, and then a longer period in France or elsewhere close to the war. Would not such a plan be suitable if the United States should decide to send a contingent overseas?

There are hundreds of reasons why people learn war more quickly at war than they could learn it at home. If a man wants to get cured he is, as a rule, more quickly cured by going to a cure place than by staying around home with acquaintances.

Once landed in France, the European soldier has nothing to think of but the profession of war and the joy and delight youth takes in preparations for a crusade present the most pleasant aspect of warfare.

Method of Making War Is Undergoing Conduct Change

I have said that war changes rapidly. On each of my nine visits to the front I have found revolutionary alterations in its method and conduct. At our war schools in France, officers, commissioned and noncommissioned, come straight down from the trenches and teach the boys all the latest novelties. We are more and more, therefore, developing "the high-school-of-at-war" idea. In this school, real gas is freely used for teaching the use of masks. Real mines are sprung. Great model craters are fought for under the leadership of men just back from crater fighting. Every kind of bomb is explained and exploded. There are lectures morning, noon and night, by men just back from doing what they are teaching. It is war in miniature, and often within sound of the real big guns.

Soldiers trained in this way have been proved to be less liable to casualties than those who were trained at home. They are nearer the real thing and know more of the real thing. That is one reason why the heavy losses of untrained British soldiers in 1914 are no longer, I rejoice to say, possible.

In my next article I shall deal with mistakes made by the British Government in the equipment and armament.

VENIZELOS SAYS AMERICA'S ENTRY INTO WAR INSURES CRUSHING OF AUTOCRACY

Greek Liberals' Struggle Is for Freedom of People Which Has Been Crowned With Success in Russia, Declares Patriot—Charges Kaiser Has Secret Pact With Greek Ruler.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The Tribune has received the following statement from M. Venizelos, president of the Greek provisional government, in reply to a request for an expression of his views on the effect of the Russian revolution and America's entrance into the war on the national affairs of Greece.

M. Venizelos is an ardent believer in democracy. He is undoubtedly the biggest man of his country, and, should the Allies oust King Constantine, he would certainly become the head of the new Greek Government:

By Eleutherios Venizelos,

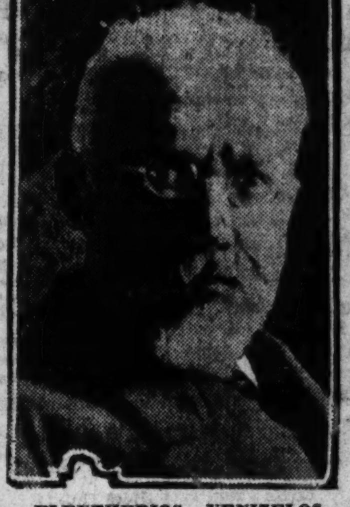
SALONIKI, April 14.

The change that has taken place in the Russian Government has been hailed by the new Greece with sincere joy because the abolition of the despotism and the triumph of democratic principles in Russia prove in the most conclusive manner that the struggle now going on in the world is essentially a contest between democracy and autocracy.



ELEUTHERIOS VENIZELOS.

The entrance into the war of the great American republic is the most emphatic confirmation possible of the nature of the world conflict. The struggle of the Greek liberal forces against King Constantine's clique has never been a fight between people favoring war and those who favor peace, but it is a struggle of democracy against autocracy. No party wished for a prolonged period of peace more than the liberals, especially after the exhaustion resulting from the two recent Balkan wars.

Because of the democratic sentiments of the country, however, as well as on account of the bonds of gratitude and common interests existing between the Powers that guaranteed Greek safety and the Constitution in the Eastern Mediterranean and also because of our alliance with Servia, all our sympathies were from the beginning of the war with the entente Powers. Moreover, we were firmly convinced that the developments of the great struggle would sooner or later make our intervention inevitable on account of our treaty with Servia.

Sympathies With Entente.

In this conviction we were strengthened after Turkey, which never recognized our sovereignty over the isles of the archipelago and which never ceased to proclaim plainly that she would go as far as a war declaration in order to take posession of them, had entered into the war on the side of the central Powers.

There never was any doubt in our minds that the world war was our own war and that it was incumbent upon us to enter into it at the first opportunity, binding our destiny with those of our friends and of our Servian ally, in order to contribute to the triumph of the entente and to get, in the remaking of the map of Europe, the necessary protection for the legitimate interest of Hellenism.

> "HIS (the Greek King's) policy was due to a secret pact with Germany and had no other purpose than promoting the victory of Germany, because the triumph of Prussianism, in the King's opinion, was the only possible opportunity for him to impose on Greece an absolute monarchy.
> "We have proof of this. When Bulgaria atacked Servia, the crown immediately took a position conflicting with that of the majority of the new parliament, refusing to fulfill the obligations contracted by our alliance with Servia, and thus opposing the will of the entire country as expressed through the recent election. The King told me at that time that he did not consider himself bound to abide by the wishes of the people. He said that whenever an important international matter came up for decision he reserved the right to impose upon the nation his personal viewpoint, claiming that he was responsible to God only.
> "It is quite obvious that such an attempt to establish in Greece the principle of monarchy by divine right is doomed to failure at a time when that very principle is abolished in Russia."—VENIZELOS.

King Was Insincere.

Opposed to the policy was that of the King, who claimed that we should maintain our neutrality until the moment Bulgaria attacked Servia. Had this policy of the King been sincere, it would have been honorable. But, as events afterwards demonstrated, his policy lacked sincerity. Under the veneer of pacificism, that policy attempted to exploit the lassitude which seized Greece after the two Balkan wars. But in reality his policy was due to a secret pact with Germany and had no other purpose than promoting the victory of Germany, because the triumph of Prussianism, in the King's opinion, was the only possible opportunity for him to impose on Greece an absolute monarchy.

We have proof of this. When Bulgaria attacked Servia the crown immediately took a position conflicting with that of the majority of the new parliament, refusing to fulfill the obligations contracted by our alliance with Servia, and thus opposing the will of the entire country as expressed through the recent election. The King told me at that time that he did not consider himself bound to abide by the wishes of the people. He said that whenever an important international matter came up for decision he reserved the right to impose upon the nation his personal view-point, claiming that he was responsible to God only.

It is quite obvious that such an attempt to establish in Greece the principle of monarchy by divine right is doomed to failure at a time when that very principle is abolished in Russia.

America's Part in Conflict.

Furthermore, the victory over Russian absolutism and militarism which will be more decisive and more complete now, owing to the immense material and moral resources thrown in the balance by the great American republic, will not only result in the miserable failure of the attempt made by King Constantine, but we believe and hope will also demolish in Germany to its very foundations, the antiquated institution of autocracy, which is incompatible with modern civilization and with the ideals that gave birth to the great North American republic.

Allow me to add that the entrance of the United States into the war against the Central Powers and the noble words uttered by the President in Congress make it certain for us that the peace that will follow the victory will give birth to a new political world, in which the right of self-government will be guaranteed to every people. The league of democratic nations will attain the ideal of universal peace and eradicate forever the destructive agency now ravaging humanity.

SUPPORTERS OF T. R. ARE OUSTED BY PROGRESSIVES

National Committee Elected to Succeed Body That Voted for Amalgamation With Republicans.

CONVENTION HERE ENDS

Party Reorganized in Favor of Nationwide Prohibition and Woman Suffrage.

The Progressive national convention, after a three-day session at the Planters Hotel, adjourned yesterday. It completed plans for the reorganization of the party, amalgamated with the Prohibition party, and adopted a platform declaring in favor of nation-wide prohibition, woman suffrage and a program of social legislation.

Yesterday's session of the convention was devoted wholly to speeches by Miss Mabel Vernon, secretary of the Woman's party; William W. Mills of California, a Socialist, described by the Progressives as one who did not wish to tear down the American flag, and Chauncey Ives Filley of St. Louis, former Republican boss of Missouri.

Filley, 87 years old, was the center of attraction at the convention. He has been identified with the party several years, and declared that he was a Progressive even before the Republican party came into being in 1860.

Matthew Hale of Boston was elected chairman of the Progressive National Committee; F. H. Chase of New York, secretary, and A. H. Hopkins of New Jersey, treasurer. The convention elected a new national committee to succeed the national committee which, in Chicago last June voted to amalgamate the party with the Republicans to try to elect Charles E. Hughes President.

The ousting of the earlier committee removed from the party all of the elements controlled by former President Theodore Roosevelt, who was the founder of the party, and George W. Perkins of New York, who provided most of the money for its campaigns.

The Progressive leaders who were here for the convention believe that the newly organized party, co-operating closely with the Prohibitionists of the United States, will be able by its influence to control the presidential nominations of the Republican and Democratic parties in 1920, and also compel the controlling parties to enact the legislation demanded by the Progressives.

SPANISH PREMIER DEFINES COUNTRY'S POSITION AS TO WAR

we will see a new Spain rising from the destruction inevitable to this conflict."

"Your Excellency spoke of new and enlarged relations with the New World. Does this refer to relations with the United States?"

"Most assuredly it does," he replied. "I am glad to say that our relations with the great republic of North America were never more cordial than they are at present. But it seems to me there is something more than a platonic cordiality lying ahead of the two nations which lie closest to each other across the Atlantic. After all, it cannot be overlooked that we are of common stock. There are ties of birth and blood between Spain and America as vital as the ties of language. And beside that, remember that Spain is the westernmost nation of Europe, reaching out into the Atlantic toward America, her ports lying closest to the ports of America, and offering the shortest and most natural highway, not only between America and Spain, but also between America and the whole continent of Europe.

"America and Spain are nearest in birth, nearest in geographical proximity, and they should strengthen their relations together for the great era of reconstruction and revival which lies ahead of them when this world-tragedy of war is over."

Convicts Are Loyal.

AUBURN, N. Y., April 14.—The 1200 convicts in Auburn Prison, representing 30 nationalities, have passed resolutions saying they desired "to let it be known that they would support loyally the Government in this crisis and if deemed best by those in authority were ready to enlist and bear arms on land or sea in defense of the American flag and for democracy against autocracy."

To help the work of recruiting for the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps, the Big Four Route will permit recruiting officers to display their regulation posters in waiting rooms in all stations of that system. The Big Four Route has prohibited the display of posters in stations for many years and officials of the road feel that now is a good time to step in and help Uncle Sam in getting soldiers, sailors and marines.

WILL TRY TO RAISE $16,000 A YEAR FROM WASTE PAPER

Teachers Will Ask Pupils to Help in Plan to Aid Red Cross.

The Teachers' Benevolent Annuity Association has started a campaign to collect, with the help of public school children, $16,000 worth of waste paper a year, half of which sum will be given to the American Red Cross and the other half to help support former teachers.

Teachers are asked to persuade their pupils each to bring to school an average of one pound of waste paper a week. To each teacher who co-operates in the effort, the association will present a United States flag for the school room. The committee on paper collection is composed of W. A. Goalby, E. H. Christie, J. J. Sexton and W. J. Stevens.

New Photographic Process.

LINKOPING, Sweden, April 14.—A new dry bath for chlorium-bromide paper, which, according to its discoverer, reduces from 20 minutes to ½ minute the time required for brown-toning, was demonstrated at the annual meeting here of the Swedish Photographers' Union.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples Are Impurities Seeking an Outlet Through Skin Pores.

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out, but in many instances more toxins and impurities are created than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.—ADV.

VEILED PROPHET QUEEN IN "JUNIOR FOLLIES"

Miss Mary D. Jones to Appear in Play at Odeon Friday and Saturday.

Miss Mary D. Jones, of 45 Portland place, the reigning Veiled Prophet Queen, will be one of the stars of the "Junior Follies," which will be presented at the Odeon Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday matinee, by the Junior League, an organization of 165 society girls, who co-operate in giving their time and service in aiding any recognized charity.

She will appear as the bride in "The Fox-Trot Wedding," the principal comedy in the "Follies." Her Veiled Prophet Queen's gown will also serve as her "wedding gown." Arthur Hickman will be the bridegroom and Francis Canfield the parson. Mrs. Pelham Turner and Dorothy Tweedy will be maids of honor. There will be 20 bridesmaids, 40 groomsmen and 20 flower girls.

Will Represent Columbia.

In the grand finale, which will be a chorus of nations, each girl wearing the native costume of the particular country, Miss Jones will represent "Columbia."

"The Junior Follies" is a sprightly three-act combination of songs and dances by a hundred of the debutantes and young beaus of the season. Dinnie MacDonald is the general director and has been rehearsing his principals and chorus for the last two months.

"The Follies" will open with a chorus of 80 voices, which will be followed by a "wine song" by Andrew Duncan and chorus of ballet in balloon costume and show girls in evening dress and 16 waiters and dancers. Ann Benoist sings to 40 chorus men, "I Want a Man to Love Me," while Dinnie MacDonald sings to 40 girls, "The Only Way." The entire chorus sings "This Must Be Love."

The "skating chorus," with dance movements resembling the graceful swaying of the body of a skater, is presented by Misses Lorna Tweedy, Margaret Wright, Marie Church, Isabel Capen, Marie Wright, Frances Reid Jones, Mrs. Stuart G. Stickney, and William Luytles, William McCandless, Dan Jones, George O'Neil, Jeffery Kimball, Marion Niedringhaus and Arthur Hickman.

Miss Edith Whittemore will present an Oriental dance, while Mrs. James Pratt and Pelham Turner will present "Rendezvous," a bewitching dance duo.

The Junior League work shop is in a room in the Children's Hospital and they supply the convalescents at the Barnes Hospital with work during the convalescing period. The patients in doing this work are under the direct supervision of the medical staff of Barnes Hospital. The work consists of weaving and making of cement window boxes, flower pots and such articles.

The lunch room is in the Neighborhood House, where the league daily supplies luncheons to children of the poor attending one of the public and one of the parochial schools in the neighborhood of Nineteenth street and Franklin avenue, at 5 cents a luncheon. The luncheon consists of soup, hot meat, bread and potatoes or some other vegetable. The first month the Junior League lunch room was opened they supplied 1800 children with lunch, and after that an average of 80 children a day.

The Ambulance Corps of the Junior League is another department that gives material assistance to the free clinic at the Barnes Hospital, and children who are sent to the Children's Hospital for treatment, when released from the hospital, are placed in the direct charge of a member of the Ambulance Corps. It is the duty of the member to see that children return to the hospital for treatment at the time specified by the attending physician. The Ambulance Corps members accomplish this by sending automobiles for the children or those who drive their own cars, go after the children and personally take them to the hospital. This service, the medical staff at the Barnes Hospital say, is invaluable, in that it many times restores the child to absolute perfect physical condition, whereas if the case was neglected the child might be permanently crippled or its health impaired. They also have a very active Flower Committee, and Blind Committee to do effective social service work.

WAR HAS FILLED SPAIN WITH HUNGARIAN MUSICIANS

Gypsies Driven Out of France Comprise Some of the Most Famous Bands in Europe.

MADRID, Spain, April 14.—One of the unexpected results of the war for Spain is to fill the country with music, from the bands and orchestras of Hungarian Gypsies driven out of France and taking refuge here. These bands are among the most famous in Europe. They are usually located at Paris, Monte Carlo, Nice and other centers of gay life. But when the war began these players, being enemy Hungarians, had to get out of France or be interned as enemy prisoners. Going back to Hungary meant shouldering a rifle and laying down the violin, which is not to the taste of these Gypsies. And so they all migrated westward into Spain, adding to the musicians already here and literally filling the country with music.

The Gypsies of the East fit in well with those of Spain, who are still here as a relic of the days of the Moors. One of the features of all the grand entertainments now is to have one of the Hungarian Gypsy bands, an Austrian-Polish singer and a Spanish Gypsy dancer, usually the fiery queen of the Spanish Gypsies. Pastor Imperio, who married the great Spanish bullfighter, Guylo—a queer combination, the queen of the Gypsies and the king of the bullfighters.

THOMAS MOTT OSBORNE TO BE LUNCHEON GUEST HERE FRIDAY

Former Sing Sing Warden to Address the Civic League; Governor May Be Present.

The members of the State Prison Board, W. R. Painter, Henry Andrea and J. Kelly Pool, together with various officials of penal institutions, have accepted the invitation of the Civic League to be present at a luncheon Friday at the Mercantile Club in honor of Thomas Mott Osborne, former Warden of Sing Sing Prison. Gov. Gardner has stated that he probably will be present.

The guests are to discuss with Osborne informally his attitude on prison problems.

Osborne will address the Civic League at the annual dinner on Friday evening at the City Club.

The Governor has invited Osborne, through the league, to Jefferson City as the guest of the Prison Board to go through the State Prison and give his ideas of needed improvements there.

Few Drops When Corns Hurt, Pain Stops! Corns Lift Out

Don't let corns ache twice! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers—Here's magic!

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without any pain.

This drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted off with the fingers.

Freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels them without any irritation.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards.

Women! Keep freezone on your dresser and apply a few drops whenever a corn begins aching. Pain stops, corn goes! —ADV.

ALKALI IN SOAP BAD FOR THE HAIR

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

FOOD SCARCITY DUE TO WAR IS LEAST FELT IN ITALY

Supplies Hardly Dearer Than Before the Conflict in Country Towns and on Farms.

ROME, April 14.—After two years of war, Italy continues the cheapest country in which to live of all those engaged in the present struggle.

In the larger cities the housekeeper's menu has become limited by Governmental decree forbidding the sale of meats and pastries on certain days of the week, but otherwise the cost of food has hardly doubled. In the country towns and on the farms, little or no attention is paid to such restrictions and there food is scarcely dearer than before the war except for meat, sugar and coffee. While only brown bread may be sold, its price is 5 cents a pound, the Government shouldering the increased cost of wheat.

The difficulties of housekeeping have become such in the large cities that sugar, eggs and other articles cannot be obtained by family cooks, unless some member of the servant's family has political influence. For this reason it is not unusual to see diplomats, Ambassadors, Ministers, Consuls and other foreign officials going to market and carrying home their own packages, since the storekeepers dare not refuse them the articles refused the servants.

Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page has been one of the persons in Rome to try to solve the flour, ham and sugar problem by making an importation from the United States. At present his is the only family of the American colony in Italy which has as much as a barrel of sugar on hand.

WORK BEGINS ON OPEN-AIR THEATER IN FOREST PARK

Will Be Dedicated June 4 With Opera "Aida" for Ad Convention Delegates.

SEATS FOR 9260 PERSONS

First 40 Rows Will Be Orchestra Chairs and 20 of Bleacher Type.

Construction has commenced on the permanent open-air municipal theater, which will occupy the site of the "As You Like It" production in Forest Park, and which will be dedicated with an outdoor production of the opera "Aida," on the night of June 4, as the opening entertainment provided for the annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

The natural amphitheater, sloping down to the River des Peres, is being graded and will be paved with a floor of concrete. Seats to the number of 9260 will be provided, the first 40 rows of removable orchestra chairs and the last 20 of stationary seats of the bleacher type. Back of the seats will be a promenade and around the rear will run a parapet wall, with pillars carrying lights. The ticket offices will be of ornamental design, and inclosing the amphitheater will be a fence of wire, with concrete posts.

The expense of construction is borne by the Advertising Club of St. Louis, the St. Louis Style Show, which will hold its semi-annual pageant here next August, and the Park Department. The St. Louis Grand Opera Committee will expend about $5000 on stage and scenic construction. There are already at hand 14 permanent dressing rooms.

The production of "Aida" as an entertainment feature of the advertising men's convention was suggested by Guy Golterman, who, as a member of the Grand Opera Committee, has for years been active in operatic promotion here. A sumptuous presentation is promised, with an orchestra of 100, a chorus of several hundred, a director of national reputation, famous stars in the cast and costumes and settings supplied by the Metropolitan, Chicago and Boston-National grand opera companies. The first performance will be under the auspices of the convention, and during the week three other performances of the opera will be sponsored by the Grand Opera Committee.

Duplicate Copies of Special Music. Reproduced by our new process, cost half of regular price. Phone Ross-Gould List and Letter Co., 10th and Olive.

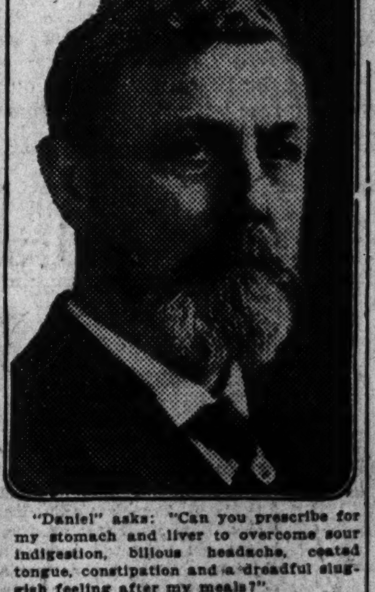
The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker



The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Daniel" asks: "Can you prescribe for my stomach and liver to overcome sour indigestion, bilious headache, coated tongue, constipation and a dreadful sluggish feeling after my meals?"

Answer: For such a condition as you describe I advise cardiol tablets, a particularly good formula for sluggish liver, constipation, etc., when sour risings are noted after meals. It is better than calomel and has no bad after-effect.

"A Fat Woman" asks: "Would you please prescribe a safe reducing remedy for too much fat?"

Answer: At this season many fat people suffer greatly as you do, and to all I recommend that they reduce with five-grain arbolone tablets, the most successful and convenient prescription I know of. Druggists supply in sealed tubes, with full directions.

"Miss O. M." asks: "I have pimples, oily skin and suffer from constipation, headache, and never feel strong and well. Please prescribe for me."

Answer: You should overcome constipation and cleanse the system of accumulated poisons by taking three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) for several weeks or more. These tablets are very beneficial, especially in hot weather, as they have a tendency to cool the blood and improve its quality.

"Fern" writes: "I have suffered with a bad cough for some time, and I am also weak and tired most of the time, which I think is due to the severe coughing. Can you give me a remedy?"

Answer: Yes, your weakness is due to the coughing, but you should be well relieved by using the following: Get a 1½-oz. package of essence mentho-laxene and make according to directions on the bottle, then take a teaspoonful every hour or two until the cough is cured. This makes a full pint of the very best and safest cough syrup. If your druggist does not have mentho-laxene, have him order it for you of the wholesale firm.

"Miss Constance" asks: "I am very thin and bloodless and want to increase my weight about 30 pounds. Please tell me what method to pursue?"

Answer: A regular and persistent use of three-grain hypo nuclane tablets will usually produce an increase of weight by aiding nutrition and building up the flesh tissues. Scores of patients have reported increases of from 10 to 40 pounds from the use of these tablets. Full directions come with each sealed package.

"Poorly" writes: "Being past middle age, and observing that my nervous system is in bad shape, I write for a prescription. I do not gain strength from my food, am weak, listless, forgetful, sleepless at times, tired and unable to act the part of a strong man of health, such as I was at one time."

Answer: Get from a well-stocked pharmacy a sealed tube of three-grain cadomene tablets, which are especially made for those needing a strong, harmless, rejuvenating tonic. Astonishing and pleasing results follow and life and hope are renewed.

"Essex" writes: "What should I do to relieve a severe case of kidney and bladder disease? Have depression, fever, chills, pains like rheumatism and soreness in region of bladder."

Answer: For such symptoms as you describe I prescribe my favorite formula under the name of balmwort tablets. This is a splendid efficacious remedy for such abnormal conditions. Begin their use as per directions on each sealed tube.

Mrs. X. asks: "My scalp itches terribly, is feverish and a great amount of oily dandruff is present. What is good for this?"

Answer: First shampoo the hair and then apply plain yellow minyol about once a week as per directions. This relieves the itching, overcomes the dandruff and makes the hair beautifully glossy and vigorous. Obtain in 4-oz. jars of druggists.

"Painful" writes: "I received so much benefit in one of your prescriptions for nervousness. I am now suffering with facial neuralgia and rheumatic pains. What do you advise?"

Answer: If constipated take 3-grain sulpherb tablets. You may get immediate relief by applying pine-o-latum once or twice daily to the parts affected.

Nuxated Iron Should Be Used in Every Hospital and Prescribed by Every Physician

Says Dr. Howard James, Formerly Resident Physician of New York City Hospital and Assistant Physician The Manhattan State Hospital of New York.

It quickly enriches the blood, strengthens the nerves and puts most astonishing youthful power and health into the veins of both men and women. It often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down folks 100 per cent in two weeks' time.

Opinions of Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York; Dr. A. J. Newman, and other physicians who have tested Nuxated Iron in their own private practice.

In a very interesting and instructive discourse on the great value of plenty of iron in the blood, Dr. Howard James, formerly Resident Physician of New York City Hospital and Assistant Physician The Manhattan State Hospital of New York, said:

"A patient of mine remarked to me (after having been on a six-weeks' course of Nuxated Iron):

"'Say, Doctor, that there stuff is like magic.'

"Previous to using Nuxated Iron, I had been prescribing the various mineral salts of iron for years, only to meet complaints of discolored teeth, disturbed digestion, etc., when I came across Nuxated Iron, an elegant, ingenious preparation containing organic iron, which has no destructive action on the teeth—no corrosive effect on the stomach, and which is readily assimilated into the blood and quickly makes its presence felt by increased strength, snap and staying power.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron.

"As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength-builders. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases, and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble and other dangerous maladies. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more or less than a weakened condition brought on by a lack of iron in the blood.

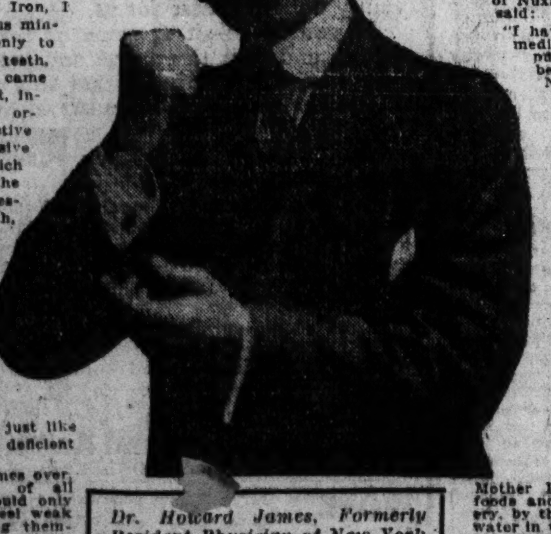
"If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. From my own experience with Nuxated Iron I feel it is such a valuable remedy that it should be kept in every hospital and prescribed by every physician in this country."

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician, who has studied both in this country and great European medical institutions, was asked what he thought of Dr. James' remarks. In reply, he said: "I fully agree with Dr. James. People need more iron. There can be no strong, healthy iron men and beautiful, healthy women without iron. Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of twenty and as full of health, strength and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—Nuxated Iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in; now at 50, after taking Nuxated Iron, a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth."



Dr. Howard James, Formerly Resident Physician of New York City Hospital and Assistant Physician The Manhattan State Hospital of New York tells physicians he believes that more Nuxated Iron should be prescribed to meet the great problem of iron-deficiency with its attendant symptoms of weakness, nervousness, lack of vitality, paleness, and general rundown conditions.

WARNS AGAINST USE OF ORDINARY METALLIC IRON so commonly taken by most people

Dr. A. J. Newman, formerly House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on the value of Nuxated Iron, said: "This remedy has proven through my own test of it to excel any preparation I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders. The manufacturers are to be congratulated in having given to the public a long-felt want, a true tonic supplying iron in an easily digested and assimilated form. A true health-builder in every sense of the word."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, was also asked what he thought of Nuxated Iron. In reply, Dr. Jaques said:

"I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron, I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find a most remarkable and wonderfully effective health remedy."

The next to be consulted was Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, who said:

"I heartily concur in all that Dr. James has said, only in some respects I would go further. Dr. James forgot to mention how foods lose their iron value by improper methods of cookery. In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the wastepipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss. Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful health and strength to a ripe age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co. and all good druggists.

SOCIALISTS REFER WAR RESOLUTIONS TO MEMBERSHIP

Declaration Modifying Earlier Action, Signed by 60 Delegates, Expected to Be Adopted.

8-DAY CONVENTION ENDS

Attempt by Progressive Members to Liberalize Party Platform Is Voted Down.

The emergency national convention of the Socialist party, called particularly to adopt resolutions defining its attitude on war and militarism, held its final session at the Planters Hotel yesterday, at which a platform was approved. The convention was in session eight days.

The intention of the Socialist leaders in calling the convention was to have it held before the special session of Congress to vote on the resolution for war with Germany. The action of the President in advancing the call for the special session of Congress resulted in a declaration that a state of war exists before the convention met.

Although the convention several days ago adopted resolutions criticising the Government for entering the war and protesting strongly that the war was brought on by the capitalistic classes, Socialist leaders declared yesterday that these resolutions would be rejected by the members of the party and that a much milder declaration of war policy, written by John Spargo of New York and indorsed by 60 other delegates, would be adopted by referendum vote.

To Take Referendum on War.

The resolutions adopted by the convention and the Spargo declaration will be submitted by mail referendum to all the members of the party. The declaration receiving the majority of the votes will be declared official.

The Spargo declaration contains no criticism of the Government for declaring war, but states that, as war is now a fact, it is necessary for the Socialists to be on guard so the rights and liberties of the people may be protected against reactionary encroachments, and that an early peace upon a democratic basis, advantageous to the international working class, may be made. A demand was also made that the Government adopt conscription for wealth, if conscription should come, and that there should be no interference with the freedom of speech, the press or of assemblage.

Many of the Socialist leaders signed the Spargo declaration, intended to take the teeth out of the earlier resolution, which was much criticised on account of its opposition to the Government. This resolution was declared by many to bear the stamp of disloyalty, and a copy of it was sent by the Federal authorities here to the Attorney-General's office in Washington for an opinion as to whether any action should be taken against those responsible for the document.

There was no radical change in the party platform. An attempt upon the part of the more progressive element of the Socialists to liberalize the platform so that Socialists could vote for other desirable candidates when they had no candidates of their own was defeated.

Every session of the convention was marked by continuous oratory. It was seldom that the chairman could bring any proposition to a vote except by invoking the rule terminating debate. Several propositions brought before the convention, on which no action was taken, were referred to the executive committee. Only about one-third of the delegates remained for the final sessions of the convention.

LIQUOR DEALERS PLAN EARLY CAMPAIGN AGAINST PROHIBITION

Call for Convention, Opening Tuesday, Urges Fight to Keep Missouri Wet in 1918.

A state convention of the retail liquor dealers of Missouri is scheduled to open Tuesday at Moose Hall, Grand avenue and West Pine boulevard. The call sent out by the Liquor Dealers' Benevolent Association of St. Louis says:

"In the year 1918 the voters of Missouri will again be called upon to decide for or against prohibition. Let us prepare for this campaign in time, as delay means danger to the licensed liquor trade. Let us stand united and fight to keep old Missouri from going dry. Let us be willing and ready to enlist and serve for the cause of personal liberty, and let us arrange the future work for the protection of our business at this convention."

PROHIBITION AS WAR MEASURE

Plans for Pressing Action to Be Discussed This Week.

DELAWARE, O., April 14.—Daniel A. Poling, national head of the Christian Endeavor Society, addressing the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association at Ohio Wesleyan University here today, made a plea for "practical patriotism."

"I would like to see our churches set in the middle of potato fields this summer," said Poling, in urging support of the food conservation plans of the Government. He declared that on next Tuesday he would convene in Washington a conference of representative men and women of the country who will discuss plans for pressing prohibition as a war measure.

Corns Loosen Off With Magic "Gets-It"

2 Drops Do the Work, Painlessly.

"I tell you, before I heard of "Gets-It" I used to try one thing after another for corns. I still had them. I used bandages and they made my toe so big it was murder to put on my shoe. I used salves and other things that ate off more of the toe than they did the corn. I'd cut and dig with knives and scissors, but now no more fooling for me. Two drops of "Gets-It" did all the work. It makes the corn shrivel and get so loose that you can just pick it right off with your fingers!"

Corns Drive You Mad? Try "Gets-It" and They'll Peel Right Off!

There has been nothing new discovered for corns since "Gets-It" was born. It's the new way—the common-sense, simple, sure way.

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent on receipt of price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in St. Louis and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., A. P. Bentz, Keiffer Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Lowell Drug Stores.

MINES AS BIG A PROBLEM FOR ENGLAND AS U-BOATS

Sir Edward Carson Says Placing of Them by Submarines Makes Sweeping Difficult.

LONDON, April 14.—Mines laid in the important British shipping lanes by the German U-boats are proving just as serious a problem to the Admiralty as the U-boats themselves. Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, pointed out in a speech this week that "in the olden times the laying of mines was dangerous, but it was nothing then to what it is now, when submarines are employed not only to sink ships, but to lay mines below the surface of the water."

Mines of this character have caused heavy loss in the English Channel since the submarine campaign began Feb. 1, and from the promiscuous way in which these machines were scattered they were very much more difficult to deal with than when placed by surface craft in more or less defined areas.

"A submarine can follow our mine-sweepers," said Sir Edward Carson, and as quickly as we sweep up mines they can lay new ones without our knowing or suspecting. Do not underestimate the danger and difficulties of that operation. Necessarily, this practice involves the navy in a gigantic work to insure even comparative immunity. Complete immunity cannot in the circumstances be expected."

Submarine mines of this character, freshly laid, were swept up in the path of the American liner St. Louis. Similar mines, from which it had a providential escape, were found at a place where the St. Louis was anchored for several hours. During the last two months of ruthless submarining, three British destroyers have been sunk in the English Channel by mines.

POSSIBLE EFFECT OF RUSSIAN REVOLT IN JAPAN DISCUSSED

Leaders Consider Whether Japanese Will Not Seek Extension of Political Rights.

TOKIO, April 14.—What effect the Russian revolution will have on the people of Japan is a question which is seriously occupying the leaders of this country. The question is one of special significance at this time because the constitutional rights of Parliament constitute the great issue of the new elections which will be held April 20.

There are no indications here of the existence of a revolutionary movement nor do the representative men of the empire believe that one is in any way probable. The only question is how far the Russian overthrow will effect the political thought of the masses of the people and whether the ease with which the Russian revolution was brought about will not lead the Japanese to seek an extension of their political rights. Not a revolution but a more insistent evolution is believed to be within the range of possibility.

What form a popular progressive movement would take in this country is hard to foresee, but its first manifestation would presumably be a demand for an extension of the franchise which is now extremely limited, considering tthe population of the empire. In a recent interview with the Associated Press, Yukio Ozaki, Japan's greatest progressive leader, claimed that the franchise had not been extended because there had been no pressing popular demand.

COUNTERFEITER SUSPECT HELD

Materials Said to Have Been Found in Carrollton, Mo., Home.

CARROLLTON, Mo., April 14.—"Red Buck" Adkins was arrested here by an agent of the United States secret service on the charge of being a counterfeiter. He was taken to Kansas City pending further investigation.

Recent passing of counterfeit nickels, quarters and half dollars led to an investigation here and a secret service agent and Sheriff Calvert went to the cabin of "Red Buck."

"We have come for those dies," the officer said to the wife of "Red Buck." She led them to an old shed, where six dies and a quantity of plaster of paris, an old stove, a kettle and a small quantity of metal were found. She told the officers the dies had all been made by the husband. Adkins was found in jail.

"The Finest Piano in all the Land, Is a MASON & HAMLIN Baby Grand."

THE MASON & HAMLIN "TENSION RESONATOR" used exclusively in MASON & HAMLIN Pianos, acomplishes what has never before been accomplished in a piano. It permanently preserves the "crown" or arch of the sounding board and makes the TONE of the piano indestructible. Not only this, but by putting a tension on the sounding-board it gives greater vitality and responsiveness to the vibrations of the strings, and produces a better quality of tone.

See the Poisons in Your Blood

Mighty Poisons Accumulated Through the Winter Months Mean Disaster and Disease.

Says Rid the System With Sulpherb Tablets Easily.

Springtime always brings with it joy and distress. The distress is in the form of catarrh, neuralgia, rheumatic pains, constipation, inactive kidneys and usually a feverish, sluggish lethargy that is hard to throw off.

Do you remember how grandmother fed you sulphur and molasses every Spring to purify your blood? It was a good, old-fashioned, but nauseous remedy. Now you can take sulphur, cream of tartar and herbs in tablet form. A better remedy, easy and pleasant to take in Sulpherb Tablets. Sold by all druggists. A laxative, blood purifier of unequaled merit for those who are constipated and suffering in any way from such pent-up poisons. Each package is guaranteed to give wonderfully satisfactory results. Be sure you get Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets).—ADVERTISEMENT.

Such Pretty, Fluffy Curls—in Three Hours

There never was a time in the history of the world when women were obliged to use hair tonics and lotions to such an extent as they do at the present time. An expert opinion taken on the subject shows that the trouble may be traced mainly to the use of the heated waving iron, which burns and shrivels up the hair in an alarming manner. The sensible thing to do is to forswear this instrument of torture forever and adopt the new silmerine method instead. This simple method enables one to have the prettiest waves and curls imaginable, with all the appearance of "Nature's own." Silmerine is, of course, perfectly harmless. It leaves no sticky or greasy trace. It also serves as a splendid dressing, imparting a lively luster and wholesome beauty to the hair. And the hair is fine and fluffy when combed out.

If one will procure a bottle of liquid silmerine from the druggist and follow the accompanying directions, she will be simply delighted with the result—which will be in evidence within three hours, and which will last a long time. The liquid is easily applied with a brush.—ADV.

"That Tablespoonful of Duffy's Keeps Us Young, Mother"

"We are nearing the allotted 'three score and ten' but are still strong and healthy; active and happy. Duffy's has certainly done wonders for us.

If you could sit at some of these thousands of family tables, and hear the praise and credit given Duffy's Malt, you would be convinced that this excellent stimulant promotes health and prolongs life.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is both food and tonic. Unprejudiced physicans say so, and prescribe Duffy's in homes and hospitals. It has the virtues of a medicine without the disadvantages of a drug. It acts directly upon the stomach—often called "the seat of life"—to assist digestion and assimilation of food. In this way the body gains strength daily to ward off little ills and to reach the perfect state—Health.

Take a tablespoonful of Duffy's in a half glass of water or milk before meals every day for a month. Watch the results carefully. You, too, will become enthusiastic, and continue its use regularly.

Be sure to insist on Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Authorities will tell you that no other is as pure—no other is made for medicinal use only. It has a record of 60 years of purity and wholesomeness.

"Get Duffy's and Keep Well"

Sold in SEALED BOTTLES ONLY. Beware of imitations.

NOTE Get Duffy's from your local druggist, grocer or dealer. $1.00 per bottle. If he cannot supply you, write us. Send for useful household booklet free.

DUST MAKES SOLDIERS SICK

Illinois Infantrymen Go to Hospital With Lung Irritation.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 14.—Dust infection, which was thought at first to be advanced symptoms of pneumonia, has sent nine members of the Sixth Illinois Infantry, mobilized at Camp Lowden, to the hospital, it was announced today by Maj. F. E. Miller of the Regimental Hospital Corps. Adjutant General Dickson today ordered that the sick soldiers be given fresh milk and beef broth and that electric stoves be installed in the hospital. Hot water bottles and rubber pillows were sent out at the personal expense of Mrs. Lowden, wife of Gov. Lowden.

Transfer of the guardsmen from the dome building, where the dust was thick, to new quarters in the swing pavilion, will, it is declared, remove the danger of more infection.

Most of the men of the regiment are said to be suffering from colds as a result of the dust irritation and infection.

THRIFT GARDEN DAYS FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Literature to Be Sold on Streets to Raise $1000 Campaign Fund.

"Thrift Garden days" will be Friday and Saturday, when the Woman's Council will sell literature relating to Thrift Gardening on the streets to secure $1000 to carry on the Thrift Gardens Campaign, which is part of the St. Louis Clean-up and Paint-up Campaign.

Allen W. Clark, originator of the Thrift Gardens idea, and chairman of the National Clean-up and Paint-up Campaign Bureau, received the following telegram from Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, in regard to the work:

"Without going beyond their dooryards, millions of American women and children can render service to the nation right now as real as that rendered by the soldier on the field of battle. A million gardens planted in the cities, suburbs and country would mean the release of millions of pounds of foods to our allies. Plant now. Get into the game and do your bit to win this war."

The Thrift Gardens Committee has established headquarters at 710 Locust street, where they have listed 5000 vacant lots, and have already established over 100 gardens. Persons desiring to have a Thrift Garden apply to this committee for a lot. The committee then secures the permission of the owner or permission from the real estate agent for the use of the lot as a Thrift Garden, playground or tennis court.

Mrs. Eugene T. Senseney, in co-operation with the Health Department chairman, is of the Fly Extermination Committee, and is doing her part to make St. Louis a flyless town and thus lessen the dangers of disease. The Fly Extermination Committee is paying 10 cents a hundred for April flies. Flies are delivered Saturday at schools, and the children receive coupons which are redeemable at the Laclede Gas Light stations.

ELECTIONS IN AUSTRALIA TO SOLVE PROBLEMS OF MINISTRY

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 14.—Federal elections will take place in Australia early in May owing to the insuperable difficulties of the coalition War Ministry formed by Prime Minister William M. Hughes, a few weeks ago. The Government made this announcement last week. Half the Senate seats, 18, and all the House of Representatives seats will be contested. The enmity of the Caucus or Official Labor party to Mr. Hughes for having proposed conscription last year is the prime cause of the appeal to the country.

This hostility manifested itself in obstructive tactics in the Senate, where, until very lately, the Hughes or coalition forces, were slightly outnumbered by the Caucus forces. In the House, however, the coalition had a considerable numerical advantage. The Caucus members in the Senate would not countenance the coalition ministry's choice of Mr. Hughes, Sir John Forrest, the Federal Treasurer, and Sir William Irvine as Australia's delegates to the Imperial War Council in London; nor would they agree to a prolongation for war reasons of the life of Parliament until after the war. In other ways also they showed bitter opposition to legislation proposed by Mr. Hughes and his following.

The hottest fighting of the campaign is expected to be over the Senate seats. The next House it is thought, will again be pro-Hughes. Each of the six states will elect three Senators. Australian soldiery at the front will have a voice in the election ar was the case over conscription last year.

In general terms, the issues will be Mr. Hughes' war administration, including his advocacy of conscription last year; the attitude of the Official Labor party toward the war and Britain, and Australia's expected part and representation in the War Council.

JOHN G. JOHNSON, WIDELY KNOWN ATTORNEY, DIES AT 76

Philadelphia Lawyer Had Appeared in Many Noted Cases.

PHILADELPHIA, April 14.—John G. Johnson, widely known lawyer, died at his home here today. Death was due to heart disease. He had been ill only a few days, although this fact did not become publicly known until after his death. He was 76 years old.

Johnson was retained, largely by corporations, in many of the great legal cases that have come before the Supreme Court of the United States in the last 20 years. He appeared before the tribunal in the famous Northern Securities case, the Standard Oil Trust case, the United States Steel Corporation suit, now pending, and in all the anthracite coal trust cases that have been instituted in the last 10 years.

He refused positions in Presidential Cabinets and declined offers of appointment to the Supreme bench from Presidents Garfield and Cleveland. During his long career he accepted only one public office, and that was an appointment as a Fairmount Park Commissioner, a purely honoray local position.

Hardly second to his legal prestige was Johnson's standing as an art connoisseur, in the acquisition of noted pictures.

He married late in life and leaves no direct heirs.

NATION-WIDE PROHIBITION URGED AS WAR MEASURE

Telegrams were sent to President Wilson, Gov. Gardner and several Senators by the Citizens' Dry Alliance yesterday, urging that an immediate law be enacted to prohibit the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors during the war, in order to preserve the food supply.

The alliance represents the Anti-Saloon League, the Woman Christian Temperance Union, the Prohibition party, the Missouri Dry Federation, the Missouri Sunday School Association and the Missouri Federation of Ministerial Alliance.

The telegram to Gov. Gardner urged him to be one of the Governors to ask President Wilson to urge the enactment of the law. Telegrams also were sent to Speaker Champ Clark and Senator Morris Sheppard. The telegrams were sent through the secretary, Elmer Clark.

GIRLS! IT'S CHEAP! USE LEMON JUICE TO MAKE A LOTION

Nothing else bleaches the skin so white and beautiful or creates such a clear, spotless complexion.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin bleach and beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. It really will bleach and remove such blemishes as pimples, blackheads, freckles and tan and is the ideal skin softener, smoothener and beautifier which absorbs readily and is not sticky or greasy.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any pharmacy and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this harmless lemon lotion and apply it daily to the face, neck, arms and hands. It really does soften, freshen, bleach and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin.—ADV.

"REPUBLIC, NOT HOME RULE, NEW DREAM OF IRISH"

So Says Mrs. Skeffington, Widow of Man Slain During Revolution in Dublin.

SPEAKER AT THE ODEON

Not Pro-German, She Declares, but Hopes England Will Be Defeated in War.

That Irish patriots are no longer interested in the home rule movement, but desire nothing less than a complete severance of their country from the British empire, is the message brought here by Mrs. Hanna Sheehy Skeffington, widow of F. Sheehy Skeffington, Irish publicist, who was executed during the Easter Week revolt in Dublin last year. She will address a meeting tonight at the Odeon on "British Militarism in Ireland." Since Christmas she has been speaking in American cities to raise funds for Irish relief and to spread the story of what she terms British atrocities in Ireland, the truth concerning which, she maintains, the English Government has suppressed.

"We know now," she told a Post-Dispatch reported, "that home rule was merely an expedient to keep us quiet for 30 years. The Ulster rebellion was only a pretext to postpone granting home rule. If an election were held now the Parliamentarians, headed by John Redmond, would go down in defeat and the Sinn Feiners would sweep Ireland.

Demand Irish Republic.

"We demand an Irish republic, as independent in Europe as Holland or Switzerland. Our revenues are larger than Norway's. Before the war we paid annual taxes of $15,00,000; now we pay $45,000,000, part of which maintains a British army of 150,000 men who are keeping Ireland down under martial law."

Mrs. Skeffington asserts that if Britain attempts to enforce conscription in Ireland the country will revolt, and asserts that there has been virtually no recruiting on the island since the Easter execution.

Mrs. Skeffington escaped in disguise from England with her 7-year-old son, Eugene, after the authorities refused to grant her a passport on account of her refusal to sign an agreement not to discuss the war or Ireland, even in private conversation. Her flight was discovered when she was half way across the Atlantic and the English authorities asked that she be detained at Ellis Island. But the American officials declined to act. She has been notified, she says, that if she returns to the British Isles she will be interned until the end of the war. This is her first visit to this country. Her husband was here in 1915 and lectured in St. Louis during November of that year.

"I am not pro-German," she explained, "but I am anti-British. I am neutral to the extent that I don't care who defeats England in the war, which I hope will reduce her to the status of a small nation. Of course, we don't want Ireland to belong to Germany, but we have as much right to enlist the sympathy of England's enemies as you had to seek that of France in the Revolutionary War."

Brother a British Army Officer.

Mrs. Skiffington's brother, Eugene Sheehy, is fighting in the British army as a Leiutenant of the Dublin Fusileers. She referred to him bitterly as "a dupe of John Redmond" and "a blot on the family escutcheon."

"I want to impress on the American people," she continued, "that Britain is a hypocrite when she asserts her interest in small nations, and that she has committed in Ireland atrocities just as terrible as those of the Germans in Belgium.

"Although my husband took no part in the Dublin uprising, he being a pacificist, he was arrested on Easter Tuesday and shot without trial the next day at Porto Bello barracks. For weeks I could get no information as to what had been his fate. He had fallen under suspicion because of his opposition to conscription. The British officer who caused his death, and the deaths of two other editors who were killed with him, was found guilty of murder by a court martial, but was saved from paying the penalty by a verdict that he was insane. But all the same he was promoted from Captain to Major. His name was Bowen Colthurst. He is now at a private sanitarium in England and will no doubt experience a speedy recovery after the war.

"While searching for my husband after his arrest, I witnessed much of the street fighting, in which 20,000 British soldiers, later reinforced to 40,000, required a week to conquer 1000 Irish volunteers. I saw the barricades, the killing of men, the shelling of houses.

"In North King street, one of the poor quarters, 14 noncombatants, boys and men, were shot down and their bodies secretly buried in the cellars and back yards. Weeks afterward a Coroner's jury brought in a verdict of willful murder against members of the North Staffordshire Regiment, but the military officers refused to surrender them. Fifty murders of civilians occurred in Dublin during the week, and 300 houses, including my own, were robbed of pictures, laces and, in some instances, of money.

Priest Shot Down, She Says.

"Father Waters, a priest, was shot down as he came out of his church. The soldiers ransacked the convents, turning the nuns' cells topsy turvy on the pretext that they were searching for Sinn Feiners. Requiem masses for the dead Irish volunteers were forbidden and the order was enforced by the bayonet. I have seen many advertisements inserted in the papers by mothers and wives seeking information about missing sons and husbands, with the notation, 'Last seen on Easter Monday.'"

Mrs. Skeffington is a graduate of Dublin University, where she was in the same classes with her husband and Patrick Pearse, president of the Irish Republic proclaimed at the time of the insurrection, who was one of those put to death. She attended the Sorbonne in Paris and three German universities and was a teacher of French and German in the Dublin schools. She succeeded her husband as editor of the Irish Citizen, a suffrage and labor paper, and is president of the Irish Woman's Franchise League.

$7,000,000,000 FOR WAR UNANIMOUSLY VOTED BY THE HOUSE

Revenue Measure to Be Taken Up Tomorrow in Senate, Where It Is Assured of Overwhelming Majority—Probably Will Be Signed by President by Middle of Week—Foreign Loan Limited to Allies During Period of Hostilities.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Without a dissenting vote and amid plaudits of members and the galleries, the House late today passed the $7,000,000,000 war revenue authorization measure. One member, Representative London of New York, voted "present." He is the only Socialist in Congress.

The bill authorizes $5,000,000,000 in bonds, of which $3,000,000,000 will be loaned to entente nations, and the issuance of treasury certificates for $2,000,000,000, ultimately to be met by reased taxation. Passage of the measure never was in doubt ng the two days it was under consideration in the House, and rable action by an overwhelming vote is assured in the Senate, re it will be taken up Monday. It probably will be signed by President by the middle of next week.

Owing to general pairs and absentees, only 389 votes were recorded for the bill, but both Democratic Leader Kitchin and Republican Leader Mann announced that all of their members would have voted affirmatively if they had been present. The formality of a roll call would have been dispensed with if several members who voted against the war resolution had not insisted upon having the opportunity of recording themselves in favor of providing money to carry on hostilities, now that the nation is at war.

Discussion in the House was confined chiefly to proposed amendments. Five of these were adopted, four of which were agreed to by the Ways and Means Committee, and none of which materially changed the intent of the bill's framers.

The two most important amendments, drafted by Representative Lenroot of Wisconsin and accepted by the committee, will confine the proposed $3,000,000 allied loan to countries at war with Germany and permit loans only during the war.

Sale Below Par Prohibited.

Others will prohibit the sale of the United States bonds at less than par, permit the purchase of foreign bonds "at par," and limit the cost of disposing of the $5,000,000,000 worth of bonds to one-tenth of 1 per cent of their total.

Representative Fitzgerald of New York, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, made the proposal to cut in half the cost of disposing of the bonds, originally fixed at one-fifth of one per cent. Kitchin, in charge of the measure, tried to offset the amendment by inserting a provision that the Secretary of the Treasury should expend one-fifth of one per cent "or as much as is necessary," but failed.

A proposal by Representative Moore of Pennsylvania to limit the life of the bonds to 50 years, another by Representative Green of Iowa to create a congressional committee to act with the Secretary of the Treasury and the President in disposing of the bonds, and other proposed amendments similar to Green's were overwhelmingly defeated. Democrats and Republicans alike declared they were satisfied to leave the details to the Secretary and the President.

Any doubts that may have been entertained as to the popularity of the proposed loan to the allies were swept away with the voting down 217 to 3 of a proposal by Representative Towner, made at the outset of the session, to strike out the $3,000,000,000 loan feature, with a view to having it authorized later with provision for congressional participation in administering it. Towner was not opposed to the loan, but he drew the fire of the bill's suporters quite as much as if he had been.

Rainey Attacks Proposal.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, ranking Democratic member of the Ways and Means Committee, aroused the floor and galleries to cheers by fervently denouncing the proposal and picturing France, a friend in need of the United States, suffering while Congress quibbled over terms of the loan. Representative Fitzgerald followed him with the declaration that the question of maintaining American rights and not the possibility of the loan being returned was the question that faced Congress.

Representative Mann pointed out that this country could not help the allies with men or naval equipment now, but that it could help with money and that it should do it.

Chairman Simmons of the Senate Finance Committee will take the bill up with his committee Monday, and since there is no opposition to it, he expects to report it to the Senate at once. Leaders expect to keep it in the unfinished business until passed. There will be no great opposition on the floor, although there may be some debate.

Consideration of the ways of producing new taxes to meet in whole or in part the treasury certificates for $2,000,000,000 will begin in the Ways and Means Committee next week.

Bill Debated Through Day.

The $7,000,000,000 war revenue measure was taken up this morning under an agreement to begin discussion of amendments under the five-minute rule. General debate closed last night.

An amendment by Representative Shackleford of Missouri to levy an additional income tax with a view to preventing any net income of over $50,000 annually to any person was ruled out of order on objection by Democratic Leader Kitchin.

"France, 140 years ago, when our credit was gone," declared Representative Rainey, amid applause, "loaned us millions and millions without discussion or debate. The thing to do is to pass this bill and pass it quickly and say to the world that we propose to help our friends and to do it quickly."

Representative Fitzgerald aroused great enthusiasm by declaring he favored making the loan at once. Not because of a desire to help another nation, but to help maintain the rights of the United States.

"Whatever we may owe to France is not enough to justify our entering this war," he said. "We have been dragged into this war by another nation's violation of our rights. I have no sympathy with the statement that we may or may not get our money back. We may or we may not, but that is of no difference."

Representative Mann said: "We are not prepared to place men in the field. We are not prepared to do much with our navy, not because we have no navy, but because of lack of an opportunity to use it. But there is one way we can engage in the war. That is to help finance those who are fighting our enemies.

"This proposed appropriation is for $3,000,000,000. I doubt not that before a year that amount will be doubled. Let us hope that we can end the war by extending our credit. Our highest duty is to give aid to those who are fighting our enemies. I hope and pray that aid thus given will be effectual enough to end the war before we send our boys into the trenches."

"Let's Get Into Action."

Representative Madden of Illinois, said he did not care whether the $3,000,000,000 loaned the allies was paid back or not.

"For God's sake, let's get into action," he cried. "Either through the armies now in the field or in our own army, and everybody knows we can't get an adequate army for a year. The time for talk is past and the time for action is here."

Representative Cannon of Illinois said that personally his sympathies would be more with Russia than with the other Governments among the allies because, while other great Powers during the American Civil War wavered as to interference in behalf of the Southern Confederacy, Russia sent her fleet to New York and by its presence aided preservation of the Union.

Representative Graham of Pennsylvania agreed with Representative Montague that he would like to say to France that America would make her a loan with remission of interest and with the principal payable at convenience to show the world America was prepared to set a new standard among the nations of the earth and demonstrate that republics are not ungrateful.

Representative Mann warned Congress the United States might be called on to spend vastly more money than proposed today and that the United States might have to raise great sums to finance the

SUFFRAGE SECRETARY QUITS TO CARE FOR ADOPTED BABY

Still Interested in "Cause," but Added Duties Keep Her at Home, Says Mrs. H. L. Wichmann.

Mrs. Herman L. Wichmann of 3229 South Jefferson avenue, who as Miss Pearl McCoy was secretary of the Republican City Committee prior to her marriage two years ago, has resigned as secretary of the St. Louis Equal Suffrage League because of added home duties occasioned by the adoption three weeks ago of a 3-year-old orphan girl.

Mrs. Wichmann said she was as interested in suffrage as ever, but that she did not feel she had time for the duties of secretary.

The baby was obtained from the German Orphans' Home through the Rev. L. Buchheimer, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, of 2817 Utah street, who knew of Mrs. Wichmann's desire to adopt a baby. Mrs Wichmann is a cousin of President Wilson and her husband is brother-in-law of Mayor Kiel.

ECCENTRIC FRENCH AVIATOR TAKES A PECULIAR REVENGE

Navarre in Speeding Auto Runs Down Paris Policemen, Sending Five to Hospital.

PARIS. April 14.—Sub-Lieutenant Jean Navarre, famous French aviator, is being sought by police on a warrant charging him with attempted homicide. Since he was wounded severely last June, Navarre, according to the Petit Parisien, has acted in a most eccentric manner, but was punished lightly in view of the splendid services he had rendered his country.

Recently he had a dispute with the police in which he was worsted. This appeared to anger him and a few nights ago he set out in an automobile and speeded through the principal streets of Paris knocking down every policeman he saw. As a result five policemen were taken to hospitals and several others were bruised severely.

Navarre is officially reported to have brought down at least 11 German machines. Last fall he was awarded the Grand Gold Medal of the French Aero Club.

Sweeney is leaving for the United States on indefinite leave of absence.

"I shall see what I can do in America toward helping out the recruits and training them, but I may return to fight with my deatchment," he said today.

FLYERS TO DROP WILSON'S SPEECH ON GERMAN CITIES

IN THE TRENCHES ALSO

Complete Translation of War Address Not Printed by German Papers.

By LINCOLN EYRE
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

PARIS, April 14.—The ignorance of the German people as to why the United States entered the world's war against them is to be dispelled by the New York World and the Post-Dispatch, acting in conjunction with the French authorities through the medium of the French aviation corps.

Swarms of aeroplanes will drop hundreds of thousands of copies of President Wilson's address to Congress, printed in Paris in the German language by the World and the Post-Dispatch, under the direction of their correspondents.

These copies will be scattered not only along the trenches of the 600-mile front among the Kaiser's soldiers, but hundreds of thousands of them will be dropped far behind the lines in the great German cities which are within a flying radius.

The Imperial Government has never dared permit a complete exact text of President Wilson's message to be printed in German, jealously guarding from the people that the great American nation was arraigned against Prussian militarism and not against the German people.

The United States Secret Service has discovered that President Wilson's entire message never has been published in Grmany and that the extracts so far printed have been badly garbled. Incidentally, it will be the first time in the world's history that a President's message has been transmitted by aerial service anywhere, and in this case it will be to a foreign and hostile country.

Will Begin in 48 Hours.

Through the courtesy of the French aviation authorities, the New York World and the Post-Dispatch are privileged to carry out the colossal scheme of setting squarely before the German people the naked truth as to the American reasons for going to war. Distribution will begin within 48 hours and will require several days at least and longer if atmospheric conditions are unfavorable for aviation.

The Lafayette escadrille has petitioned for the honor of being the first aerial unit to carry Wilson's message to the Germans. It is expected this request will be granted. Within a few hours from the time the American aviators swoop across the lines scattering pamphlets like leaves innumerable, other machines, piloted by Frenchmen, will be darting over "no man's land" to enable ordinary private soldiers to know what the officers have been striving to keep secret from them.

From what German soldier prisoners have told the French, it is known that the German officers always order troops into dugouts when messages are being scattered, and then, with swords in hand, stand over picked detachments to gather up all missives in sight and burn them. It is further known, however, that thousands of these circulars always fall into the hands of those for whom they are destined and that they peruse them more eagerly since it is forbidden.

To Sweep Into Germany.

In German cities where French aviators have dropped proclamations at night the entire population has been ordered to remain indoors during the morning while the police picked up all the copies in sight, but there, too it is known many leaflets reached their marks.

Every branch of the aviation service will take part in the dash. Patrolling machines will fly low, dropping copies over the first, second and third line trenches and observation machines will continue the distribution throughout the zone lying behind the Kaiser's armies, so that all the soldiers will have a chance to read. Then great bombarding aeroplanes, freighted with the circulars, will sweep by night far into Germany across the Rhine and over a hundred cities and towns, scattering more thousands of pamphlets so that the civilian population, and chiefly the women can read the real truth of the outside world's condemnation of the acts of their ruling class.

GERARD RELATES HIS VERSION OF LAMPPOST STORY

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY

Former Ambassador Says Country Will Not Be Starved to Submissison.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Prominent Democrats from all parts of the country celebrated the 174th anniversay of the birth of Thomas Jefferson at a banquet held here tonight under the auspices of the National Democratic Club. Among the speakers were James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany; United States Senators Ollie James of Kentucky and Key Pittman of Nevada and John W. Davis, Solicitor-General of the Department of Justice. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, brought a message from the President.

"I have learned with deep gratification of the intention of your organization to make its 1000 members available in their respective capacities to support the administration in the conduct of the war," wrote President Wilson. "Certainly this is a time when America must use its force and influence for the vindication of those ideals which give her a pre-eminent place among the nations of the world."

Gerard said that at the time the Lusitania was sunk an official of the German Government in Berlin (Zimmermann, it is believed), told him that the United States would not "dare to make any move," because there were 700,000 German reservists in America who would rise against this country.

"I told him homething that you may have heard on another occasion about a lamp post," declared the former Ambassador. (According to the now famous story Gerard is said to have replied "that may be true, but there are 700,000 lamp posts in America to which to hang them.") "I told him something more practicable. I said to him: 'Can you point to one single man with an American passport who is serving in your army? There are thousands of men serving in the armies of the allies of American citizenship. But point out to me one with an American passport who is in your army. If you can show me one I will believe then that the German-Americans are with you."

Gerard referred to Sir Roger Casement's activities in Germany.

"I would like to have the Irish-Prussians go with me to the camp at Limburg where the Germans collected 2500 Irishmen and sent Sir Roger Casement to seduce them," said Gerard. "He did succeed in getting perhaps 30 to join the German army, but 2470 remained, as all Irishmen will, true to their oath and the flag they had sworn to serve.

"And I should like to ask this small band of Prussian-Irishmen whether they think they are going to come nearer to home rule for Ireland by supporting the autocracy of Prussia or by getting behind President Woodrow Wilson, who is holding aloft the torch of liberty throughout the world."

The former Ambassador warned Americans against the belief that "either starvation or revolution is going to end this war in our favor."

"The only thing," he declared, "that will liberalize Germany will be revolution. As long as they are ruled by a few, as long as the military spirit prevails, there can be no security and no peace in the world."

Gerard said he had seen things in Germany which "might lead some of the people who still doubt a little in this country to change their minds." He then told of being directed by President Wilson to make a special effort while he was in Germany to secure the return of the Belgians who had been seized and carried away from their country into Germany. Cardinal Farley of New York, he said, also had complained bitterly of the treatment of the Belgians.

"When I spoke of Cardinal Farley to the German authorities and related what he had told me," Gerard declared, "the only answer I received was: 'Why, this is because most of the Belgians are Catholics and the Catholics always stick together.'"

100,000 MEN BY MAY 1 IS NAVY'S AIM IN RECRUITING

Secretary Daniels Hopes to Signalize Anniversary of Dewey's Victory by Announcement.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—One hunder thousand men by May 1 is the recruiting aim set for the navy today by Secretary Daniels. He hopes to signalize the anniversary of Dewey's victory at Manila with the announcement that the enlisted personnel of the navy has reached that figure.

"When we closed the books last night," the Secretary said, "a net gain of 1366 men for the day was registered, the heaviest single day's enlistment on record in the Navy Department—not bad for Friday the 13th.

"The day's enlistments brought the total enlisted strength of the active service, not including reserves or militia who are mobilized and on active duty, up to 68,337, an increase of 6270 since the first of March. This great increase is all the more gratifying because it has been accomplished without in the least departing from the high standards heretofore required.

"There is every indication that the present rate of enlistments will continue—probably increase."

ILLINOIS GUARDSMAN, IN JAIL, KISSES U. S. FLAG HE TORE UP

Private Guarding Bridge at Louisiana Divested of Uniform and May Be Sent to Prison.

LOUISIANA, Mo., April 14.—Private John McCann of B Company, Fifth Illinois Infantry, was arrested this afternoon for pulling down an American flag in front of Police Judge Prettyman's office and tearing it up. He was taken to the jail and divested of his uniform. He was said to be under the influence of liquor. B Company is guarding the Chicago & Alton Railroad bridge across the Mississippi River at this place.

About 20 members of the company this evening went to the jail, where McCann saluted and kissed the flag. The Captain of the company has asked for a dishonorable discharge for McCann. McCann is liable to imprisonment at Leavenworth for from one to 14 years.

MAN ACCUSED OF REVILING PRESIDENT WILSON ARRESTED

Federal Authorities Also Notified of Carpenter's Reckless Talk in Saloon.

Policemen were called to Emil Schnurr's saloon, 4150 North Newstead avenue, at 7:50 last evening, and were told that a customer was reviling President Wilson and exclaiming "To hell with the flag!"

Charles Militzer, 57 years old, of 4457 Kossuth avenue, was pointed out as the person who had been talking recklessly, and he was arrested. His case was booked for police court, but Federal secret service officials also were notified, in case they should wish to bring a more serious charge than that of peace disturbance. Militzer said he was a native of Missouri, and a carpenter.

BRITISH SMASH WAY TO ST. QUENTIN AND LENS ON WIDE LINE

Haig's Men Within Few Hundred Yards of Both Cities on the Hindenburg Line.

MEET STRONG RESISTANCE, THREE VILLAGES TAKEN

Mining Center of Lens Surrounded on Three Sides—Advance Forces Reach Points Three Miles Beyond Vimy Ridge.

LONDON, April 14.—British troops are now within a few hundred yards of the town of St. Quentin. During Saturday, says the official statement from British headquarters in France tonight, Field Marshal Haig's men fought their way south and east of Fayet, one mile northwest of St. Quentin.

The village of Gricourt, one mile north of Fayet, was carried at the point of the bayonet. The Germans are reported to have resisted stubbornly and suffered many killed and wounded, in addition to the loss of more than 400 prisoners.

The mining center of Lens now is virtually surrounded on three sides by the advancing British troops. The town of Lievin, southwest of and adjoining Lens, was captured this morning and the village of Cite St. Pierre, northwest of Lens, also has been taken.

Along the entire front from the Scarpe River to south of Loos, the British have pressed forward and have reached points two to three miles east of Vimy Ridge.

South of the Scarpe River there was heavy fighting in which the Germans employed strong reserve forces. German attacks and counter attacks followed one another at short intervals, but the British troops maintained the positions previously captured and inflicted serious losses on the attackers.

Advance on Wide Front.

The text of the statement reads:

"The town of Lievin, southwest of and adjoining Lens, was captured this morning. Considerable quantities of war material have fallen into our hands. In the afternoon we seized Cite St. Pierre, northwest of Lens, and our troops pressed on along the whole front from the Scarpe River to the south of Loos and reached points two to three miles east of Vimy Ridge.

"South of the Scarpe heavy fighting, in which the enemy employed strong reserves, has taken place all day. Attacks and counter attacks followed each other at short intervals. Our troops everywhere maintained the positions previously captured and inflicted serious losses on the enemy.

"We made further progress during the day on a wide front north and south of the Bapaume-Cambrai road. Our troops fought their way forward during the day south and east of Fayet to within a few hundred yards of the town of St. Quentin and carried the village of Gricourt at the point of the bayonet. The enemy resisted stubbornly and, in addition to the loss of 400 prisoners, suffered severely in killed and wounded.

"An attempted hostile counter attack was broken up by our artillery.

"Yesterday and during the night of April 12 large quantities of explosives were dropped by our airplanes with good results on many stations, ammunition depots and airdromes, and hostile infantry and convoys were attacked successfully with machine gun fire. In the course of the fighting behind the enemy lines, four German machines were brought down and six others were driven down. Twelve of our machines failed to return."

200 Guns Captured.

Reuter's correspondent at army headquarters in France sends the following:

"The number of guns and howitzers captured by the British is now believed to be 200. The loss of these weapons must considerably weaken the German defensive power. Trained teams of artillerymen now accompany the infantry in every advance, in order to make prompt use against their former owners of any guns taken.

"The great batches of prisoners in the cages are causing some annoyance because they disregard entirely their own officers and noncommissioned officers. This absence of discipline is regarded as significant, because nothing like it has been observed before among German prisoners. It seems indicative of a change of mind in the German army. German officers and noncommissioned officers complain that the chief cause of the present disaster has been the difficulty experienced in controlling the men."

"The village of Fayet, one mile northwest of St. Quentin, was captured last night after a sharp fight.

"On the high ground east of Leverguier we captured the important positions of Ascension farm and Grand Priel farm. We also made progress north of the Bapaume-Cambrai road in the direction of Queant.

"North of the Scarpe our constant pressure compelled the enemy to yield further ground. We seized Vimy station, La Chaudiere and the enemy's position at Fosse No. 6 and Buquet Mill between Givenchy-en-Gohelle and Angres.

"The guns taken from the enemy in this area included four howitzers, eight-incners.

"The ground gained in our recent operations now links up with the positions wrested from the Germans in the battle of Loos and include the double Brassier.

Gen. Horne, who is considered the greatest artillery expert in the British army, and who assisted Gen. Nivelle in the successful attack by the French north of Verdun in December last, commands the British forces around Lens where, owing to the natural defenses composed of waste dumps around the mines, the artillery must largely be depended on. Gen. Horne has on his right the army under Major-General E. H. H. Allenby, who has also gained new laurels in this war.

Military Writers Surprised.

These Generals and their colleagues under Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig have accomplished since Monday a work which many military writers expected would occupy a great part of the summer, but the

French Troops Told U. S. Entry Into War Assures Victory

PARIS, April 14.

THE Minister of War, M. Painleve, has sent the following order to Gen. Nivelle, Commander in Chief on the French front:

"In the name of the Government I beg you to communicate by general army order to your troops the entry of the United States on the side of the allies. Have the goodness on this occasion to point out to the mthe unequaled importance of the event, which causes the most pacific democracy in the world to abandon neutrality in order to defend law and liberty; recall to them that more than a century ago Fench and American troops fought side by side in a struggle for the same ideal and cemented the friendship of our two peoples by blood that was shed in a common cause.

"Finally, make them understand that the moral help brought by the United States is accompanied by material assistance, the weight of which in the scale will be decisive and assures to us more than ever the certainty of complete victory."

GERMAN HOWITZERS, CAPTURED BY BRITISH, ARE TURNED ON LENS

City in Mining District Being Swept by Heavy Shells—Teutons Apparently Preparing to Withdraw—English Gunners Show Remarkable Precision and Team Work.

A Staff Correspondent of the Associated Press.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, VIA LONDON, April 14.—Heavy high explosive shells were pouring into Lens late today and were undoubtedly giving impetus to the German plans to fall back from that central mining city, which has been in the hands of the Germans since the autumn of 1914, together with the mineral wealth represented in the surrounding district. Fires in Lens, seen for the first time yesterday afternoon, were smoldering today. There apparently was no general conflagration. Time and time again explosions could be seen within the city.

Lens stretches over several miles, however, and in far distant parts of the city smoke could be observed pouring from tall chimneys, as if the industrial activities of the Germans in the French factories were progressing as usual. British patrols were this afternoon pressing toward the city from all directions.

British in Sight of Douai.

From the northern slopes of Vimy Ridge, recently captured from the Germans, it was possible through the brilliantly clear atmosphere today to see the spires and chimneys of Douai, still a German stronghold. Nearer, Lens seemed to lie almost at the very foot of the ridge, with its suburb, Lievin, sprawling well into the new British lines. Lens presents a striking contrast to the usual gray-white towns of Northern France. It appears in the distance as one great splotch of red—red walls, red roofs, red chimneys—out of which loom the gray walls and gray towers of the cathedral.

Mine towers dot the surrounding country almost as thickly as oil derricks in the petroleum districts of America. Great slag heaps rise here and there like so many Egyptian pyramids. Into and around these red buildings and slag heaps shells exploded throughout the afternoon, throwing up dense clouds of brick-dust which, caught up by the April storm wind, spread a pinkish-yellow pall over the lower sections of the city.

Turn German Guns on Lens.

Above Lens occasional shrapnel shells broke. With the usual British white puff-balls were mingled densely black puffs, the latter being the German 5.9 shrapnel recently captured and turned against the Germans. Several times previously during th[illegible]ar German light field pieces have b[illegible] turned against them, but this was the first time the heavier calibers were loosed.

Some of the points surrounding Lens, which already are occupied by the British, were thorns in the side of these same soldiers during the famous battles of the Loos salient. It was impossible at that time to blow the Germans out of their stronger position. But now this is changed. The difference between the bombardment with which the offensive began last Monday, and that when the British inaugurated the battles of the Somme last July was so great that it is difficult to realize they came from the same army.

At the time set for the Somme bombardment to begin some of the British artillery officers were seeing large shells fired from their guns for the first time. When the battle of Arras began the British officers and gun crews handled the weapons like veterans. Behind them lay six or seven months of constant training, not only in the schools but actually in the field, with the German positions as practice targets.

Months of Constant Training.

All winter long the British guns roared in order that when the offensive began every artilleryman would have a thorough knowledge of the various phases of the modern school of gunnery. The rapidity and precision with which the bombardment was carried out has been the distinct feature of the new success. The small losses suffered were due largely to the co-operation and effective work of the artillery. Every step now made forward finds guns of all calibers merely waiting for the word to place a destructive fire or a protective barrage wherever the infantry desires.

Canadian patrols pressing far east of Vimy Ridge today, rescued from the Germans two British officers of the Royal Flying Corps who were captured five days ago when forced to descend in the German lines. One of them had a fractured leg. The Germans had kept them in a dugout and had given them small bits of food and water, but did not have time to remove them to the rear.

A Canadian Brigadier, patroling with several of his men, entered a German dugout further along and personally captured two prisoners.

It is not without difficulty that one comes to a realization that semi-open warfare has replaced the old deep trench fighting on the greater part of the British front. It is difficult even for the fighting men actually to grasp the situation, a situation for which they have waited so long. The Germans possibly feel the change more than anyone else, for, above all things, they love their underground comfort. The Germans were the first to transfer fighting to ditches and they are reluctantly giving up that style of warfare.

The deep concreted dugouts and tunnels along the old front were the only protection the Germans had against the ever-increasing British gunfire and every time they get an opportunity to pause now they immediately begin to dig in. They take to cover as if by second nature.

The British have always contended that the German dugouts softened the men who congregated in them always and could only be kept with difficulty in the open trenches. So it was easier to break the British of the trench habit than has been the case with the Germans.

Open Field Tactics.

Open field tactics have been a part of the training of the new British army ever since its organization began in 1914. There has been some criticism of that system from time to time on the ground that the war would always be fought from trench to trench, but for the last few months the British army in France has been drilled in open tactics almost daily. The results of these training methods have been apparent in the last few days and will undoubtedly prove still more valuable in the wider operations which are unquestionably coming.

The correspondent saw a bit of field maneuvering two days ago in which the British troops completely outwitted part of one of Germany's crack regiments. It is rather a striking commentary that when the war began the officer in command of the British unit was a young solicitor and such a thing as leading soldiers into battle had never entered his head. Two years of training in the school of actual war works its own wonders.

The losses in the recently inaugurated operations which continue to widen have been so much smaller than would be naturally expected in attacks upon such strong positions as those from which the Germans have driven that the army authorities are fairly jubilant.

Speed Features Fighting.

Another gratifying feature of the fighting has been the speed with which the British troops have everywhere attained their objective. Driving the Germans from positions which they had held for two years has given the army a higher fighting spirit than it ever had before.

The turning of the top of the Hindenburg line, to which attention is now officially called in the communiques, has been an achievement of which the full importance has naturally not yet been developed. The Germans, by the way, no longer call this line after Hindenburg but know it as the Siegfried line.

The switch to that line from Queant north, which, prisoners say, is not yet finished and was not expected to be used except as a last resort, is known as the Wotan line, in the extreme south the Hindenburg line is known as the Albrecht line. The complete smashing of the Vimy ridge seems to have somewhat upset the German plan, but they are evidently determined to put up the strongest possible defensive fight before falling back again.

BRITISH PUSH ON TOWARD ST. QUENTIN, LENS IS HEMMED IN

far there has been no flag waving or celebration in Great Britain. The impression prevails that greater events soon will follow and that with the fall of Lens the relief of Lille will not long be delayed.

Under what the newspapers call the "Haig plan," first one section of the Hindenburg line and then another has been subjected to violent bombardment, followed by infantry attacks, which have badly shaken if they have not seriously broken, the front on which the Germans have depended for the defense of the industrial districts of France which have been in their hands for more than two years.

"The British offensive has developed into a great push in the most literal sense of the word," telegraphs Reuter's correspondent from France. "The success of the operations which began on Monday has been greater than perhaps we realize and the Germans are being pushed back from Loos to the southward.

"It takes an army a long time to get away, however skillfully the retirement may have been planned. With a vigorous offensive clinging to its skirts in its effort to avoid defeat may be overwhelmed.

"German garrisons sneaked out of some villages duri[illegible] the night, but this slipping away cannot be carried very far, and when they are forced back on the line to which they may have hastily withdrawn and without those guns and stores which they were unable to get away a decisive thing may happen."

BERLIN SAYS HEAVY BRITISH ATTACKS FAILED

Germans Declare Their Counter Thrusts Inflicted Serious Losses on Enemy.

BERLIN, via London, April 14.—The official statement issued this evening on the campaign on the western front says:

"From the Scarpe to Bullecourt repeated strong British attacks failed with heavy losses. Artillery engagements along the Aisne and in western Champaigne continued with undiminished violence."

Northeast of Arras and on the River Scarpe there was a pause in the fighting activity yesterday, says the official statement issued today by the army headquarters staff. On the banks of the river Somme, the German statement adds, "strong enemy forces again advanced against our St. Quentin position. The attacks failed under heavy losses, the British leaving three officers and more than 200 men in our hands."

The official statement continues: "Since April 7 the heart of St. Quentin has been bombarded with increasing violence by the enemy's artillery of all calibers and irrespective of the objects struck, the Palace of Justice, the Cathedral and the Town Hall already have been seriously damaged.

"From Soissons to Rheims the artillery of both sides is fighting at full strength."

The statement says the French exposed historical buildings in Rheims to the danger of damage by the effective fire of the Germans by placing batteries in the vicinity of the structures.

On the western front, it is added, the British and French lost 24 airplanes and four balloons Friday.

At Croisilles and Bullecourt, says the announcement, the British after violent artillery fire, several times vainly attacked. In a counter thrust "we inflicted considerable losses on the enemy."

TURKS AGAIN IN RETREAT IN MESOPOTAMIA

Ottoman Troops Fell Back After Heavy Losses Were Inflicted London Announces.

LONDON, April 14.—The Turks have suffered another defeat at the hands of the British in Mesopotamia. The War Office announced today that the Turks are in retreat after a battle in which they suffered heavy losses.

The Turks were driven from their positions near Ghaliyeher, 10 miles north east of Deltawah (Deltawah is 35 miles north of Bagdad). They then withdrew toward Seraijik and thence toward Delyabbas. The British are pursuing the Turks.

Wednesday the Turks lost 500 killed and 700 wounded.

This announcement indicates that the British have wrecked the plan of the Turks to halt the invading armies which have been sweeping forward without serious interruption for several weeks. An official British statement Tuesday said the Turks were preparing a converging movement against the British between the Adheim and Diala rivers. It is in this region that the fighting occurred.

The British won their victory by outgeneraling the Turks. They made a strategical retreat, drawing the Turks after them, and followed this by a night march, which enabled the British to fall on the Turks from the flank. Following is the official account of these operations:

"On April 10, Gen. Maude, the British commander, withdrawing his advanced detachments on the right bank of the Diala river, succeeded in drawing the bulk of the enemy forces on this flank in a southwesterly direction toward Deltawah. At night our forces made a night march from the neighborhood of the left bank of the Tigris towards the Diala and attacked the next morning.

"The fighting had to be temporarily suspended owing to a mirage, but upon this lifting, our offensive continued. Our guns, with the able assistance of our airplanes, rapidly asserted their superiority. In the evening the enemy was driven from his advanced position near Ghaliyehe, 10 miles northeast of Deltawah.

"Early in the morning of April 12 the enemy withdrew six miles in a northeasterly direction to Seraijik. Successful operations continued throughout the day and night, and Gen. Maude on the 13th reported: "We are following up the Turkish forces which are falling back toward Dalyabbas. It is ascertained that the Turks lost 700 wounded in the fighting of April 11 and on that day 200 Turkish dead were found on the battlefield. Our total losses on that day approximately equal the Turkish killed."

French Continue Artillery Fire Near St. Quentin.

PARIS, April 14.—The official communication issued by the War Office tonight reads:

"Between St. Quentin and the Oise our batteries continued their destructive fires. Our troops have organized the ground gained yesterday. The enemy has countered with his artillery on our first lines, especially along the valley of the Somme.

"South of the Oise we have made progress on the plateau northeast of Quincy Basse. Our artillery has been particularly active against the German organizations in the forest of St. Gobain and the upper forest of Coucy. North of the Aisne and in the region of Rheims both artilleries were active.

"In Champagne and the Vosges the cannonading was quite violent in various sectors. An enemy surprise attack on one of our small posts northeast of Ville-Sur-Tourbe failed."

Belgian communication:

"Cannonading on both sides occurred in the region of Dixmude, Zuyd-Schoote and Het-Sas."

Petrograd Reports Austrian Effort to Entice Soldiers to Them.

PETROGRAD, via London, April 14.—Today's War Department statement says:

"Western front: On all fronts there were scouting reconnoissances and reciprocal firing. The enemy bombarded Brody with heavy artillery and some civilians were killed.

"In various sectors of the front groups of Austrians with paper parcels in their hands came out of their trenches and, making signals with flags, endeavored to entice our troops to approach them. They were dispersed by our artillery with shrapnel fire."

Moving Trains Hit in Artillery Fire on Italian Front.

ROME, via London, April 14.—The artillery was active in the Lagarina and Adige valleys, says today's War Office statement. The railway stations of Galliano and moving trains in the neighborhood were repeatedly hit, an ammunition depot was blown up and a fortified position destroyed in the Zugna area. On the remainder of the Trentino front, bad weather interfered with activity.

Two Gaps Made in German Line South of Loos.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, April 14, via London, 1:55 p. m.—The British last night broke the German front for a distance of four miles. The Germans are in retreat there.

The gaps in the German defenses were made in two places. Positions on a front of three miles between the Double Crassier and Givenchy and another mile on the north flank of the Hindenburg trench system were captured. Advanced posts were pushed well toward Queent and Pronville; important points in the German defenses.

The Germans are fighting as they retire from Loos southward and are being hard pressed.

Fires and explosions in the territory to the rear of the German lines continue. The weather today was favorable for campaigning.

PRESIDENT APPOINTS WAR PUBLICITY COMMITTEE OF 4

George W. Creel to Be Chairman With Secretaries Daniels, Baker and Lansing as Members—Duties Are Outlined.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Control of publicity in connection with the Government's war activities was placed by President Wilson today in the hands of a Committee on Public Information, whose task will be to safeguard secrets of value to the enemy, and at the same time to see that all affairs of the nation are laid before the people as fully and frankly as possible.

The committee named by the President is made up of Secretaries Lansing, Baker and Daniels, who recommended the step, with George Creel, a magazine writer, as civilian chairman. Announcement of its creation was made in the following executive order, made public at the White House:

"I hereby create a Committee on Public Information, to be composed of the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy and a civilian, who shall be charged with the executive direction of the committee.

"As civilian chairman of the committee, I appoint Mr. George Creel.

"The Secretary of State, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy are authorized each to detail an officer or officers to the work of the committee."

Creel Accepts Place.

Creel has accepted the post offered to him.

The President's action was based on the following letter, signed by three Cabinet officers:

"Dear Mr. President—Even though the co-operation of the press has been generous and patriotic, there is a steadily developing need for some authoritative agency to assure the publication of all the vital facts of national defense. Premature or ill-advised announcement of policies, plans and specific activities, whether innocent or otherwise, would constitute a source of danger.

"While there is much that is properly secret in connection with the departments of the Government, the total is small compared to the vast amount of information that it is right and proper for the people to have.

"America's great present needs are confidence, enthusiasm and service, and these needs will not be met completely unless every citizen is given the feeling of partnership that comes with full, frank statements concerning the conduct of the public business.

"It is our opinion that the two functions—censorship and publicity—can be joined honestly and with profit, and we recommend the creation of a committee on public information. The chairman should be a civilian preferably some writer of proved courage, ability and vision, able to gain the understanding and co-operation of the press and at the same time rally the authors of the country to a work of service. Other members should be the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy, or an officer detailed to the work by them.

Functions of Committee.

"We believe you have the undoubted authority to create this committee on public information without waiting for further legislation and because of the importance of the task and its pressing necessity, we trust that you will see fit to do so.

"The committee, upon appointment can proceed to the framing of regulations and the creation of machinery that will safeguard all information of value to an enemy, and at the same time open every department of Government to the inspection of the people as far as possible. Such regulations and such machinery will, of course, be submitted for your approval before becoming effective."

Creel is a brother of Wylie F. Creel of 5545 Berlin avenue. He has done newspaper work in St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver and New York, and was Police Commissioner of Denver. His wife is Blanche Bates, actress.

"PEACE PLAN" JUSTICE DIES

Urged Settlement Out of Court During 36 Years as Judge.

Capt. Patrick J. Melling, former Coroner of Madison County and Postmaster at North Alton for many years, died Saturday at the home of his son, Joseph G. Melling, on Delmar avenue. He was 88 years old.

For 36 consecutive years he has served as Justice of the Peace in North Alton. He followed the "peace" plan and advised all litigants to settle troubles out of court. He is survived by two children. Three years ago he fell and suffered the fracture of a bone in one of his hips. The funeral will be held Monday.

GRATZ BROTHERS U-BOAT REWARD OFFER DECLINED

St. Louis Men Wanted to Give $5000 for Destruction of Hostile Submarine.

DANIELS IS OPPOSED

Secretary Feels That American Sailors Will Do Duty Without Money Stimulus.

An offer made by Benjamin Gratz of 5155 Lindell avenue and his brother, Anderson Gratz of Kirkwood, to pay $5000 to the captain and crew of the first American merchant ship to destroy a hostile submarine, was made public yesterday when Secretary of the Navy Daniels declined to approve the proposal.

The telegram, sent Wednesday and signed by the Gratz brothers, said:

"We will pay $5000 to the captain and crew of the first American merchant ship to destroy a hostile submarine after this date (April 11) to be paid on award by your office."

Secretary Daniels replied: "I thank you for the spirit which prompted your offer. It is my distinct feeling that money rewards for such bravery are not in keeping with the spirit of our day."

Benjamin Gratz said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he regretted the Secretary's decision, but that he and his brother did not wish to do anything to conflict with the policy of the administration, and would not attempt to make the offer independently of the Navy Department.

Secretary Daniels, in giving out the telegraphic correspondence in Washington, said:

"The officers and enlisted men of th[illegible] American navy need no money stimulu[illegible] to do their duty and jeopardize their lives in the service of their country. [illegible] do not like the idea of a money bonu[illegible] It will be remembered that after [illegible] Spanish War Congress repealed th[illegible] offering prizes for the capture of [illegible] as contrary to the spirit of our in[illegible] tions and destructive to discipli[illegible]

NEW UNITS OF NATIONAL GUARD CAN BE FORMED

Governors Requested to See That Existing Regiments Be Filled Up to Peace Strength Before Any New Ones Are Organized.

Senate Committee Clears Way for Taking Up Army Legislation Tomorrow by Agreeing on Report.

House Completes Hearings on Universal Service After Listening to Anti-Conscriptionists.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Against the judgment of military experts as to the wise course in the present emergency, the War Department was compelled to reverse a previous ruling today and announce that under existing law States have the right to organize new units of the National Guard. This opens the door to expansion of the existing guard for the of about 125,000 men to 400,000 at peace strength, or more than 600,000 on war footing.

The Department has planned to draft into federal service only existing units of the guard, plus such auxiliary troops as might be needed. Twenty States have applied for permission to raise new regiments, however, and Secretary Baker ordered a new study of the National Defense Act to determine whether the acceptance of new units up to the limits set in the act was mandatory. Judge Advocate-General Crowder took this view and his ruling was approved by the Secretary.

Shortage of Equipment.

An effort to prevent immediate organization of new regiments was made simultaneously, however. The Governors were asked to see to it that existing units should be filled up to peace strength before the organization of any new ones. Shortage of equipment prevents the immediate acceptance of such new regiments, as the Department has not had appropriations for reserve supplies and it will take from two to three months to provide even for existing units at war strength.

Secretary Baker made it plain that the Department would in no circumstance recognize skeleton organizations, but would require a reasonably full complement of officers and men for each new unit.

If the State forces were raised to full strength, the present total of more than 10,000 National Guard officers would have to be expanded to more than 30,000, to provide for the officers' personnel for the full 12 National Guard divisions contemplated by the National Defense Act. The War Department has felt disinclined to add in this way to its already heavy burden in training officers for the war-time armies that are to be raised.

The 20 States whose Governors have asked for the permission of the War Department to organize additional National Guard forces are Ohio, Indiana, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Maryland, North Carolina, Florida, Wisconsin, Iowa, South Dakota, Missouri, Nebraska, Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Utah and Washington. The District of Columbia has also asked for permission to establish new National Guard units.

It was authoritatively stated at the War Department today that no call would be issued for the 2000 members of the Officers' Reserve Corps until Congress shall have passed the new army bill.

It is considered almost certain that more than 6000 enlisted men then will receive commissions to aid in training the first increment of 500,000.

The Senate Military Committee today cleared the way for taking up the war army legislation Monday, by completing consideration of War Department amendments to the National Defense Act to perfect the regular army organization. Whether public hearings on the new army bill and its selective draft feature will be held has not been decided. Many requests for hearings have been received.

After a plea today by Senator Hughes to double the pay of enlisted men, the committee decided to ask the War Department for suggestions and cost estimates regarding increase of the enlisted personnel from $15 a month to $20, $25 and $30.

More Machine Gun Companies.

Virtually all changes in the national defense law suggested by the army general staff were accepted by the committee, and a bill incorporating them will be reported to the Senate Monday. The amendments include authority to increase the general staff to 92 members, to increase the number of machine gun companies in each army division from 10 to 23 and to increase the number of noncommissioned officers in each army unit.

The War Department was asked also to submit suggestions regarding addition of armored motor car companies, like machine gun squads, to each unit.

"Separation" allowances for soldiers' dependents in time of war, recommended by the general staff in lieu of the $50 monthly allowance given by Congress to dependents of national guardsmen during the Mexican border service, were approved by the committee and included in the bill. These provide that, during war, dependents of enlisted men shall be paid $15 monthly. If soldiers were killed in action, from wounds or disease, the dependents would receive an amount equal to their pay for six months and, if in aviation service, a year's pay.

The committee is divided on the selective draft proposal, with a majority, however, understood to favor the administration plan.

Many Senators are personally opposed to conscription, but are loath to oppose the administration plans. Chairman Chamberlain and others of the committee feel little can be gained and much time wasted by holding public hearings. The arguments are so well defined on both sides of the issue that it is believed they can and will be adequately presented by Senators on the committee.

The War Department's selective draft bill exempts from its provisions the Vice President of the United States, legislative, executive and judicial officers of the Federal Government and the several states and territories; members of recognized religious sects whose creed forbids military service.

Exempts Federal Officers.

In addition, it authorizes the President to exclude or discharge from the draft, or to draft for partial military service only, persons of the following classes:

Customs house clerks, persons employed by the United States in the transmission of mails, artificers and workmen employed in the armories, arsenals and navy yards of the United States, and such other persons employed in the service of the United States as the President may designate, pilots, mariners actually employed in the sea service or any citizen or merchant within the United States, persons engaged in industries found to be necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment or the effective operation of the military forces, or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency, those in the status with respect to persons dependent upon them for support which renders their exclusion or discharge advisable, and those found to be physically and morally deficient.

No exemption or exclusion shall continue when a cause therefor no longer exists.

The draft would apply to all except the specified classes, and any other classes which the President might determine capable of rendering services in their usual vocation equally as valuable to their country as their presence at the front. Primarily, the purpose of the proposed draft between the ages of 19 and 25 is to call to the colors men who for the most part are free from responsibilities and whose place in the economic world is not definitely fixed.

The House Military Committee today closed its hearings on the universal service bill after a large delegation of anti-conscriptionists had voiced their views.

Jane Addams of Chicago and Marion Tilden Burritt of New York, representing the American Union Against Militarism; Grant Hamilton of the American Federation of Labor and others opposed conscription, saying that voluntary service was the only kind of military service in keeping with the principles of the republic.

Hamilton read a statement from Samuel Gompers that compulsory service is against the traditional ideas of American freedom.

Affair Is Patriotic Demonstration at Which All Speakers Pledge Loyalty to U. S.

Mayor Kiel was the guest of honor at a testimonial dinner given last night by the members of the Century Boat Club, of which he is a member, at the clubhouse, 5500 South Broadway. The dinner was a patriotic demonstration at which all the speakers proclaimed their loyalty and urged that there was no course for American citizens to follow except full aid to the President in the war.

Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., predicted that if the $7,000,000,000 loan authorized in the bill pending in Congress is taken immediately the war will end within 90 days.

The dining hall was decorated with large American flags and the flags of all the countries opposing Germany. There was no German flag within the room. The speakers were: Festus J. Wade, on "Our Mayor and City;" Henry S. Priest, on "Our Guest;" Louis P. Aloe, on "City Government;" M. L. Wilkinson, on "Our Guest as a Citizen," and G. A. Buder, on "Our Member." Mayor Kiel responded with a short talk of appreciation.

ARMY URGED TO HAVE AVIATION SCHOOL HERE

Department Is Told of the Advantages of Kinloch Park as a Site—Fund Being Raised to Lease Ground.

Maps showing the location of the Kinloch Park aviation field in St. Louis County and level tracts adjoining it, have been sent to War Department officials by Albert Bond Lambert, chairman of the Missouri State Aeronautical Society. He is leading a movement to lease the Kinloch Park field and offer it to the Government as an army aviation training station.

Two points in favor of the Kinloch Park field are strongly urged in Lambert's letters to the War Department. The first is that it is accessible from the city by the Wabash Railroad and a double-track street car line. The second is that, at various points north and south, for a distance of five miles in either direction, there are level fields where aviators can make safe landings from various heights, if they have to descend suddenly because of engine trouble or for any other reason.

"The proposed aviation field has about 110 acres," Lambert said yesterday. "If it were much larger—if it were a mile square even—it would still not be feasible for aviators to keep above this field at all times. With a large number of machines in the air, a wide range must be taken. The aviators will be in places where, if they have engine trouble, they will need to descend quickly.

"In this part of St. Louis County they will always be within reach of suitable places. I have shown, on the maps I have sent to Washington, several such level spaces, extending practically from the Missouri River to the Mississippi. There is a large tract on either side of Bonfils Station, four around Bridgeton, several small ones near the Kinloch Park field and others to the south as far as the neighborhood of Black Jack and Prospect Hill.

"These landing places would be only for emergency use, and would not have to be leased. The fund now being raised is for the purpose of leasing the Kinloch Park field, which will be plowed and seeded, after which the United States army will be invited to take possession.

"The only army aviation training station in the Mississippi Valley at present is within the city of Memphis, on a racetrack, where the starting and landing facilities are very limited."

Lambert holds that, for the training of the number of men needed in the aviation service of the army and navy, aviation stations will be needed in all parts of the country. He quotes the plan of the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics, requiring 4000 aeroplanes and 2400 aviators for the army and navy by 1919, as showing the extent of the task. He estimates the number of aeroplanes now in service as 100.

BIG INCREASE IN LAST WEEK IN ENLISTMENTS

Army Accepted 218 Recruits, Navy 216 and Marine Corps 82.

The number of recruits applying for enlistment at the local recruiting offices of the army, navy and marine corps has showed a decided increase during the last week, according to officers in charge.

At the army recruiting station 517 applied for enlistment. Of these 218 were accepted. Out of 349 applicants at the navy recruiting office, 216 were accepted. At the marine corps station, 82 applicants out of 152 were accepted.

The average accepted in the marine corps is generally one in three. Sergt. E. T. Turin said that since the declaration of war, the applicants appear to be of unusual high standard.

Allen Hyke, 30 years old, 1630 Arlington avenue, was enlisted yesterday as Sergeant in the marine corps reserve, in the capacity of clerk, with a salary of $85 a month. He will be assigned to the local recruiting office.

A message was received by Capt. Langworthy, in charge of the local recruiting office of the navy, from L. C. Palmer, chief of the Bureau of Navigation in Washington, which said that Friday, the thirteenth, was not an unlucky day for the United States navy, as a total of 1336 men were enlisted, breaking all previous records for a single day. He also advised that there should be no lessening of physical requirements, despite the pressing need for men.

To be rejected at the last moment because of a slight defect in his eyesight, after traveling from Bluefields, W. Va., to St. Louis, to enlist in the navy, was the experience of Robert Baker, who resigned his position in his home town last week to come here for the examination.

Baker said he hoped the standard would be lowered soon, as he was desirous of enlisting as soon as possible. He was a clerk in the offices of the Crozier-Pocahontas Coal Co. and will return home tonight to resume his position.

ROB SALOON AND LANDLORD WHO HAD COLLECTED RENT

Four Young Men Get $94 on South Eleventh Street, Escape in an Auto.

Four young men robbed the saloon of Ernest H. Schlueter, 2424 South Eleventh street, at 10:40 last night, and took $14.80 from the cash drawer and $80 from William Buch, owner of the building, who had just collected the sum as rent from the proprietor. They left in an automobile.

The four entered the saloon and stationed themselves in selected places before showing their revolvers. One went into the rear room, where the landlord and three others were playing cards, another stood near the proprietor, and the others stood where they could line up the customers.

A moment later the proprietor was in the icebox, the customers were standing at attentoin, and the landlord was handing over the rent.

GERMANY'S SIXTH WAR LOAN WILL CLOSE TOMORROW

Newspapers Urge People to Subscribe to It as Answer to U. S.

SOME OF THEIR PHRASES

"How Little Wilson Knows About the German Nation," Says One.

AMSTERDAM, via London, April 14.—Desperate appeals are being made in the German newspapers to the public to subscribe to the sixth war loan, which closes at 1 o'clock in the afternoon on April 16. Some of the phrases used by the papers are:

"Give a straight answer to Wilson." "Pretext for the war is the unrestricted submarine warfare." "Wilson does not hesitate to endeavor to split the German people and German Government." "How little Wilson knows about the German nation and German character." "Pay up."

Typical as showing how the German people are urged to use their savings to swell the war loan, is a little story in the Cologne Gazette of a village meeting at which the official from the nearest market town explained the advantages of the loan and refuted doubts regarding the safety of the investment. An old peasant woman hesitating then asked:

"But now that the Americans are coming in? * * *

"Never mind, mother, our U-boats will take care of them," was the cheerful reply, and everybody was happy.

Dr. Freiherer von Mackay of Munich tells the readers of the Dusseldorf General Anzeiger that America is about to conclude with Japan arrangements whereby the German influence in the far East is to be throttled. He hints at dark and mysterious machinations by both sides, eventually with Japanese control of China and the ejection of America from the far East. The writer admits that Germany's attempt to bribe Mexico was a sad failure, but he says that worse things are going on politically in the Far East. A breakdown of the new Japanese-American brotherhood, however, is certain, the writer declares.

BERNE, Thursday, April 12, via Paris, Friday, April 13 (delayed).—The combination of the battle of Arras and the interview granted by Field Marshal von Hindenburg to a Spanish correspondent have furnished the Swiss press with food for seemingly unlimited editorial comment, which it utilizes quite as variously as the difference in the languages of publication or temperament of the editors.

Papers published in the French language not only give the utmost prominence to the British victory, but pour ridicule upon Von Hindenburg for declaring, in the very hour that the entente forces were capturing Germans by the thousands, that the Western front was secure. These papers also make sport of the German official communications. Thus, the Journal de Geneve says the dictionary must be revised if "resisting strenuous onslaughts" is synonymous with the capture of thousands of men, cannon and machine guns.

The Germanophile portion of the German-language press, on the other hand, takes opportuity to indulge in attacks on America equaled by few really German papers. The main tenor of all the attacks is the same old story, namely, the accusation that America is actuated solely by financial interests. This portion of the German-Swiss press adopts the German argument that the entrance of the United States and of other American republics into the war means nothing.

The most important of the German-Swiss papers, as usual, maintain reticence amounting to colorlessness concerning conditions on the Western front and content themselves with a mere presentation of the official reports of the belligerents.

German papers now arriving here are filled with editorial comment upon Von Hindenburg's interview which may be summarized about as follows:

Field Marshal von Hindenburg is the greatest man, almost, that Germany has ever known. He says that America amounts to nothing. Therefore it must be true. The situation must be all right, because he says so, even though our opponents report great successes. Hence the German people should have every confidence, and above all subscribe to the sixth war loan, though Von Hindenburg himself, in belitting America, says that its help can be only along financial lines.

LIVING COST FOR GERMANY'S WAGE CLASS EXCEEDS INCOMES

Investigators Report That Families Must Draw on Savings or Run Into Debt.

COPENHAGEN, April 14.—The results of the statistical investigation into the war cost of living in Germany, which was conducted in April, 1916, and which are now published, show that the cost of the bare necessities for families in the wage class materially exceeds their income. This class includes families earning from 100 to 200 marks monthly. Their living expenses are put at 222 marks 5 pfennigs.

The deficit, the report remarks, has been covered by either drawing on savings or running into debt. Prices have steadily gone upward in the ensuing year, increasing the impossibility of the poorly paid classes, which include persons ranked as in the educated middle classes in America, to make ends meet without public relief.

WOOD SHIP FLEET BUILDERS TO WORK ON PROFIT BASIS

GOETHALS IN CHARGE

Fifty Millions Government Corporation Will Be Organized Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The Administration's program for building a vast fleet of wooden cargo ships to transport supplies to the allies and thus defeat the German submarine campaign, will be put definitely under way Monday, when the Shipping Board will form a $50,000,000 corporation to build and operate the vessels. The corporation will be organized under the laws of the District of Columbia and its entire stock will be held by the Shipping Board. In legislation to be introduced in Congress early in the week, the board will ask for authority to increase the stock in future, if needed, to as much, perhaps, as $225,000,000. For the present, the $50,000,000 will suffice.

Private shipyards will construct the ships on a standardized plan, on a basis, in most instances, of 10 per cent profit. Some contracts will be let for specified sums. The board probably will finance some yards, although private capital already is offering millions for construction of the vessels.

Goethals in Charge.

Major General Goethals, who has agreed to supervise the building of the ships, will come to Washington to take charge of the work as soon as he can arrange to leave his task of building New Jersey highways. F. A. Eustace, a Boston mining engineer, who with F. Huntington Clark, a New York engineer, conceived the idea of a wooden ship fleet, probably will be associated with him.

The law creating the board provides for a corporation, the majority of whose stock must be held by the board. Its directors will be employes of the board, who will elect their own officers. Gen. Goethals probably will be elected general manager of the corporation, and Eustace, who is an employe of the board receiving a salary of $1 a year, and Clark, directors.

The 700,000 tons of German shipping taken over by the Government undoubtedly will be put under the corporation, as will the Austrian ships now in custody of the United States. The general opinion is that the German and Austrian owners will be paid for their use during the war and for the ships themselves if they are lost or retained.

The story of how the wooden shipbuilding plan grew from an idea conceived simultaneously by two mining engineers until it has taken a place in the forefront of America's war policy reveals that Yankee inventive genius and ingenuity were as ready to meet the present emergency as at any time of national stress in the past.

After Eustace and Clark had been called to Washington by Chairman Denman of the Shipping Board and the board decided to take up the plan, Eustace decided to interest Gen. Gothals. The canal builder immediately seized on the plan as one way by which the United States could do most to aid the allies in defeating Germany. Gen. Goethals was told the board wished him to take charge of the work. Reluctant at first to leave his post in New Jersey, the General finally was convinced the nation needed him.

Gen. Goethals was chosen to head the work, it was explained tonight, for three reasons—his capacity, his German descent, and as a testimonial to the loyalty of American citizens of Teutonic extraction, and because he is considered the one man in the United States most offensive to Germany. Germany, it has been said, has never forgiven the man who constructed the canal when German experts said it could not be accomplished.

In their efforts to persuade Gen. Goethals to take charge of building the ships, it was pointed out that he probably would spend before the war was over as much or more than was expended in building the canal.

VALUE OF CITY PROPERTY FOR TAXATION $652,394,830

Net Increase Over 1916 Is $4,265,247 After the Board of Equalization Completes Its Work and Closes Its Session.

An increase of $6,173,090 in the assessed valuation of real estate, and a decrease of $1,907,842 in the assessable value of personal property, compared with the amounts fixed in 1916, were made by the City Board of Equalization, which closed its four weeks' sessions yesterday afternoon. The net increase in the assessed valuations of real and personal property this year over the total of both classes for last year is $4,265,247.

After net reductions of $1,099,400 were made by the board on real and personal property, the assessed valuation of both classes remains at $615,394,830. The assessed valuation of real estate is $521,003,730, compared with $514,830,640 in 1916. The assessed valuation of personal property this year is $94,391,100, which is $1,907,843 lower than the total in 1916.

Taxes for this year will be collected on a total of $652,394,830, including $37,000,000, representing the estimate of assessed valuation to be fixed next August by the State Board of Equalization on the property of railroad companies, telegraph companies and like public service corporations operating in St. Louis.

Realty Valuations Explained.

Increases in real estate valuations are explained by normal growth in values, higher assessments and the inclusion of new improvements not previously assessed. The decrease in the assessed valuation of personal property was due in part to the board's reductions, but largely to the less liberal returns.

Among the beneficiaries of the board's orders decreasing personal assessments were the estates of James Gay Butler and Daniel Catlin, who died last summer without having made returns, and H. Clay Pierce. Butler's assessment was cut from $305,000 to $152,500.

The penalty assessment levied on the personal property of Daniel Catlin was lowered from $300,000 to $46,540. Pierce's assessment was reduced from $100,000 to $50,000. An appeal for a reduction in the assessment of $383,280 on the estate of Anna Busch was denied.

Assessments in two large districts and on two important buildings were ordered by the board. Valuations fixed on all property, except new improvements, in the district between Meramec street and the River des Peres, the Mississippi River and the city limits on the west and southwest, were directed to be reduced to the level established in 1916. This means that the increase of $2,503,000 on this property, compared with last year, will be eliminated. Last year's assessments in that district were about $5,000,000 higher than in 1914.

The board expressed the belief that assessments in this section, which is in Carondelet, were "improperly made and did a substantial injustice to the owners of property." James F. Brady is the assessor.

Market Street Land Values Lowered.

A reduction of 10 per cent in land values on both sides of Market street, between the west line of Seventh street and the east line of Seventeenth street, was also order. These decreases will aggregate $355,900. The assessor's valuation of the "Catlin tract," north of Forest Park, was ordered lowered from $140 to $130 a front foot. The owners of the property complained that the land had been assessed at a higher rate than the actual selling price.

At the request of Claude Ricketts, manager, the assessment on the Railway Exchange Building was reduced by $250,000. The owners will pay this year's taxes on a valuation of $4,985,000, including the ground.

A reduction of $50,000 in the assessed value of the Boatmen's Bank Building was allowed. The building is now valued for the purposes of taxation at $800,000, and the ground on which it stands at $675,450.

The net reductions in land values was $553,010. The net reductions in the valuation of improvements was $447,700. Net decreases in personal assessments were $98,690.

Publishers George Knapp & Co., owners of the Republic, in a return of personal propery, included $67,128 as the value of accounts outstanding. This amount was increased by the board to $108,700.

Western Union Claim Not Allowed.

The Western Union Telegraph Co. objected to the assessment of $66,700 on its accounts, on which it contended that it was taxed in New York. On the advice of City Counselor Daues the board declined to withdraw the assessment.

The return of the General Paper Stock Co. on fixtures, etc., was increased from $500 to $101,000.

The personal return of Henry Wood, former president of the Union Dairy Co., was increased from $1000 to $3000. Wood died several weeks ago.

Following the ruling of the State Board of Equalization and a decision of the Supreme Court, the City Board of Equalization assessed stocks of banks and trust companies at 50 per cent of its par value.

Assessor Schramm was chairman of the board. Other members, appointed by Mayor Kiel, were W. E. Caulfield, Herman Paule, Dr. Charles H. Pope and Louis H. Lohmeyer. Daniel Evans was retained as expert in the appraisal of buildings. Fred J. Spindler was secretary and Michael O'Rourke sergeant at arms of the board during its sessions.

Estimated City Expenses Must Be Cut $3,205,218.

In a preliminary statement of estimated revenues and disbursements for the fiscal year beginning next Tuesday, submitted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment yesterday by Comptroller Player, the excess of requirements over the amount available for appropriations is shown to be $3,205,218.65. This excess will have to be reduced by the board before the budget is submitted to the Aldermen.

Appropriations aggregating $647,650 have been made or authorized from the mill tax collections of $1,839,205.42. For the purchase of the Christian Brothers' College tract, $196,650 will be used; $163,000 for the liquidation of damages arising from the improvement of King's highway north of Easton avenue has been paid into court, and $288,000 has been returned to the treasury to cover over-appropriations last year.

Comptroller Player's estimate of the total revenue available for appropriations during the next fiscal year will be $12,048,566.90. His calculations of this revenue are on the basis of the present tax rate of $2.35 per $100 of valuation, but the rate for purely municipal purposes is not stated. This rate during the current fiscal year was $1.12 of the total.

Mrs. H. L. Rumsey appeared before the Board of Estimate yesterday to urge a larger appropration for Koch Tuberculosis Hospital, and Mrs. G. V. R. Mechin advocated an allowance of $1000 for plowing vacant lots on which the poor and others might grow vegetables next summer.

PRESIDENT DRAFTS PROGRAM FOR BIG WAR CONFERENCE

America's Part in Conflict Will Be Discussed With British and French Commission.

RUSSIA TO BE GIVEN AID

Ideals for Which U. S. Entered Struggle Will Be Outlined to Visitors.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—President Wilson personally began today the formulation of a definite program for the great war conference to begin here next week with official representatives of Great Britain and France.

The subjects to be discussed are expected to extend further than material co-operation between the United States and the entente allies. The President believes the greatest rsult which can come from the world war is an agreement under which conflicts can be avoided in the future and guarantees of the right of self-government to every nation large or small, and this ideal is certain to find its way into the conference.

In welcoming the foreign delegations headed by Arthur J. Balfour, Foreign Minister of Great Britain, and Rene Viviani, Minister of Justice of France, the President is expected to point to the aspirations of the United States.

President Works on Plans.

The President had no engagements today and did not leave the White House—a course only followed by him when engaged in framing the most important plans. Usually he devotes Saturdays to golfing and automobiling.

The character of the delegations coming here from France and England has generally been taken as an indication that they will be empowered to discuss broad questions of policy as well as to outline to the American Government the war plans of the entente allies and aid the United States in avoiding the mistakes made by them in the past.

Possible means of assisting Russia and thus building up the newest democratic government in the world, are receiving consideration from the Administration. It was admitted at the State Department that serious attention was being given to a suggestion that a commission be sent to Petrograd.

To Welcome Commission.

When the time comes for discussion of financial questions with the French and British delegations and with the Russian Government, the Senate is expected to have acted on the bond issue bill passed today by the House. Representatives of the State Department, the army and the navy, will leave Washington probably tomorrow for an unnamed port to welcome the British visitors.

Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher and Commander D. F. Sellers, of the navy; Col. Robert E. L. Michie, of the Army General Staff; Lieut. Col. Spencer Crosby, of the Army War College, and Capt. John G. Quekemeyer, Cavalry, were appointed today to represent the army and navy in the party.

DYNAMITE IS FOUND NEAR FOREST PARK WABASH BRIDGE

Fifty-five sticks of dynamite, wrapped together in paper, were found Wednesday near a Wabash bridge at Forest Park, by Strange Amos and his wife of 649 Edward avenue. The bridge is near the Barnes Hospital group of buildings.

The report of the finding of the dynamite was suppressed while policemen were making an ineffectual effort to learn who had carried it to the spot.

RUSSIAN PEACE PARTY ALLOWED TO CROSS GERMANY

30 Socialist Anti-War Agitators Pass Through Country in Sealed Coach.

MEETING IN STOCKHOLM

Said to Have Interested French and Teutonic Radicals in Plan.

STOCKHOLM, via London, April 14.—Recent reports concerning a meeting of Russian and German Socialists in Stockholm to further the agitation for peace now appear to have been anticipatory. Such a meeting, however, may be held in the near future.

The fact that Russian peace agitators have been permitted to cross Germany from Switzerland seems also to indicate that the German Government at least does not desire to throw any obstacles in the way of such a movement.

Came Through Germany.

The party which arrived here Friday included 30 Russians who came through Germany in a sealed coach. Among the principal members of the party were Nikolai Lenin, the Russian Radical Socialist leader, and Zinovyof, another Radical and peace advocate. Both are members of their party's central committee and both are editors of party newspapers in Geneva, as well as being prominent figures in the Zimmerwald Congress. Another member of the group was Mischa Zhakaya, one of the founders of the party in the Caucasus, and the man who brought M. Tacheldze, the Russian labor leader, into the party.

While in Stockholm the Russians issued a statement accusing England of trying to "destroy one of the Russian revolution's results—political amnesty" and of refusing to permit Rnssian revolutionists who oppose war to return to Russia. The statement reviewed the negotiations with Germany for permission to cross that country and declared that the Germans had loyally kept their agreement. It was disclosed in the statement that the Russians while in Switzerland had been in communication with the French Socialists and German radical Socialists.

Met by the Mayor.

The visitors were met at the Stockholm station by Mayor Lindhagen and some of the Swedish Radical Socialists with whom they held a conference during the day. Information concerning the conference was denied.

The Dagens Nyheter, however, declares that it learns that Lenin undertook the trip to head an energetic peace movement, and he and his friends already have won the promise of support from the German Radicals for a Congress in Stockholm. Some French Socialists also aproved of the plan, but English Socialists flatly refused to take part. The Dagens Nyheter says that M. Lenin plans to be back in Stockholm from Petrograd within a fortnight at the head of a Rusian peace deputation. He is said to wish universal peace if it is obtainable, but if the Western Powers, particularly England, reject the idea, he will endeavor to obtain a separate peace between Russia and Germany.

Socialist Peace Meeting Gathers Much Strength.

COPENHAGEN, via London, April 14.—The Dagens Nyheter of Stockholm says that the representatives of the extreme Russian Socialists have arrived in Stockholm from Switzerland and have held several conference with extreme Swedish Socialists in regard to peace. Among the Russians is M. Lenin, a prominent radical Socialist leader, who is quoted as saying that from Switzerland great efforts had been made already to convene a conference in Stockholm, and that he and his associates had succeeded in inducing the German Socialist minority and some French Socialists to join the movement. British Socialists declined to take part in it.

Peace within two months and a half is predicted by the Copenhagen correspondent of the Danish Socialist Press, which confirms the reports of unofficial negotiations between Russian and German Socialists, as against the diplomatic denials in the Socialist newspapers here and in Berlin.

The first negotiations, says the correspondent, who is a Socialist member of the Danish Parliament, were broken off, enabling two papers to launch a denial that they were in progress, but they were immediately resumed and are being prosecuted vigorously. The correspondent then enters into a discussion of peace terms in which he appears to take German Socialist expectations and hopes for the Government policy.

"I am assured from an absolutely trustworthy source," he says, "that Germany is ready to restore Belgium and Servia, evacuate France, and with Turkey arrange an agreement with Russia over the free navigation of the Dardanelles. An agreement is also possible on the Polish question, as the Russian Government knows."

The correspondent pictures England as the sole obstacle to peace. There is reason to believe that the first part of his statement regarding negotiations between Russian and German Socialists is correct, but his exposition of German peace terms conflicts with the recent highly official declaration of the North German Gazette that Germany is willing to conclude peace but on terms compatible with the great sacrifice which she has made.

Reventlow Continues Campaign.

Count von Reventlow continues his campaign in the Tages Zeitung day in and day out, against any thought of a compromise peace which will not give to Germany in full measure what is demanded by the annexationists, in both the east and the west. He expresses the hope that the renewal recently of the proposal for a peace conference by Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, which the Socialists are now trying to emphasize, has been buried definitely, saying it is undesirable to permit the Western Powers to have a hand in the Russo-German settlement. He intimates that Russia must reconcile herself to the loss of territories considered necessary for the future greatness of Germany but that she may procure compensation elsewhere, probably in Rumania and Persia, which would enable her, he says, to consider honorable and advantageous terms of peace.

In another article Count von Reventlow breaks the lance with Foreign Secretary Zimmerman. He asserts that it is not less than ever in the interest of Germany "to sing political serenades to the Japanese or attempt to use Carranza as a matchmaker." He warns against placing any hope in Japan. Although Germany and Japan to a certain extent are natural allies, the opportunity for an alliance has passed, he says, as Japan for the present probably will decide to maintain relations with Anglo-Saxondom and continue to get all possible profits therefrom.

Tageblatt Expresses Skepticism.

The Tageblatt of Berlin, discussing a Copenhagen dispatch relative to the presence here of Phillip Scheidemann, leader of the majority Socialists, on a peace errand, mentions "a well known Centrist member of the Reichstag" as also taking a hand in the parleys. The Tageblatt does not reveal his name, but it probably would not be far wrong to identify him as Mathias Erzeberger, leader of the Clerical Center, whose proclivity for dabbling in foreign affairs is well known. Furthermore, the German Government has been subsidizing heavily of a propaganda bureau under his auspices. This bureau's function is to influence the tone of the neutral press, and it is also directing propaganda in Italy and Rumania.

The Tageblatt exposes the hollowness of the denials with which the Government, German Socialists and others concerned are endeavoring to shade the all too delicate plan of a separate peace effort with the Russian Socialists from the light of publicity, which might perhaps wither it. The Tageblatt says the German majority Socialists who hitherto have voted regularly for the war credits, may perhaps be welcomed less warmly by the Russian Socialists than is hoped. It agrees with Count von Reventlow, though for different reasons, in regarding the chances for success with skepticism.

Austrian Socialist Leaders Confer With Count Czernin

THE HAGUE, via London, April 14.—The Vossiche Zeitung of Berlin learns from Vienna that the Austrian Socialist leaders, Victor Adler, Herr Reuner and Herr Seitz, had a conference of three hours with Foreign Minister Czernin on Thursday. Adler then left for Berlin, with the intention of joining Philipp Scheidemann, the German Socialist leader, in Copenhagen.

Pacifists in Congress of Russian Workmen and Soldiers in Decided Minority.

PETROGRAD, April 14.—The pacifist element is distinctly in the minority in the Congress of District Councils of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, which is now in session here. The discussions thus far show two distinct currents of opinion. The first, which appears to be supported by an overwhelming majority, is favorable to vigorous prosecution of the war and support of the Provisional Government. The second group, composed chiefly of advanced Socialists, favors not only renunciation of all projects of annexation and indemnities, but also steps looking to early conclusion of peace. At the same time, this group is inviting the congress to express its distrust of the Provisional Government.

British and French labor deputations sent to extend fraternal greetings to the new Russian Government arrived here last midnight. They were welcomed by huge crowds within and outside the railway station. Guards of honor were formed by soldiers to escort them. The crowd carried red banners inscribed "Unity," which were waved while bands played "The Marseillaise."

German Socialists Said to Be on Way to Meet Russians.

AMSTERDAM, via London, April 14.—The German newspapers say that not only is Philip Scheidemann, leader of the majority Socialists, on his way to Stockholm, but that he is accompanied by three prominent German Socialists—Addler, Erzberger and Haase. The four men are traveling on special passports and it is believed in Berlin Socialist circles that they will meet envoys of the Russian Government, with whom they will proceed to Petrograd.

Youth Killed Under Auto.

PANA, Ill., April 14.—Emery Seaton, aged 20, son of Jesse Seaton, Christian County farmer, was killed today when an automobile in which he was riding turned over after colliding with another car. His skull was fractured. Albert Hulbring, farmer, who was driving the car, was uninjured.

GROSS RECEIPTS AT WAR EXHIBIT ABOUT $50,000

Six Thousand at Closing Night and Large Sum Will Be Netted for Charity—Award of Prizes to Be Announced Later.

The French War Exhibit, which closed last night at Moolah Temple, had gross receipts of nearly $50,000, according to George O. Carpenter, secretary of the guarantors. He could not give the figures as to expenses, but said the profit for the French and allied war charities would be large.

The award of a $6000 pearl necklace and other valuable prizes, including several automobiles, was deferred until the latter part of this week. It was said that the necklace would be awarded at the Junior League Follies at the Odeon Saturday night, and that Mayor Kiel would be asked to preside. Plans are being made to have the other awards made Thursday night at some moving picture theater.

More than 6000 persons attended the exhibit last night and yesterday afternoon, the number being the largest of any day of the week. More than one-half the visitors paid an extra 25 cents to go through the trenches, where the daily and nightly life of the soldiers somewhere in France was shown.

The Girl in the Hat Box.

A cabaret show, conducted by Mrs. Charles Cummings Collins, was a successful feature of last night's entertainment. Little Marguerite Claire Hopson, who was carried into the room concealed in a hat box, danced prettily in a pink gauze costume. Mrs. Collins saw the child at the exhibit a few days ago, and noticing her beauty and gracefulness, persuaded her to appear as a dancer.

Lieut. Leslie Buswell of the American Ambulance Corps exhibit said he hoped to obtain 30 ambulance cars in St. Louis, from contributors who would give both the cars and their upkeep cost for a year. These cars are to be used at the front in France.

These cars, with upkeep for a year, are figured to cost $1600 each. Lieut. Buswell said Mrs. Newton R. Wilson, of the Devonshire Apartments, had promised to give two cars, and that a group of members of the Racquet Club had promised two more, and that a committee was trying to get other subscriptions for the same purpose. The members of the committee are Harry Langenberg, Joseph Gilman Miller and Dr. M. B. Clopton.

Sold Jewels to Help Work.

One little girl in St. Louis, the lieutenant said, gave $300 for the ambulance work, selling a valuable piece of jewelry to get the money. He would not give her name. Lieut. Buswell is also trying to get young men to volunteer for ambulance work. Two whom he has enrolled are Joseph Desloge of the Washington Hotel and William Gentry of 5157 Vernon avenue. Two Washington University students, Meredith D. Jones and G. S. Fiske, are endeavoring to get a number of volunteers from the university.

6 ALIENS TURN OVER FIREARMS AND EXPLOSIVES

Comply With President's Orders on Last Day Set for Them to Do So.

2 HAVE FIRST PAPERS

Student in Chemistry Surrenders Some Chemicals He Had in His Possession.

Six persons yesterday complied with the order issued by the police requiring that all alien enemies should turn in firearms and explosives as commanded in President Wilson proclamation, under penalty of punishment in the Federal courts. The order, as interpreted by Federal officials, applies only to Germans, but includes those who have their first citizenship papers as well as those who have not been naturalized, in any degree. Last night was set as the limit of time for complying with the order.

Franz Kupka, 43 years old, a machinist, of 2208 South Eleventh street, turned in a box of German-made firearms, including a shotgun, a target pistol and an old-fashioned double-barrel, muzzle-loading cap and ball revolver.

William L. Stohlmann, 33, of 4022A Florissant avenue, a bookkeeper, who has his first citizenship papers, delivered a revolver, saber and a bayonet. Adolph Roth, 26, a molder, of 4266A Blair avenue, who has his first papers and who is a native of Austria, gave up a revolver and shells.

Otto von Roden, 23, of 3125 Olive street, took two revolvers and 25 cartridges to a police station. Charles J. Hucke, of 1707 South Ninth street, surrendered a revolver. Daniel Tannenbaum, 17 years old, of 3026 Dickson street, a student of chemistry, turned over an assortment of chemicals which, he said, might be used in making explosives.

The police gave receipts to the owners for the articles. In an editorial in the Westliche Post, German language newspaper, yesterday, the advice was given that those liable to the order should compl ywith it to avoid trouble.

Naturalized Alien to Lose Citizenship for Any Disloyalty.

Drastic action against naturalized citizens of German birth will be taken by the United States District Attorney's Office this week, to compel these citizens to refrain from making any remarks against this country or President Wilson and refusing to uphold this Government against Germany.

Suits will be filed in the District Court asking for the cancellation of their naturalization papers, charging them with having a mental reservation at the time they made oath of allegiance to this country.

Numerous complaints have been received by the federal althorities that some naturalized Germans would not uphold the United States against Germany and would not aid her. All these complaints have been investigated and the records have been kept.

One case to be taken up will be that of Peter F. Ford, 31 years old, 3628 Hartford street, who came to this country in 1911 and was naturalized June, 1916. Ford displayed a large sign in his show window at 2610 Locust street protesting against the war bond issue. The sign read:

"Five billion dollars to make cripples! We need $5,000,000,000 for the American war sufferers, cripples and poor. Have your Congressman vote this way and the money will be well invested."

He was compelled to take the sign down by Department of Justice officials.

Andrew Kucsik, 22 years old, 1200A Monroe street, was refused his first papers to become an American citizen when he said he would not fight for the United States. Kucsik is a machinist for the American Can Co., Hall and Branch streets. He came to this country from Kassa, Austria, in 1910.

STATISTICS ON EXPORTS FROM ST. LOUIS TO BE COMPILED

Collector of Customs Here Notified of Change—Exterior Ports Have Been Given Credit.

Statistics on exports from St. Louis and Missouri will be compiled and included in the annual reports of the Government on exports, according to a notice received by Fountain Rothwell, Collector of Customs at the Federal Building, yesterday.

Heretofore all exports have been credited to New York, Boston, New Orleans and other exterior ports through which the shipments leave the country. Millions of dollars in exports will be credited to St. Louis, and the volume of exports is expected to be of great value in bringing other manufacturers to St. Louis.

Numerous requests have been made on the Collector for data as to the exports from St. Louis, but were unavailable. The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and several Senators have aided to change the method. Beginning July 1, 1917, all exports will be credited to the State from where the shipment originated.

Five Hundred Offers of Services.

A postal will bring one of these men or women who are seeking work through today's big REAL ESTATE and WANT DIRECTORY.

LAST APOLLO CONCERT APRIL 24

The Apollo Club will give its last concert of the season Tuesday evening, April 24, at the Odeon, with Arthur Middleton, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, as soloist.

He was soloist on two tours with the New York Symphony Orchestra and accompanied the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on three of its tours. The club's annual dinner will be held at the Mercantile Club, April 30.

ENGLISH WOMAN SUBSCRIBES $20,000,000 TO WAR LOAN

Miss Emily Talbot, 77, Inherited $40,000,000 From Father in 1890.

LONDON, April 14.—The largest woman subscriber to the war loan in England is Miss Emily Talbot of Galmorgan. Miss Talbot, 77 years old, is the daughter of C. R. M. Talbot, who sat in the House of Commons for 60 years and died in 1890, leaving a fortuen estimated at $40,000,000 to his daughter. Her land holdings of over 40,000 acres include several thousand acres of valuable coal deposits, and nearly the whole of Port Talbot railway and docks.

Miss Talbot's contribution to the war loan is estimated at $20,000,000. Her favorite device to avoid publicity is to contribute a comparatively small sum to a charity in her own name and then add two or three much larger donations anonymously. Her open subscription to the war loan was for $400,000, although it has become known that she is the holder of about 50 times that amount.

Miss Talbot keeps her hand on her own business affairs, and her property has greatly increased in value during her 27 years' stewardship. She has a London house on Cavendish square, but spends considerable time in Wales.

SYRIA BEING DEPOPULATED

NEW YORK, April 14.—Of the 750,000 persons formerly inhabiting Syria, only 350,000 can now be accounted for, according to authentic advices, it was stated here today, by Miss Caroline Holmes, at a meeting of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief to discuss plans to raise $10,000,000 for the continuance of its work. Miss Holmes, who spent 32 years in Turkey, said that 70,000 Syrians had been forced to serve in the Turkish armies.

Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, said that the Turks are friendly to this country, but because of their German alliance can not demonstrate it.

ARMY DEFENDS EL PASO IN NIGHT PRACTICE MANEUVER

Batteries of Artillery Dragged Onto High Mesa Overlooking City by Caterpillar Tractors.

EL PASO, Tex., April 14.—Batteries of 4.7 artillery were dragged onto the high mesa overlooking the city and Mexico last night by caterpillar tractors in a night attack practice maneuver ordered by Brigadier-General George Bell Jr. The results of the maneuver were declared by Gen. Bell, in an authorized statement from headquarters, to have been highly satisfactory.

A battery of artillery has been stationed on the mesa for months and the additional field pieces were rushed there in what was termed a precautionary maneuver last night. One of the tractors failed to climb the steep grade to the mesa. In addition to the artillery practice cavalry and infantry regiments were held under orders for instant mobilization, as a part of the practice.

HANDLED NAVY MAIL 50 YEARS

Attache of London Embassy Honored by Ambasador Page.

LONDON, April 14.—The man who for the last 50 years has handled Uncle Sam's dispatches and mail for his naval men when they happened to be on this side of the Atlantic, has just been singularly honored on the occasion of his entering upon his fiftieth year of service. He is G. I. Petherick, Deputy United States Government Dispatch Agent in London, who remembers Admiral Farragut when the latter was commander-in-chief of the European station in 1868, and who was a close friend of Admiral Dewey and other United States naval officials.

Petherick was requested the other day to step into Ambassador Page's private office. The Ambassador, surrounded by his embassy staff, made formal speech in which he viewed Peterick's long and faithful career, extended the thanks of Uncle Sam and concluded by presenting him with a large silver punch bowl.

In addition, it was stated a fund of classified information on the nation's resources has been submitted to the federal authorities.

U. S. NOTIFIED OF BOLIVIA'S BREAK WITH GERMANY

ARGENTINA IS AROUSED

Sinking of Sailing Ship Causes Deep Impression Throughout Country.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Official notification that Bolivia had severed diplomatic relations with Germany reached the State Department today in a note from Minister Calderon.

Bolivian Note Denounces Germany's Submarine Warfare.

LAPAZ, Bolivia, April 14.—The note of the Bolivian Government to the German Minister, announcing the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany, denounces the attacks of German submarines on neutral vessels as violations of international law and of The Hague conventions. The note recalls that the Bolivian Minister to Berlin was on board the Holland-Lloyd steamer Tubantia when that vessel was sunk in neutral waters a year ago. The note concludes:

"Your Excellency will understand that, although we regret the breach of diplomatic relations between Bolivia and the German Empire, such relations have become insupportable under existing circumstances. In consequence, your Excellency will find herewith passports for yourself and the members of your legation."

The note declares that German subjects and property will enjoy all liberties guaranteed by law provided that Germans do not commit any act of delinquency, either collectively or as individuals.

Bolivia was the first South American state to announce its support of the United States in protesting against the German submarine blockade. In a note to the German Government, under date of Feb. 8, the Bolivian Government denounced the German blockade proclamation as an infringement of the "imprescriptible rights of civilization."

Argentine Greatly Aroused by Sinking of Ship.

BUENOS AIRES, April 14.—News of the torpedoing of the Argentine sailing ship Monte Protegido, presumably by a German submarine, has caused a deep impression. The Naccon counsels the people to be calm in the presence of grave events. The Argentina says the entire nation condemns the sinking of the ship as a criminal act and that the Government must adopt an energetic attitude.

The Government has ordered the concentration in the inner harbor of Buenos Aires of all the German vessels now in Argentine waters. A special guard will be placed over them. These vessels comprise the Seydlitz, Patagonia, Holger, Granada, Bahrenfeld, Jenfeld, Nauplia, Bahia Blanca, Lowenburg, Santa Clara, Sevilla and Muansa.

Austrian steamers now in Argentine waters are the Erodiad at Buenos Aires and Siam at Rosario.

A B C Governments Plan South American War Conference.

BUENOS AIRES, April 14.—The A B C Governments are reported to be negotiating with a view to convening in Buenos Aires an assembly of the South American republic in order to study and establish, if possible, a continental entente concerning the various problems arising from the war. It appears that Argentina and Brazil desire uniform action on the part of South America and Mexico.

Peru and Ecuador were in favor of convening a congress of Latin-American republics with a view of trying to bring about an active co-operation towards peace in Europe. This tendency is not so strong since the rupture between Brazil and Germany.

La Epoca, the organ of the Government party, recommends that the nation remain quiet and to imitate the calm attitude of France and England on the eve of the war. Diplomatic circles are of the opinion that the matter of the torpedoing of the Argentine ship will be settled diplomatically. Manifestations continue in the streets, the people demanding that the German Minister be handed his passports, and denouncing Germany. The police have refrained from dispersing the crowds for fear of adding to the excitement.

Uruguay to Remain Neutral, But Approves U. S. Attitude.

MONTEVIEDO, April 14.—In its reply to the United States, the Uruguayan Government says Uruguay does not recognize the right to wage an unrestricted submarine war, because it is an attempt against justice, violates neutral rights and is an insult to humanity. Uruguay recognizes that the decision taken at Washington answers the situation arising from the submarine war.

The note recalls that Uruguay in due course protested to Germany against the submarine warfare, adding that Uruguay has decided to maintain neutrality, but recognizes that the attitude of the United States is just and expresses to it its sympathy and its sentiments of moral solidarity.

Paraguayan Government Expresses Sympathy With United States.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, April 14.—The Paraguayan Government in reply to the recent note of the United States says that it recognizes profoundly that Germany's military action forced the United State to resort to arms to re-establish order and expresses its most sincere sympathies with the Government and the people of the United States.

Seven Billion Dollars Would Give $4 to Every Man, Woman and Child in World

SEVEN billion dollars!

It is difficult, even in an age when billions are spoken of as commonly as were millions a decade ago, to visualize an amount so staggering.

The Panama Canal, completed, cost the United States $325,000,000. For the amount voted by the House of Representatives yesterday, 20 similar canals could be constructed.

A great dreadnought can be built for $20,000,000. For seven billions the United States could have 350 of the biggest fighting ships, totally eclipsing all the navies of the world.

The assessed valuation of St. Louis is $652,000,000. The true value of all the property of the city has been put at about $900,000,000. Thus about eight cities of the size of St. Louis could be duplicated for $7,000,000,000. On a valuation of 100 per cent New York is assessed at around $8,000,000,000, and Philadelphia at a little over $2,000,000,000.

Seven billion dollars means $70 for every man, woman and child in the United States and $4 for every human being in the world.

Seven billion dollars is one-fifth the value of all the farm land in the United States; one billion dollars more than the value of all the animals in the country and more than half the value of all the farm products for 1916.

The national bank deposits are something over $8,000,000,000, and the total supply of current money in the United States less than $5,000,000,000.

Seven billion dollars would practically pay the expenses of Great Britain in conducting the war for a year. It is more than the combined wealth of Spain and Portugal, and within a billion dollars of the total supply of gold of the world. It is three times the amount of silver.

Seven billions is seven times the present public debt of the United States.

But after all, $7,000,000,000 is but a small part of the Wealth of the United States, which is in excess of $200,000,000,000.

war on its own account. He opposed an amendment by Representative Sloan of Nebraska to strike out a section which permits any series of bonds issued under the bill to be convertible into bonds bearing higher interest if any subsequent bonds are issued at hihger interest by Dec. 31, 1918. The amendment was overwhelmingly rejected.

CONSCRIPT WEALTH BEFORE MEN, WOMAN LEGISLATOR SAYS

West Will Oppose Draft Ahead of Surplus Millions, Helen Ring Robinson Declares.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—State Senator Helen Ring Robinson of Colorado declared in a statement given out today that the women voters of the West were "greatly disturbed" at the talk of drafting men for the army. Mrs. Robinson is a Democrat and campaigned in seven Western States for Wilson. Her statement follows:

"We voting women in the West have been greatly disturbed over the War Department suggestion that our boys shall be drafted forthwith for this war. We are willing to give them, yet, but we are not yet willing to see them reduced to the level of European conscripts. That seems to us too much like Prussianism we are in this war to oppose, too much like trying to cast out the devil in the name of the devil.

"Mr. Wilson himself furnished us our platform when he said that we were going into the war because of the destruction of human life, not over property rights. By the same token, before we yield to the conscription of life, we demand the conscription of property for this war. The superfluous millions of Mr. Rockefeller, for instance, should be conscripted for the country's use ahead of the life of the young lad whose life is all he has. The West will certainly oppose the conscription of men unless accompanied by the conscription of money."

GOVERNMENT SEEKS TO AVERT REVENUE LOSS ON WHISKY

To Meet Warehouse Withdrawals Effective Date of New Tax May Be Advanced.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—To meet heavy withdrawals of distilled spirits from bonded warehouses in anticipation of a raised tax rate in the forthcoming war revenue bill, Congress probably will be asked to make the effective date of the new tax earlier than the passage of the measure. Thus the Government would obtain increased revenue of many million gallons of whisky which it would otherwise lose.

Approximately 210,000,000 gallons of whisky is stored at the present time in bonded warehouses, subject to withdrawal upon the distiller's order. Officials compare the situation with that in 1904 when the tax rate was raised from 90 cents to $1.10 a gallon. Forty million gallons were withdrawn then between the passage of the act and its effective date, the Government losing $8,000,900 in revenue.

Proposals as to the new rate of taxation indicate that the tax on whisky probably will be raised from $1.10, the present rate, to $2 per gallon. This would net the Government an addition of about $100,000,000 annually. The present rate on beer is $1.50 per barrel, and indications are that it too will be raised to at least $2, increasing the net revenue to the Government by approximately $15,000,000 annually.

He was sent to the city hospital, and William Daiger of 110W Russell avenue, who was driving the car, was sent to the city dispensary, where an entry of "alcoholism" was made on the record.

He was arrested on a charge of careless driving. Another passenger, Michael O'Neil of 4576 West Belle place, suffered a cut over the right eye.

250 WOMEN IN ENCAMPMENT TO OPEN TOMORROW

Will Live Under Military Discipline for 20 Days at Little Falls.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—More than 250 women, representing forty states, will be here Monday at the opening of the second encampment of the National Service School, held under the auspices of the Woman's Section of the Navy League.

For 20 days those women, many of them well known society girls, will live under military discipline in army tents, and will be instructed by doctors and nurses of the Red Cross and by non-commissioned officers of the army, the navy and the marine corps.

The camp is situated on a Government reservation of 27 acres at Little Falls and Conduit road.

It is expected that Secretary Baker, Secretary Daniels and Maj. Gen. Barnett, commandant of the Marine Corps, will be present at the opening ceremonies on Monday.

Mrs. Frank Fletcher, wife of Rear Admiral Fletcher, will raise the American flag over the encampment. She will be assisted by Mrs. Hugh L. Scott, wife of the chief of staff of the American army, and Mrs. Barnett, wife of Gen. Barnett.

Reveille for the women campers will be sounded at 6:30, and from that time until taps at 9:30, a regular army routine is prescribed which will keep all the campers busy.

The girls will be commanded by officers selected from graduates of the first school held at Chevy Chase last spring.

VROOMAN CONFERS WITH ST. LOUISANS ON FOOD PROBLEM

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Advocates Increased Production and Economy.

Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, who is touring the South and the Mississippi Valley on a campaign to educate the people of the necessity of food conservation, arrived in St. Louis last night from Dallas, Tex., and went into conference with a committee of St. Louis business men and bankers.

Those attending the meeting, held in the Missouri Athletic Association Building, aside from Vrooman, were Herman Danforth, president of the Federal Land Bank; Carl H. Schlapp, president Krenning-Schlapp Grocer Co.; James E. Smith of the Third National Bank; Manley G. Richmond, president of Shaw & Richmond Produce Co.; Benjamin S. Read, vice president Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.; John Ballard, president of the Merchants' Exchange, and Hiram Vrooman of Champaign, Ill., a brother of Carl Vrooman.

Outlines Food Plans.

At this meeting Vrooman, in outlining to the business men and bankers his plan for the conservation of food and the producing of more food, was heard with interest and was assured by the committee that St. Louis would do her share in promoting and extending this plan.

Vrooman, to a Post-Dispatch reporter, said:

"This great European war has developed itself into nothing more now than a food war. All the nations at war are hungry, and most probably the nations best supplied with foodstuffs will be victorious. The first thing the United States must do for her allies is to supply food and money. The South, of which Missouri is a part, does not sustain itself in food. It imports from the North and Northwest from $700,000,000 to a billion dollars worth of foodstuffs annually. This great amount naturally draws from the rest, so my effort in this campaign is to try and show the South how she can make herself self-sustaining, this being her contribution to the war of which the United States is now a part.

Must Produce and Save.

"Everywhere I have been through the South, of course only visiting the larger centers, organizations have been effected among the business men, the bankers and the farmers, and local agents of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, whereby this thought is promoted as the primary thought of the South. I say the day of kings is past, cotton has been king long enough, for we must have a democracy of crops. Fully 25 per cent of the acreage now planted in cotton should be devoted to the production of foodstuffs. Not only must we get more food by raising it, but we must get more food by saving it. This also means the eating of substitutes.

"At the meeting tonight the committee promised me that they will, through the Merchants' Exchanges, the banks and wholesalers, start a campaign of the education of crop production and then conservation.

"One man at the meeting, and who is one of the biggest business men in the city told me that his son is in the army, and that until tonight he envied this son the right to help the country, but now he sees his opportunity, and will grasp it, and serve his country while in his office."

Vrooman departs tonight at 9 o'clock.

WEEK'S MORTALITY FIGURES

Births in St. Louis last week were only nine more than the deaths, which totaled 266. Twenty-two persons died of acute contagious diseases. Measles were fatal in eight cases, scarlatina in four, diphtheria in four, whooping cough in two and cerebro-spinal fever in four.

There were 55 deaths from pneumonia and 32 from nephritis. Three suicides and four homicides were reported.

KIRKSVILLE MINES TO REOPEN

Were Shut Down Following Dispute Over Discharge of Foreman.

KANSAS CITY, April 14.—Approximately 10,000 coal miners will resume work in 50 mines in and about Kirksville, Mo., on Monday, according to information from D. A. Frampton, president of District 25 of the miners' organization, to W. L. A. Johnson, general commissioner of the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' Association, and announced by the latter here tonight. Conferences over difficulties will follow, he said.

The shutting down of the mines in the district, according to Johnson, resulted from refusals of the operators to discharge a mine foreman at the request of the miners.

GOVERNOR VETOS BILL PROHIBITING SALE OF WEAPONS

Allender Measure Held to Discriminate Against Missouri Firms Handling Arms.

Gov. Gardner in Jefferson City yesterday announced he had vetoed the Allender bill passed by the last Legislature, which prohibited the sale of weapons within the State except on the procuring of a permit. The reason given was that it would discriminate against Missouri firms which sold weapons.

The bill was drawn by Chief of Detectives Allender, who said it was needed to prevent the purchase of weapons by criminals and minors, and who contended that its passage would do more than anything else to lessen the number of murders, highway robberies and other crimes.

Chief Allender made frequent trips to Jefferson City at his own expense during the session of the Legislature in the interests of the bill and was responsible for its passage.

Gov. Gardner in vetoing it said that A. L. Shapleigh, chairman of the board of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., and George W. Simmons, president of the Simmons Hardware Co., and many small dealers in the State had asked him to veto it on the ground that it was discriminating against Missouri merchants, as its restrictions could not be aplied to mail order houses and merchatns outside of the State.

The Governor also said he had consulted C. W. Mansur, President of the Police Board, about the bill and that Mansur advised him to veto it.

The bill provided that before a retail merchant could sell a revolver legally the customer must obtain from the Circuit Clerk a permit to purchase it, and that the retailer must keep a record of the name of the purchaser, with the serial number of the weapon sold. It prohibited the sale of any weapon which did not have a serial number stamped upon it.

Chief Allender, who is a subordinate of the Governor and of Mansur, refused to discuss the Governor's veto.

YPRES SURVIVOR ENLISTS IN THE FIRST REGIMENT

Lawrence Aber Tells of Service With "Princess Pats"—Succumbed to Gas Attack and Was in Hospital Five Weeks.

Private Lawrence Aber, a recent recruit in Company F, First Regiment Missouri Infantry, has the distinction of being one of the few survivors of the "Princess Pats" regiment of Canadian Infantry, who were almost completely wiped out in May, 1916, when holding an exposed position in the British line before Ypres, France.

Aber, who is 28 years old, related to a Post-Dispatch reporter an account of his experiences in Princess Patricia's regiment subsequent to his enlistment as a private, in September, 1914. After a few weeks of guard duty along the Welland Canal, the "Princess Pats," 1200 strong, sailed from Montreal in January, 1915, on the Celtic. Arriving at Salisbury Plain, the regiment went into training, and it was here, Aber said, that about 300 men were seized with a contagious spinal ailment, caused by an unhealthy sanitary condition of the camp. Many of them died, he said.

In April, 1915, the regiment was sent to Havre, France, and from there to the front. Aber was detailed to signal duty in the front line trenches and saw his first action in the low, marshy country near the sea, in the North of France.

No Easy Life.

"Life was not so easy in the trenches, either," he said. "When we woke up in the morning everything would be frozen up tightly. At noon we would be in mud up to our necks.

"After seven weeks' constant duty in the trenches, some of the men's nerves were 'all shot' and we got permission to be relieved. One misty morning at daybreaw I swam an icy creek on my way to the rear.

"I saw a party of Germans a little farther on, but I thought they were our prisoners until I approached within 25 yards of them and saw they were a scouting party carrying hand grenades. Two of the Germans saw me and fired. I dropped as if I had been wounded and lay like dead, soaking wet and shivering with cold. I couldn't figure out what the devil to do for a minute. I could see two British outposts about a quarter of a mile away and I started to crawl on my hands and knees. Just then I heard a German talking near me and I started to run. One of them threw a hand grenade and I guess it 'knocked' me all right, because I woke up later in a hospital dressing station."

Aber was present during the first part of a seven-day siege in the region of the Marne, in which the "Princess Pats" sustained their most serious losses. Despite their gallant defense, the "Princess Pats" were forced to retreat from an opening, 700 yards long, gained previously by a Scottish regiment. On the fifth day of the attack Aber was overcome by gas fumes and sent to a base hospital.

Succumbs to Gas Attack.

"The first three days consisted of a constant bombardment with shrapnel," he said. "The Germans tried to make us just as miserable as possible and they certainly succeeded. One-third of our men died from suffocation, literally buried in mud. We had to bail out the trench constantly to keep the water below the level of our armpits.

"I was asleep when the first gas attack came, and I awoke with it thick and vapory on my face. It made me deathly sick. Fortunately, the wind shifted and that night I went to a field hospital in the rear. My heart, lungs and stomach were affected and I spent five weeks in the hospital. When I applied to rejoin my regiment I was told by an assigning physician in Havre, France, that only 28 survivors had reported, five of whom later died. 'That night you came in,' the doctor told me, 'the Germans retook the trench.'"

Aber and the others were promoted to the rank of Color Sergeants. He was sent to recruiting duty in England and Canada and on Sept. 19, 1916, received an honorable discharge.

Aber is from Easton, Pa. He recently tried to enter guard regiments in Denver and Kansas City, but was told the units were full. He is anxious for active service.

SUPREME COUNCIL, ROYAL ARCANUM, IN RECEIVERSHIP

Federal Judge in Boston Makes Appointment on Petition of a Member.

BOSTON, April 14.—Thomas J. Boynton, formerly Attorney-General of Massachusetts, was appointed receiver of the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum by Federal Judge Aldrich today.

The appointment was made on petition of Arthur L. Hobart of Braintree, a member of the order, who holds a death benefit certificate calling for $500.

Hobart alleged that the reserve fund of the organization, amounting to $3,800,000, had been illegally administered and it would be entirely depleted within two years unless the court interfered. He asked that an injunction be issued restraining the officers from further administering the funds and that the receiver wind up the affairs of the council.

The petition stated that $110,000 was lost last year in the sale of bonds of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and that in 1915 the sum of $1,500,000 was illegally used in the payment of preferential death benefit claims.

Royal Arcanum Supreme Regent Says Receivership Is Unjustified.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Samuel N. Hoag, supreme regent of the Royal Arcanum, said here today that the appointment in Boston of a receiver for the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum was without justification and that an effort would be made to vacate the receivership.

"The appointment of a receiver was absolutely without notice to the order and certainly without justification," he said. "Our order is both commercially and actuarially solvent, with all death claims promptly paid and with a cash surplus of four million of dollars over and above all known obligations. Our general counsel and legal representatives will be in Boston early Monday morning to move promptly and effectually in vacating the order of the court in the receiver's appointment."

Statement Says Boston Court Acted Without Notice to Officials.

J. F. Hickey, grand regent of Missouri; Amedee Peting, member of the Finance Committee of the supreme council; F. H. Bacon and L. J. Meiser, members of the supreme council, all of St. Louis, issued a statement yesterday that the Boston court acted without notice to any official of the Royal Arcanum order. Howard C. Wiggins of Rome, N. Y., supreme counsel, will apply tomorrow morning to have the order vacated.

"A recent examination of the affairs of the order," the statement continues, "showed that it was absolutely solvent and it has promptly paid all claims that have been allowed by the proper authorities. The order has ample funds to meet all its obligations and all of its actions have been approved by the State officials of Massachusetts and all other states in which it does business.

"Evidently this application is the result of a conspiracy and is one example of the concerted attempts that have been made to wreck fraternal orders and by having a receiver appointed and working a reinsurance scheme, dissipate the assets of the order. Undoubtedly this application for a receiver was made by misrepresentations and exaggerated statements and when the court has an opportunity to reconsider its action, it will promptly vacate the appointment of a receiver.

"The Royal Arcanum has been in existence for nearly 40 years and has never lost a penny by any defalcation or mismanagement. Its affairs are in perfect condition.

"Apparently, the application was made by the holder of a $500 certificate and the claim was probably resisted on the ground of no liability."

Anthony S. Robinson of 5529 Von Versen avenue is supreme treasurer of the order. He is now in California. The Royal Arcanum, according to Hickey, now has 175,000 members. Prior to the readjustment of rates last fall it had 240,000 members. The present membership in Missouri is about 7000. Prior to the readjustment it was more than 9000.

ACTION EXPECTED SOON ON FREIGHT INCREASE PETITION

Railroads Confident Interstate Commerce Commission Will Grant Advances in Rates.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Indications are that the Interstate Commerce Commission will act within the next few days upon the petitions of the railroads of the country asking for an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates. Railroad men are confident that a substantial portion of the increase, if not all, will be allowed.

All proposals under consideration by the commission favor having new rates become effective not later than June 1, and it appears probable that any increases authorized will go into effect on that date.

To formulate and print the proposed new tariffs, giving each rate in dollars and cents, would require months of labor. The railroads have presented a plan for a supplement to existing tariffs which would dispense with that method so far as possible, a short computation only being required to show the new rates.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE FRAMES WAR EMERGENCY LEGISLATION

Would Prohibit Manufacture of Liquor and Forbid Its Sale to Soldiers or Sailors.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—An anti-liquor legislation program for the war emergency was adopted here today by the legislative Committee of the Anti-saloon League of America. It proposes prohibition of the sale of liquor to soldiers or sailors, dry zones around camps, absolute prohibition of interstate commerce in liquors or the inclusion of intoxicants within the terms of the anti-narcotic act, and forbidding the use of grain or other food material for the manufacture of liquors.

Nine Wage Conferees Named.

NEW YORK, April 14.—A sub-committee to decide what percentage of wage increase should be granted to 225,000 miners in the bituminous coal fields of Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Western Pennsylvania, was appointed at the conference of Representatives of Miners and Operators here today. It organized immediately and began its deliberations.

Chandler Power IS Power

Chandler power is not power on paper. It is power on the hills and mountain-sides; it is power in the mud and sand.

Four years of skilful and conscientious manufacturing effort have developed and refined the Chandler motor to a point approximating perfection. Chandler owners long ago named it The Marvelous Motor, and now, more than ever before, it is the wonder Six, powerful, flexible and enduring.

On high gear and without apparent labor it pulls the hard steep grades and winding hill roads where other motors shift to second.

In crowded traffic it responds to every demand.

On open roads it answers every call for speed.

The Chandler motor is a fact-motor.

The Chandler Company has never furnished to any Chandler dealer a special gear ratio.

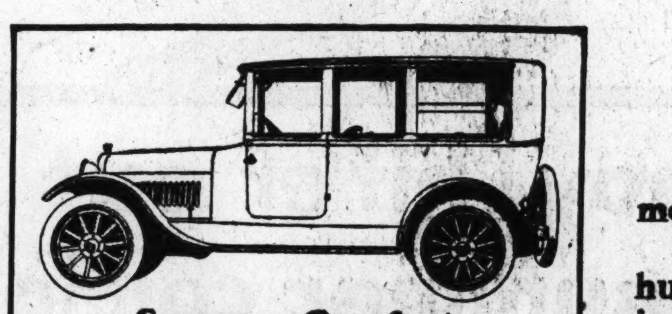
Every Chandler is a demonstrator.

Chandler motor features include:

Solid Cast Aluminum Crank Case Extending From Frame to Frame

Silent Chain Drive for Motor Shafts

Bosch High Tension Magneto Ignition



Summer Comfort Winter Luxury

THE new Chandler convertible sedan offers the most attractive seven-passenger convertible type of body yet produced. This body, Fisher-built, is exceptionally roomy and comfortable. It is deeply upholstered and mounted on springs which absorb all the stress and shock of the roadway. The left side door is immediately opposite the driver's seat so that the driver to get in or out of the car does not have to disturb its other occupants. The auxiliary seats face forward, folding down into the backs of the front seats as in the Chandler touring car, and offer the same comfortable riding qualities. The forward side windows and the door windows lower away entirely by adjustable strap. The rear side windows lower half way by adjustable strap, and are entirely removable as are the window posts. The back panel of the body is of metal, highly finished. The workmanship throughout is of pleasing refinement.

No Inflation In Chandler Price

If we asked one hundred or two hundred dollars more, the Chandler would still be under-priced.

Where many makers have added as much as three hundred dollars to their selling price within the year just past, the Chandler price is only one hundred dollars higher than the sensational low price established more than two years ago.

There is no inflation in the Chandler price.

And if we asked you to pay hundreds more just because we thought we could get it, that would not make the car better.

WATSON HOLDS RED BATTERS TO FOUR HITS AND WINS, 2-1

But "Mule" Shines Ever Brighter as a Batter, Driving Home Both Runs for Huggins' Hopefuls.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 14.—The Cardinals departed tonight for Chicago in thoroughly joyous humor, well satisfied with themselves, their prospects, and their pitchers. After staging such a comeback as theirs, after two defeats, they have a right to be blithe and giddy. They beat the Reds, 2-1, in the getaway game today.

"Wouldn't trade my pitching staff for any of 'em," said Miller Huggins, gleefully. "On my word, I didn't realize how finely we were fixed for pitchers till after today's game. Now, I know that we have at least five pippins to carry the burden. I know that Ames is as good as ever; that Steele is one of the most improved pitchers in the league, and that Watson is a top notcher just as he stands. I was tickled half to death, too, at the way Smith played third today. More strength on this ball club than it showed at the start, and lots of surprises coming."

Deserved a Shut-Out.

Mule Watson was there like a gleeful giant today. The Mule demonstrated his right to a place in the big league sunshine by hurling with such speed and power that the Reds were like little children before him. Only a bad fumble by Betzel, on an easy chance, robbed him of a shutout.

For six and two-thirds innings, the Reds got nothing that even looked like a hit. In fact, they batted the Mule so feebly that a Chinese baby could have caught all their efforts with a glove on his left ear. Four hits were made in the twilight of the game, but the Mule brayed thrice, stopped them when they grew dangerous, and went to the train rejoicing.

Pete Schneider, who beat the Cards on the opening day, pitched very good ball, enough to have won any ordinary game, but this wasn't in the ordinary groove. Pete was much out-pitched by the Mule, and left the park feeling as though he had swalowed a bottle of bluing in the dark by mistake for the amber fluid all Cincinnati people love.

The fielding of both sides was fast and snappy. And the weather was colder than the Southern edge of the Antarctic Zone.

For five innings there was nothing doing in the scoring line. A couple of hits were made off Schneider, but the base runners perished under the supervision of Wingo, who threw like an arrow all afternoon. Not a hit was made off the Mule, and everything seemed even-stephen until the Mule himself came to bat in the sixth.

"Mule" Strats a Rally.

Then some other jackass brayed, "Win your own game, Mule"—and he did. Bang went a raging smash into the rhubarbs. Cute Cueto and Kopf relayed it well; Groh put it on the sliding Mule, but let it ooze from his glove and Mule was safe at third. Bescher promptly sent a sacrifice fly to Cueto and Mule hoofed home.

With two out in the Red's half of the seventh, Roush sent a thunderous wallop to farthest right, and took three cushions. Neale rolled the softest sort of grounder to Betzel, who tried to field it with the top of his foot and the back of his hand. One error, one run.

The direful Mule won his game again in the eighth. With one gone, Schneider passed Smith and Snyder, when whomp went Mule's war club again and the ensuing single was sufficient to score Smith with what proved to be the ne plus ultra of the game. The Reds lammed Mule for two hits in their half, but a great stop by Smith saved the situation.

A Runless Rally.

With one down in the ninth, Roush cuffed a little one in front of the plate. Snyder spatted it with the heel of his pay, but had no glue thereon. Neale popped meekly to Cruise; Roush, much enraged, stole second, Snyder's throw hitting the outer regions somewhere. It was all up to Kopf and Bescher surrounded his effort without delay.

"I hear it is horribly cold in Chicago," quoth little Hug. "They will feel much colder when we get through with them up there."

The Mule Kicked 'Em!

CLYDE DEFATE.

HOPE that Cylde de Fate, infielder now with the Cardinals, would be turned over to the Browns in the near future hangs on a very slender thread, according to President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals.

Rickey stated that he discussed the matter with President Tener in Cincinnati, last week, and was informed that at least two clubs claim De Fate rather than allow him to pass out of the league.

In fact, every wheel in the political machines of two major leagues will have to spin before De Fate is permitted to lawfully transfer his allegiance from Robison Field to Sportsman's Park.

De Fate is the player mentioned in the settlement between Branch Rickey and Phil Ball. Rickey agreed to use all his influence to have De Fate sent to the Browns.

However, it isn't any easy matter to bring about this transfer. First, Rickey must get permission of seven National League clubs and then he must have the O K of two American League clubs that have priority over the Browns in the draft.

As business manager of the Browns Rickey asked Huggins to draft De Fate for the Browns. Huggins filed his draft, won the player and kept him.

Soldan High and McKinley Win in Opening Battles

Former Wallops Yeatman, 9—3, While Latter Noses Out Cleveland, 5—3.

McKinley and Soldan obtained a running start in the High School Baseball League when they opened the season with victories yesterday at High School Field. McKinley won from Cleveland, 5—3, in the morning, while in the afternoon game Soldan pounded out a victory over Yeatman, 9—3. The first game was productive of some very clever pitching, while the latter contest was marked by hard and frequent hitting.

Schulz was the individual star of the first game. He pitched a truly masterful game and deserved a better fate. However, a streak of wildness, one hit and the errors of a teammate at a critical stage beat him. Not one of McKinley's five runs was earned. Schulz was easily the best pitcher of the day. He allowed only three hits and fanned 12 opposing batters. Hager, his opponent, also pitched a good game, allowing five hits, two earned runs and striking out eight.

Soldan, deemed a hopeless wreck because of the loss of seven regulars of last year's team, displayed a wonderful attack in winning from Yeatman. The attack was vested in two men who did all the hitting. They were A. Gazzolo and Wetzel with three hits each, all of which figured in the scoring. Jones pitched a fair game for Soldan. But it remained for McCloskey to show the real twirler of the game when he sent Rutger in to relieve Winkleman. He fanned four with a nice pitching motion and should not have been scored on.

Willard Has Not Made Application for Enlistment

Recruiting Officer Denies Champion's Statement That He Was Rejected.

CHICAGO, April 14.—Capt. F. R. Kenney, in charge of recruiting for the regular army in the Chicago district, said today that he had received no reply from Jess Willard with reference to enlistment of the latter.

A telegram to President Wilson offering the pugilist's services was made public a week or more ago. Willard on the same day left for Norfolk, Va., wither Capt. Kenney sent a letter saying his services would be accepted.

A newspaper clipping quoting Willard at Norfolk as saying that he had been refused enlistment at Chicago because of his height and weight was shown to Capt. Kenney.

"Our records do not show such application," said Capt. Kenney. "However, if Jess thinks his bulk a bar I wish to assure him that I have full authority to waive such restriction and will accept him by wire, if he wishes to join the colors. There is nothing in the world to keep him out of the ranks if he wants to join, and as I wrote him we need him."

GIANT DRIVE IS ON; BRAVES ARE BEATEN AGAIN, 6-2

TESREAU IS STRONG

He Yields Only Five Hits, Fans Seven and Has Only One Bad Inning.

BOSTON, April 14.—New York defeated Boston again today 6 to 2. Tyler for Boston was ineffective, the Giants hitting consecutively in the fourth, fifth and seventh innings, for their scores. A wild throw by Maranville figured in their last run. Herzog's batting was a dominant factor.

After pitching six innings in midseason form, Tesreau weakened and the Braves scored two runs in the seventh and kept the Giants pitcher in difficulties, although without further scoring for the rest of the game. Score:

BROOKLYN, April 14.—Philadelphia made it two straight from Brooklyn today by hard batting against Smith and Coombs, making seventeen hits for a score of 11 to 3. BAKER INJURED; MAY BE OUT OF GAME FOR MONTH

YANKS GO OVER, 7—2

Chase Southpaw Pennock From Hill and Clout Mays, Who Replaces Him.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Manager Barry of the Boston Americans sent a left-handed pitcher against New York for the third straight time, but the Yankees rebelled and knocked Pennock out of the box in the sixth inning, winning their first game of the season, 7 to 2. Consecutive hits in the sixth inning by High, Maisel, Pipp and Aragon, a sacrifice by Magee and the squeeze play gave New York three runs and the game. New York closed with three runs off Mays in the eighth.

Frank Baker, the Yankees' third sacker, had his left thumb broken in the second inning, when he was hit by a wide pitch delivered by Pitcher Pennock. The injury may keep the slugger out of the game for a month.

Just how serious the injury may be will not be determined until the X-Ray photograph taken last night is developed, but the club's physician diagnosed it as a broken thumb and this means that the hard-hitting third baseman will be lost to the Yankees for two weeks and possibly four weeks.

Athletics Rap Out 20 Hits, Win 16-4

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 14.—Connie Mack's new team gave a wonderful exhibition of hitting today, when Philadelphia beat Washington, 16 to 4. Twenty hits were made off four Washington pitchers, the real victims being Jamieson who, in the seventh inning, was hammered for seven singles, a triple and a sacrifice fly, while he handed out two bases on balls, which helped in the run-getting. Ray Bates, formerly of the Vernon, Cal., club made two triples, a double and a single in six times up and he sent in six runs. In the seventh inning Bates drove in five runs by making a triple off Jamieson with the bases filled and a double off Ayres with two bases occupied. Score:

BROWNS HITLESS BEFORE CICOTTE, SOX GO OVER, 11--0

Only 30 Batters Faced Chicago Star, Who Leads Teammates to Victory in Odd Game of Three.

By W. J. O'Connor.

ONCE, at least, in a season, the Browns batter down the doors to the Hall of No-Hit Fame and place on a pedestal there an alien pitcher. On August 30 last year they became enmeshed in a hitless imbroglio with Hubert Leonard of Boston. Yesterday, aided and abetted by a despondent scorer, they chose Eddie Cicotte, the Italian right-hander of Chicago.

It is quite incidental that the Browns were beaten, 11-0. After the first six or eight runs nobody kept cases on the Chicago score, but it is interesting to chronicle the fact that almost all the 5000 fans who were there at the start, endured to the bitter end, cheering betimes for Cicotte, who studiously applied himself to the task in hand.

Only 30 Brown batters faced Cicotte. He walked three, beaned one and still another reached first on an error, that was a half-brother to a base hit.

Austin in Villain Role.

This incident developed in the seventh frame. Six previous rounds had developed a nothingness for the Browns that palled on the populace, but suddenly it dawned on everybody that Cicotte was rapping for admittance in the Hall of No-Hit Fame.

Precisely at that moment, James Pepper Austin came to bat with two out and the Browns beaten to a pulp 11-0. Jimmy pulled a sizzling drive straight at Chick Gandil. He fumbled. And not without cause, for Jimmy's drive had whiskers like a German who was trapped for ten days on Vimy ridge.

But Gandil recovered in time to make the play at first very close. Ordinarily this would have been scored a hit for Austin, who needs it, but there was ominous unanimity in the belief that under conditions then existing, it was an agregious error. And so it was.

Pinchers Strike Out.

Thereafter not a Brown player came close to anything remotely resembling a hit. Jones even went so far as to call out the Reserves, sending up Gene Paullette and Baby Doll Jacobsen to be sacrificed to Cicotte's merciless attack in the eighth. They all went back as they came, Paulette and Jacobsen striking out with great eclat.

The fans were cheering by this time and in the ninth there was that same tension that might have existed had the Browns been on the precipice of a 1-0 victory. But as Miller popped to Schalk, Sisler popped to Gandil and Pratt popped an aenemic fly to Risberg, the proletariat cheered and called it a day.

They had been present when history was made, for no-hit games are rarer than red onions on a free-lunch counter.

One Brownie ran the Chicago dardanelles as far as third. Shotton was the bold bandit who went so far, negotiating the distance on a walk, a steal and a long fly in the first frame.

"A Base-on-Balls Rally."

Shotton again got as far as second in the third when he started a typical Brown rally with a vicious walk. Miller followed with a murderous pass and Shotton went to the advanced trenches at the Keystone where he perished.

Lavan was beaned in the fifth, but he soon wrapped up in a double play and effaced from the face of the earth.

On the other side of the pitching ledger certain entries were made that cried to heaven for vengeance. Jones used up four pitchers in all, employing three in one inning. Hamilton started and was stopped before he went two rounds. It was a cold knock-out.

Park came next and one would think that he had desecrated the American flag. The White Sox hopped on his frame for three singles and a double before he had time to think and then Jones beckoned for Rogers, who did very well although he was fighting for a lost cause.

Tigers Fail to Draw 3000 Fans to First Victory of the Year

THE Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians played to the smallest crowd that attended any of the major league contests in eight cities yesterday. Just 2851 patrons paid at the gate to see the men of Jennings win their first game of the 1917 campaign.

The estimated attendance at the eight clashes yesterday was 45,081. The Athletics drew 10,000 patrons to see them crush the Nationals.

The totals by cities was as follows: New York 10,000, Philadelphia 10,000, Brooklyn 9000, Boston 7500, St. Louis 6000, Cincinnati 5000, Chicago 5000, Detroit 2851.

Hamilton Registers Second Failure Against Sox; Cleveland Calls Today

EARL HAMILTON'S attempt to come back yesterday against the White Sox, after being knocked out on Wednesday, was entirely bogus. He started nicely by disposing of Leibold and Risberg in the first frame, but he then passed Collins. Jackson promptly doubled. Felsch flung a single into left scoring Collings, while Gandil hit one on the nose to deep center, that Marsans absorbed after a hike.

Jones suffered Ham to return in the second round, but he didn't tarry long. He beaned Weaver. Schalk doubled. Whereupon Jones grabbed the hook and pulled Ham out from under his hat.

Jim Park, the eloquent orator of Lexington, Ky., was hurried to Hurling Hill. He got along with the enemy like percussion caps and dynamite. The explosion was terrific.

Cicotte singled, scoring Weaver and Schalk. Liebold singled. Risberg doubled. Collins singled and Park was rushed to the dugout on humanatarian principles. Rogers came along and stopped the rally and in fact demeaned himself like a gentleman and a scholar.

In seven innings, the Sox got only two hits off Rogers. True, he walked four, but with solid support he might have escaped without a run being scored.

Yesterday's game was the last for the Sox in this neck of the woods until May 5, when they return for six games in five days. Tomorrow the Cleveland Indians ,thrilled by a successful invasion of Detroit, will make their season's bow at Sportsman's park and Manager Jones intends to introduce them to Bob Groom. Bob beat the Indians in his first out last season and hopes to repeat. Joe Wood may work for Cleveland. Jim Bagby is second choice.

Eddie Collins finally found his batting eye yesterday. He walked twice, made two hits and scored three runs However, he was robbed of a hit on the longest drive of the day, because Marsans ran five miles into left center and took his well designed triple down with his finger tips. Marsans has only one peer as a defensive man. He's here today. None other than Tristam Speaker, a Texas gentleman, suh!

Three hard drives were hit by the Browns in their bleak afternoon's effort. Lavan hit a long liner that Jackson grabbed in the second inning while Austin whaled two, one in the fourth that went to Collins, another in the seventh that Gandil couldn't handle. Pepper Jim is hitting the ball hard but they simply won't go where "they ain't."

During the sixth or seventh inning of every game at Sportsman's park the engineer begins to fire up and those who are foolish enough to wear linen colors forthwith suffer. Soot falls in copious quantities while the smoke ruins the day for those in the upper deck.

The White Sox didn't have an assist until after two were out in the fourth inning. Prior to that time the Browns were popping 'em up with great abandon.

Let's Join the Army!

983 Mares Nominated for $21,000 Kentucky Futurity Next October

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 14.—Nine-hundred and eighty three mares have been nominated for the $21,000 Kentucky futurity to be trotted here next October according to the announcement made tonight by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. This is the largest number of nominations in the last 10 years, and exceeds the number of last year by 68.

This is the first renewal of the futurity under the exclusive trotting conditions, the pacing feature having been eliminated during the last winter.

Thirty-six nominators entered five or more mares. The Walnut Hall Farm, of this city, owned by the [illegible] Harkness estate, heads the list with an even 100 mares. W. E. D. Stokes, of New York is second with 51. C. K. G. Billings, of Curles Neck Farm, Richmond, Va., was third with 44.

San Francisco (2:07 ¾) tops the list of sires, with 81 mares. Peter The Great is credited with [illegible].

'LITTLE CHANCE TO STRENGTHEN CARDS FOR PRESENT RACE'

—BRANCH RICKEY.

Team Weak in Defense, Pitching and Reserves, Club's New President Finds.

OLD TIMBER NOT WANTED

Plans for Development Will Be Timed for the 1918, Rather Than 1917 Campaign.

By John E. Wray.

President Rickey of the Cardinals is not hiding his head in the sand to avoid viewing the horrifying facts concerning his ball club. Realizing that he is being paid $15,000 to put the Cards on the map, he is taking stock of his club methodically and without prejudice, in order to know what remedies are needed and where to apply them.

Rickey returned from Cincinnati, yesterday, where he assimilated two performances of his club and salted them away in his thought tower. Among the conclusions he reached, following the games and a brief study of conditions, were the following:

That the Cardinals are weak on defense.

That the club is very weak in reserve material.

That it needs two or more additional good pitchers.

That the chance of getting needed additional strength for this campaign is remote.

That his big drive toward improvement should be aimed at the 1918 season.

Only One Sound Department.

"I have still a lot to learn about the club. But this much was clear to me: The team's defense, rather than its attack, is its weak point. The fielding against Cincinnati was poor, in some cases. This is one thing that can be bettered.

"The principal thing I note about the team is its pitiful lack of reserve strength. Even if we keep De Fate, the infield utility department is so weak that if accident should cut down two of our regulars, we would be in hopeless shape. The outfield is little better. We need pitchers badly, but in catchers we are all right.

"I have already begun laying lines for next year, realizing that we will be most fortunate if we should pick up good young material in midseason. I look for no increase in strength that will help the present campaign, although we will be on the watch. Our lines must be laid for next year, not this.

"We are not going out to pick up veterans who might be useful for a season and then collapse. We want to build for the future—and permanency."

It's sound sense Rickey dispenses. But the supporters of the club will have to exercise patience in the meantime. And patience is harder to exercise than a microbe's biceps.

As to Those "Boys."

The "boy" feature of the Cardinal idea is being unfolded slowly and changing its form, somewhat. Originally it was contemplated that each shareholder should specify one boy who was to be the recipient of a permanent pass. An exclusive Cardinal Set of boys would thus be created.

As Rickey now sees the light the plan will be this: A commission of six men, interested in boy development, will take over the surplus passes and arrange to distribute them among different social and political sections of the city, so that the benefits will reach a far greater number, and no exclusive faction created.

Boy Idea Will Be Costly.

The Cardinal whim regarding the boy is going to be carried out at a considerable cost to the club. The owners of other cities seemingly have not agreed to let the boys see the games gratis, so that the Cardinals will have to settle for all extra passes issued in the form of stockholders' tickets.

The cost will be abated by a plan to have all other passes abolished. The proportion alotted each league club will be charged off in favor of the "boys," leaving a smaller payment to be made visiting teams. Payment will be made at the rate of 12½ cents per boy.

The Case of De Fate.

Rickey states that he took up the question of transferring De Fate to the Browns, as per agreement in the settlement of the Ball injunction suit. President Tener, Rickey states, told him that there was a very slim chance that National League owners would all waive on De Fate. In fact, two of them have made it known that if waivers are asked they stand ready to claim the infielder who is causing such a snarl.

Thus a good hitter and substitute will probably be retained by the club, to the relief of Huggins, no doubt.

PITCHER STEMMONS WINS OWN GAME FOR TIGERS

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 14.—The Ames baseball nine lost its second game to the Tigers, 5 to 4, today, giving the Missouri team its fourth straight conference victory this season. The game was won by Twirler Stemmons of the Missouri nine, who planted a single in centerfield the last of the ninth after Dippold had scored a threebagger. Eleven strikeouts were credited to Stemmons, nine to Greenly. Greenly allowed nine and Stemmons eight hits. Missouri started scoring in the fifth inning, when three men came in. Ames rallied in the sixth, when a threebagger by Davis brought in Shellito. Three runs by the Iowa boys in the seventh put them in the lead, Aldrich, Shellito and Brotherlin coming in. Missouri tied the score in the eighth and anexed the winning score in the ninth.

Iowa Defeats Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 14.—The University of Chicago lost the opening game in the Western intercollegiate conference season to the University of Iowa, 9 to 7, here today. The Iowan scored 8 runs off Larkin in the first three innings. Marum, who supplanted him, held the visitors to one score. The score:

WRAY'S COLUMN

That Welsh-Nelson Fight.

PARTIES who consistently practice the "hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may" stuff, have their dark hours, which even the consciousness of a stern duty rigidly done cannot illuminate. The writer who tries it is particularly apt to render himself very unpopular with himself, and to sour his own milk of human kindness.

For that reason, when numerous requests to express an "honest" opinion as to the merits of the coming Welsh-Nelson fight were received, Old Man Dope low-bridged the question, at first, but finally looked it in the eye. He isn't going to feel a bit satisfied with the answer. But, after all, even friendship can hardly be expected to make one go so far as to refer to a corpse as "getting along splendidly;" or to induce a building inspector to OK a ruin.

Bat Takes It Seriously.

THUS, we are compelled to admit that we believe the coming contest, as embodying what most followers of boxing like to see when they pay for a ring-side seat, will be a bit of a disappointment.

The fact that the champion is willing to come for $2000 (instead of $10,000), that Nelson is willing to box for a percentage of the receipts without any guarantee, and that the highest price charged for a seat is the comparatively reasonable sum of $3, would indicate that neither the principals nor the promoters take the "championship" aspect of the contest seriously.

Yet, Nelson declares, he is very serious about it. With the reluctance to admit reverses that has characterized his whole career, he still stands pat on the belief that Freddie Welsh is one fighter whom he can beat. Bat admits he himself is not the fighter he used to be; but he asserts that he can still defeat Welsh.

Easy for Welsh.

WE will have to follow a different trail from Nelson, here. As far as Nelson's ability to hurt Welsh is concerned, we believe that Freddie is taking no chance whatever in the coming bout. If he is only half himself, Nelson, never a first-rate BOXER, will be hard pressed to lay a glove on Welsh. The latter has been training for Benny Loenard and is reported to be in good condition. If he is, Bat will have to hire a taxi to get within telephoning distance of victory.

For Welsh is a master boxer and, above all, a leader in the art of "safety first." In the short fights of the present day he is altogether master of Nelson and would have been in the latter's hey-day.

The Evidence Against Bat.

THERE is no possible way by which one can figure a man who has served 21 years in the ring, who is seven years past his championship prime, and wo has taken some of the most stupendous poundings ever administered in the ring to have even a bare chance against a man who is still champion, younger, faster, far more skillful and who was never seriously punished in his life.

Much as we admire the grand old ruin, it is impossible to believe that Nelson can ever be restored into the Colossus of old.

He's a Remarkable Guy.

THE more you probe the Battler's record, the more astonished one becomes at what he finds there, for example:

Nelson has battled only once in the last 14 months, knocking out Pierce Mathews here a few days ago. But two years ago he fought and won a 25-round fight—something no other featherweight championship fighter in the world can say—not even Champion Welsh. Most of the featherweights of today never fought a 25-round battle; and Freddie Welsh never had but two, one of which was a draw.

Bat's battle was fought at Havana, Cuba, against Jimmy Freyer. The same year he also fought a 20-round bout at Juarez, Mexico, against that tough Texan, Bobby Waugh, and lost a decision.

Nelson's Condition Good.

BAT appears in good shape outwardly, today. The O. K. has been put on his hands by "Honester" Reese, who has examined them eight times in the last five years. His waistline is slim, and there is not a sign of high living or self-indulgence about the old Battler.

Although seared almost beyond recognition, to those who have not seen him in the last few years, he still seems rugged and strong, and has done a lot of work for the coming contest.

Old as he is, we would rather see Bat have the title than Welsh—it would be defended, then, regularly, instead of once in three years—since July 7, 1914, to be exact.

Our Baseball Militants.

KEEP your mind on this: All that the baseball players learned about military affairs during their spring training wouldn't enable an army of them to deploy across the street, if ordered to. Scribes who have watched the men at training camps say that some of them are hopeless.

In their exhibition drill at the local inaugural, hopeless was a mild word. The White Sox manager declares that half a dozen of his men can't walk down the street straight, and that orders might as well be pronounced in Sanscrit, to some of them. The sergeants have had tremendous trouble drilling the manual into some of the coaches. Most of the non-coms thought a gimlet would help, if they were to start over again.

But we suspect that most of the backwardness is due to lack of interest in what was going on. No player is eager to become too proficient at an accomplishment which would deprive him of $5000 a season and give him $15 a month in return.

Tinker Wants First Sacker.

COLUMBUS, April 14.—Manager Tinker of the Columbus team of the American Association is pulling the wires to land a major leaguer for first base. Tinker tried to get Gene Paulette of the St. Louis Americans and also made overtures for Fred Merkle of the Brooklyn Nationals, but failed to close a deal. Fielder Jones, manager of the St. Louis club, flatly refused to consider an offer for Paulette.

Fisher to Meet Owen Dailey in Mat Title Match

Lightweight Champion Departs for Minden, Neb., Where He Wrestles April 19.

Jack Fisher, lightweight wrestling champion by virture of his victories over Al Wasem and Johnny Billiter in this city, recently, departed last night for Minden, Neb., where he is matched to wrestle Owen Dailey for the tile and a percentage of the house.

Dailey refused to risk any money of his own on the match, according to Fisher, who won $2000 on the Billiter bout here. Instead, Dailey referred Fisher to friends who, he said would accommodate him with side wagers. Dailey also refused to wrestle winner-take-all, a condition of the Billiter match.

Dailey explained that he did not want to wrestle a defensive match, as he did the previous meeting with Fisher, when nearly $20,000 was bet on the bout by himself and his friends. Fisher mortgaged his farm, pawned his wife's jewels and put up all his available cash, on that occasion.

Both men were extremely cautious, particularly Dailey, who took a defensive posture throughout and hoped to win by merely outlasting his rival. After over four hours of futile tugging, the referee called the contest a draw.

Dailey and Fisher wrestled once before that, going two hours to a draw. Thus the men have engaged in a total of six hours wrestling, without either man gaining a fall.

Fisher has been challenged by another lightweight star, John Makie, who, two years ago gained a fall over Dailey and who also beat Billiter. Fisher asserts that Makie, a Finlander, can have a match if he can show sufficient coin in the form of a wager—the only way in which lightweights can get the money, it appears.

POWER BOAT RETATTA TO BE HELD IN JULY

MINNEAPOLIS, April 14.—The Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association regatta, scheduled for July 3, 4 and 5, has been cancelled because of war conditions, it was announced here today. Plans for the gold cup races of the power boat association are going ahead, but may be abandoned later according, to officials of Mississippi-Minneapolis Association. Dates for the meeting were announced today as August 28, 29 and 30. Both meets were to have been held on the new course in the Mississippi River here.

Carl Morris Dangerous Rival for Willard's Crown, Referee States

"WOULD Carl Morris have any chance against Jess Willard?" Referee Bill Brown of New York was asked by a sporting news writer. As referee of the fight in which Morris fairly whipped Fred Fulton a few nights ago, Bill was suspected of knowing something about Morris.

"He certainly would," said Bill, emphatically. "Morris is a mighty strong big man. He's big enough to fight Willard, and he can get into good shape for an important fight like that. He was thin for Fulton, down around 220 pounds. He trained hard because he wanted to beat Fulton to get at Willard and he showed that in shape he's a dangerous man.

"Morris' strength amazed me. He handled Fulton like a welterweight. Fulton was helpless in his hands.

"I couldn't believe it when I saw Morris start fighting, and for the first round I actually thought Fulton must be kidding him. Morris rushed right out at the beginning of every round and went straight to Fulton. As soon as he was in range he began pounding at Fulton's body. He had changed his style entirely since I saw him fight last time. He fought like old Terry McGovern. He just droped his chin on his chest to cover his jaw and went straight in without paying any attention to anything Fulton could do. Morris didn't butt, although it may have looked that way to some of the spectators. He never moved his head an inch forward, up or sidewise to hit Fulton with it. He simply held his face straight to the front, with his head lowered a little, and stuck close, pounding away all the time. Fulton soon began to squeal, but if there was any butting and holding, it was by Fulton, not Morris. I never had any reason to lay a hand on either man until after the foul.

"Morris was too game and too strong for Fulton. He kept Fulton backing all over the ring, but Fulton only got away once, for about 10 seconds, far enough to get in his long-range work. In that 10 seconds he hit Morris with about 10 lefts, but it was the only time he had a chance.

"I was so surprised by the way Morris fought that it wasn't until the second round I began to realise that he was actually beating Fulton. When the end came Fulton was ready to drop. Then he struck a foul blow. It looked a deliberate foul to me.

"Before that night I thought Fulton was the greatest heavyweight prospect in the world. He looked like a second Fitzsimmons. But Fitzsimmons had a heart.

"Morris would have a chance with Willard at any time. He's the gamest big man in the ring. He's as strong as an elephant. He has learned a style of fighting that would worry any man. And a man of his quality could give a lot of trouble to Willard or anybody else."

Before the Fulton-Morris match there was a lot of talk by Willard's backers to the effect that the winner would have first chance to meet Willard. Not one of them has peeped since

Few World's Champions 'Come Back' After Once Losing in Title Match

Stanley Ketchel, George Dixon and Bat Nelson, However, Have Proven Exceptions to the Best Known Ring Saying.

By Robert Edgren.

THE best-known saying of ring followers is: "They never come back." It applies to defeated champions.

The psychology of this alleged fact is simple enough. As a rule champions are so far superior to all rivals that they remain unwhipped until age or careless living has sapped their vitality. When they at last lose their championships they are going down hill. The loss of the tittle is a final push, after which they go faster. So it is impossible for them to turn and "come back."

But once in a while some champion loses when in his prime—in a fight with some rival of nearly equal class who has the good luck to put over a winning punch. In that case the only thing against a comeback is the well-known "Indian sign"—the nerve strain caused by fear of another defeat.

The greatest example of a comeback by a champion was furnished by Stanley Ketchel, who was an altogether exceptional fightiny man—one of the greatest in the history of the American ring.

Stanley Ketchel Did It.

From the beginning Ketchel was a ring miracle. When he had his first chance at the middleweight title he was fresh from 21 straight victories, and every fight won with a clean knockout! That's a record in itself. Ketchel's knockout string was broken by Joe Thomas, middleweight champion. Their first fight was a 20-round draw. But when they fought again, two months later, Ketchel won the title by knocking Thomas out in the thirty-second round of a most furiously contested battle. Three months later he beat Thomas again, 20 rounds, decision, and resumed his habit of knocking opponents out. The one rival who refused to take the count was Billy Papke, who stayed 10 rounds of a 10-round fight.

Just a year and six days after winning the middleweight title from Joe Thomas, Ketchel met Papke again in Los Angeles in what was to have been a 20-round fight.

In the beginning of the first round Papke caught Ketchel with a terrific swing on the jaw and knocked him down and nearly out. Ketchel staggered to his feet and fought with the courage that made him so great in the ring. He was knocked down many times and took a terrible beating for 11 rounds, refusing to allow the sponge to be thrown in to save him. Papke, who always was a marvel when winning, never let Ketchel have time to recover, and in the twelfth round landed the final swing and put the champion out.

Papke Great When Winning.

Ketchel and Papke both went to San Francisco, Ketchel to wait grimly for a chance to revenge his defeat, Papke to bask in the sunshine of pugilistic popularity. Californians who knew Ketchel and had seen him down the dauntless Thomas, believed that he could "come back" in spite of the ring tradition. Ketchel and Papke were rematched to fight in San Francisco Nov. 26, 1908, two months and a half after Papke became champion.

Dixon Did It Three Times.

Ketchel trained for that fight in grim silence. Papke, as champion, held the public attention. Papke—he was "Smiling Billy" then—smilingly told everyone he'd knock Ketchel out again.

But, when "Smiling Billy" met the grim Stanley Ketchel in the ring he seemed to realize that he was outmatched. Before a round had been fought Papke's smile had gone and he was fighting desperately to hold his own. Ketchel, furious, relentless, without a thought of possible defeat, plunged into one headlong attack that lasted until Papke lay stretched before him on the floor in the eleventh round, outclassed, whipped, knocked out, Ketchel had smashed tradition and had "come back."

Long before Ketchel's time there was another champion who lost his title three times, and three times regained it in the ring. This was the famous "Little Chocolate," George Dixon. The ring has never known a gamer or greater featherweight than the little Boston black boy. His career was sensational from the start and he made fortunes for himself and his manager, Tom O'Rourke. In 1890 Dixon won the world's bantam championship from Nunc Wallace in London, but shortly afterward gave up the title because he had outgrown the class. Dixon became feather champion in 1891, when he defeated Cal McCarthy in 22 rounds. He fought successfully until 1896, when he lost a 20-round decision to Frank Erne, at 122 pounds ringside.

Dixon Lost Featherweight Crown and Won It Back on Each Occasion

AT this time Dixon was at his best. He wasn't a defeated champion merely given a shove down hill and going faster. He met Erne again four months later, in a 25-round bout, and won the referee's decision and the title.

Seven months later, after winning a number of fights, Dixon lost again—this time to Solly Smith. Solly beat him in 20 rounds, decision, at 120 pounds. Dixon didn't have a chance to try to regain the title from Solly Smith, for Solly fought Dave Sullivan, broke his arm and lost the fight in the fifth round. So Dixon fought Dave Sullivan, who was a terror in the ring, and won on a foul in 10 rounds. He had been without his title 11 months, but he "came back."

Again Dixon lost a fight and the title. July 1, 1898, Ben Jordan of England beat him in 25 rounds. Dixon didn't have a chance to "come back" against Jordan, for Jordan risked the title in a match with Eddie Santry of Chicago, three months afterward, and was knocked out in the sixteenth round. And to show that he could "come back" once more Dixon beat Santry in 20 rounds and put the old featherweight crown on again.

Beat Santry for Crown.

This, however, was Dixon's last "comeback." He fought Terry McGovern, was knocked out in eight rounds, and from that time on fought along with indifferent success. He had reached the stage at last when the psychology of the traditional "never come back" was working. McGovern, the new titleholder, had the youth and condition that Dixon had lost forever.

Jimmy Britt became lightweight champion when Joe Gans, the titleholder, put on weight and for years was unable to defend the title. Britt whipped all the best lightweights in the country, the list including Lavigne, Erne, Sieger, Canole, Young Corbett, Battling Nelson and English champion Jabes White. Battling Nelson put an end to his career as champion by knocking him out in 18 rounds.

This was in 1905. Two years later Britt met Nelson again and gave him a savage beating, having the Dane hanging helpless over the ropes at the end of the twentieth round.

Nelson Pulled the Stunt.

Nelson did his little comeback stunt, too, when he was champion. He had won the lightweight championship from Britt in 1905. In 1906 Joe Gans announced that he would fight as a lightweight again and reclaim the title. He was matched with Nelson and won on a foul in the forty-second round. That fight at Goldfield was one of the most desperate ever seen within ropes. Nelson attacked incessantly, while Gans, hardest hitting of all lightweights, beat him off scientifically and tried to hammer him down. It was the amount of punishment the Dane assimilated in that fight that made people say he "wasn't human."

Nearly two years after the Goldfield fight Battling Nelson got a return match with Gans. Nelson "came back." He knocked Gans out in 17 rounds. Two months later he knocked Gans out again in 21 rounds.

A welterweight champion who "came back" was Rube Ferns. The Rube won the title from Mysterious Billy Smith on a foul. Shortly afterward he was beaten by Matty Matthews in 15 rounds. Seven months after that he fought Matty again and "came back" by knocking Matty out in the tenth round.

Not a Heavy "Comeback."

Since Marquis of Queensberry days no defeated heavyweight champion has ever regained his title. Nearest to the accomplishment of that feat was the performance of Bob Fitzsimmons, who knocked out by Jeffries, lost to Jeff again in a return match, and turned right around and won the world's light-heavyweight championship (his third world title) from George Gardner.

Here we have a column or two about champions who have come back after defeat. The list is short. It would be easy to write a set of books about the others who have tried to come back and have failed.

COBB WANTS JENNINGS TO TAKE TEAM TO FLORIDA

DETROIT, Mich., April 14.—Tyrus Cobb, star of the Detroit Americans, has suggested to Manager Jennings that the Tigers train on the East coast next spring.

"There is a marked absence of cooling winds in Georgia and Florida, and it would be an ideal spot for the Tigers," Cobb said. "Then, too, it would be territory that has not been visited by the Detroit team in a number of years."

Cobb pointed out that the Washington club trained at Augusta (Ty's home) this spring, and the players left there in splendid condition.

Big Net Matches Planned Despite Prospect of War

West Side Club of New York Will Disregard Action of National Tennis Body.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Julian S. Myrick, president of the West Side Tennis Club of Forest Hills, L. I., the largest organization of its sort in the world, announced yesterday that his club would stage a series of exhibition matches between the leading players of the East during the season, irrespective of the action taken by the United States aNtional Lawn Tennis Association with regard to the war.

The matches will be in the nature of individual contests, and the players who will compete will be recruited from the ranks of those available for such competition. These matches, Myrick said, would in all probability be held even if the sanctioned schedule of the National Association is not canceled. This schedule, the association announced last week, will be canceled only upon the advice of the military authorities.

The following players, among others, will be invited to play, unless they have been drafted for military service: R. Norris Williams II, the national champion; Karl H. Behr, George M. Church, Harold A. Throckmorton, Theodore Roosevelt Pell, Watson M. Washburn and S. Howard Voshell, the national indoor champion.

KENNEDY IS WINNER OF 10-MILE RUN IN BOSTON

BOSTON, April 14.—"Bill" Kennedy, representing the Morningside Athletic Club of New York, won the 10-mile run of the Cathedral A. A. here this afternoon. Several of the runners, including Kennedy, are entrants in the marathon run of the Boston A. A. to be held April 19. Kennedy had a handicap of three minutes 15 seconds.

James Henigan of the Dorchester A. C., national junior 10-mile champion, starting from scratch time, making a record for the event. He was placed third.

"PRO" SWIMMER BREAKS RECORD FOR 100 YARDS

OAKLAND, Cal., April 14.—Announcement was made today that George Dungan of Oakland broke the world's professional tank swimming record for 100 yards last night by swimming the distance in 57¼ seconds. The record was previously held by A. Wickham of Australia with a time of 1 minute 4-5 second. Frances Cowells of Oakland lowered her own American girls' record for 500 yards (tank) to 7 minutes 49 3-5 seconds from 8 minutes.

Smith-Manual Beaten.

ALTON, Ill., April 14.—Western Military Academy defeated Smith Manual of St. Louis 8 to 7. Smith pounded Colbert, Western's pitcher, in first three innings and led by seven to nothing. Western came back strong in the seventh with a batting rally, scoring six runs and won in the eighth. The Smith outfielders played good ball. Blanchard, Western's speedy shortstop, was the star of the game.

GOLFER CAN SELL SPORT GOODS AND STILL BE AMATEUR

Ruling Probably Would Make Ouimet Eligible in Events Up by Committee.

CHALLENGE TO U. S. G. A.

New Ruling Probably Would Make Ouimet Eligible in Events in This Section.

CHICAGO, April 14.—A direct challenge to the U. S. Golf Association on the amateur question was issued today by the Western Golf Association in a new definition of an amateur golfer adopted by the board of directors as drawn up by a committee consisting of President Charles F. Thompson, Secretary Charles [illegible] Smalley and Crafts W. Higgins, assistant secretary, all of Chicago.

The rule of the Western Golf Association permits an amateur to sell golf supplies, provided he does not offer such golf goods as a famous player, but simply as a dealer. This ruling differs from the United States Golf Association rule, under which Francis Ouimet and others were debarred from selling golf goods. The new rule allows professionals in baseball and other sport to be amateurs in golf which is novel.

The Western Association's new rule, on the other hand, goes further than the limitations of the United States association in regard to writers of golf articles with his titles in golf. The U. S. Golf Assocation rules allow an amateur golfer to write golf articles and sign himself as champion, thereby in a way capitalizing his prowess and fame in golf.

Ball Players as Amateurs.

Another challenge to the older association is contained in a new rule that amateur golfers may accept transportation and other bona fide expenses incidental to playing in matches given by associations or clubs, provided the expense account is submitted to the treasurer of the Western Golf Association. The United States Golf Association has stood firmly against this plan, causing the Western Golf Association's members to refuse an offer of free transportation and entertainment for the Western Amateur championship meet in California last year.

Another departure in the new rule is that any player whose amateurism is questioned cannot be proclaimed a professional, except by a two-thirds vote of the directors, and then only after the player has had a hearing.

Here's the New Rule.

The new rule which will become effective on May 1, is as follows:

1.—An amateur in golf is one who, since attaining his sixteenth year, has not directly or indirectly accepted any consideration (money or otherwise) for services as a caddy, caddymaster, or greenkeeper or for making or repairing golf clubs, or for playing or teaching the game, and who has not played for a money prize.

2.—No amateur golfer may for a consederation, (money or other wise)

A.—Take part in laying out, constructing, supervising or giving advice concerning the lay out, construction or upkeep of a golf course, or any part thereof, but this shall not apply to work confined to engineering or drainage;

B.—Lend, or allow the use of his name or likeness to anything, or for advertisement, publication or sale of anything, except in good faith, in the usual course of business, as the actual dealer, manufacturers, inventer or author of the matter or thing done, sold, advertised, or published.

C.—Exploit, advertise, publish or declare his skill, prominence, record or achievements in the game of golf in connection with any business, matter or thing, nor allow the same to be done.

Can Accept Transportation.

3.—Under special circumstances where, in the judgment of the officers of this Association, the interests of the game will thereby be subserved, and upon the written authority of said officers to whom previous application therefor shall have been made, an amateur in golf may, without forfeiting his status acept transportation and other bona-fide expenses necessarily incidental to playing in an exhibition, match, or competition, given under the auspices of a golf association or golf club that is a member of an association; provided always that a verified statement of said expenses shall be submitted to the treasurer of this association for audit and approval.

4.—Should the conduct of an amateur golfer, in the judgment of the officers of this association, be prejudicial to the best interests of amateurism, he may be debarred by a two-thirds affirmative vote of the board of directors of this association from participating in any event for amateurs sanctioned by this association, subject always to the provisions of the constitution of this association, provided, however, that no amateur shal be debarred under this section unless he has been given an opportunity for a hearing.

The new rule would allow a large number of golfers to resume employment in golf stores and probably would make Francis Ouimet an amateur in tournaments of the Western Association. The rule will affect a few amateurs who now write newspaper articles and use their titles.

Officers of the Western Golf Association have received no intimation as to what action the United States Golf Association will take in regard to this new rule.

MOLINE PLOW CO. BUILDS STEPHENS 6

"When a $19,000,000 company starts to do anything they usually start it right and then do it in a big way," says J. A. Davie of the Davie Motor Car Co., which distributes the Stephens Six in this territory.

"When we consider that the Moline Plow Co., which is the builder of the Stephens Six, is known from one end of the country to the other for its reputation as makers of farm machinery, we can expect that the same standard will be maintained in a motor car that they would build.

"In the Stephens Six they have not tried any revolutionary plans, but have adopted those features which, through years of use have proved practical and efficient.

"A powerful motor, a strong chassis and a roomy, comfortable body give it the features which exactly buyers will demand. With the huge resources of the Moline Plow Co. at their command the designers and engineers have produced a car that will prove in keeping with the reputation of the factory."

NEW SLOGAN FOR DENMO

"Safety—Service—Satisfaction," is the newly adopted slogan of the Denmo Sales Co., 3917 Olive. On the salesroom windows, on its demonstrators and on everything in connection with Denmo trucks, this slogan is to be stamped.

It is the idea of the Denmo people that these three words encompass all that any buyer of motor trucks could ask and just what they hope to give.

In designing the Denmo truck, its engineers have given it every element of safety possible, from its electric starter to its oversized frame, capable of carrying a 50 per cent overload.

For service, an elaborate system of co-operation with the owner has been worked out, which should eliminate much of the unnecessary trouble so often experienced by motor truck owners. It is comprised of a system of inspection at regular intervals for necessary adjustments and reports on conditions that will keep the owner posted at all times.

As to satisfaction, the Denmo people feel that the truck they are giving to the public, coupled with their service plan, will mean absolute satisfaction to those that operate the Denmo. The slogan means more to them than a mere catch phrase; it is, they say, a statement, in a few words, of their policy toward Denmo owners.

MADE ECONOMY RECORD

This shows Clarence Bradshaw, of San Diego, Cal., just before he started in a gasoline economy demonstration in Southern California recently in which a cup offered for the greatest economy showing was captured by Bradshaw for the Maxwell. He covered 46.5 miles on one gallon of fuel, thus outdoing by a margin of approximately one mile the famous Maxwell economy record made last year by Ray F. McNamara, who got 45.6 miles from one gallon of fuel. The new record, attested by official observers, marks what is declared to be the highest American attainment so far in converting fuel into automobile distance.

VIGAR MOTOR CO. CHANGE

The reorganization of the Vigar Motor Co., Ford dealers, with a change of name, has recently been effected. The new name is the Riefling-Vigar Automobile Co. Arrangements have been made for the erection of new premises at the northwest corner of Jefferson avenue and Victor street, on a lot 101x116 feet, which is now being cleared. Sam E. Sievers, well known in the automobile field in St. Louis, has been made sales manager of the company.

SWEEPSTAKES RACE AT CINCINNATI MAY 30

Cincinnati will have the honor of starting off the 1917 automobile racing championship with the big race set for Decoration day, May 30, at the big Sharonville Speedway. This definite information has been sent to President Harry Leyman of the Cincinnati Speedway, by Secretary Kennerdell of the American Automobile Association, with the further declaration that this would be the only race run in this section during the year which would count in the award for the annual championship.

It was decided at a meeting of the directors of the Cincinnati Speedway that the Decoration day race, to be designated as the second annual international sweepstakes race, will be for a distance of 250 miles, instead of 300 miles, which was the distance in the opening race of the track on Labor day of last year.

The contest will be for a purse of $25,000, to be divided into 10 prizes, with the rather opulent sum of $10,000 to the winner. The number of starters in the race will be limited to 32, and preliminary trials at the track will be held for two or three days preceding the race. Only cars that attain a speed of 90 miles an hour or more an hour will be allowed to qualify.

PROPOSE NATIONAL LAW

"Many of our motor vehicle laws are so complex that even a trained lawyer has difficulty in understanding them, and the ordinary layman gives up the task as hopeless," comments Chairman Osborne I. Yellott of the A. A. A. Legislative Board in the introductory of the Uniform Traffic Law which the national organization of motor car owners will offer to its members for adoption in their respective States.

"The fundamental principle as to the use of the highways is that every one should be permitted the greatest possible freedom which is consistent with the rights of others," continues Mr. Yellott, who then goes on to say: "Consequently every person employing a vehicle which may cause injury to others, unless reasonable care is used, should be compelled by positive provisions of the law, rigidly enforced, to employ a degree of care commensurate with the risk involved to others under each particular condition which may arise. At the same time he should not be bound down and hampered by minute restrictions not reasonably necessary for the protection of other highway users.

"For these reasons, fixed speed limits and other similar arbitrary requirements are omitted, and for them has been substituted a series of rules of the road in the more important of which we provide in effect, that wherever there is reason to apprehend injury to others, the person in charge of the vehicle shall take especial precautions to see that such injury does not occur. Under this theory each sitaution which arises must make its own law. That law is, wherever there is danger of accident, you must avoid it."

FIRST CAR STILL USED

An unusual bit of information concerning the first Dodge brothers motor car ever built developed from a discussion among automobile men in Detroit a few days ago.

"Old Betsy," as the car is familiarly known, is still in daily service in the experimental department, just where she originated more than three years ago. Although she has already piled up a record of more than 150,000 miles, she is being used today for the most difficult experimental runs. However, the unusual lies in the fact that "Betsy," unlike most experimental cars designed only "to see how it looks and acts," was made up originally of manufactured parts, just as though she came in the regular line of production.

IN THE CIRCUS PARADE

To become a member of a circus troupe, has always been one of boyhood's greatest ambitions. Many persons outgrow this attraction for circus life, but with some the lure always remains. No better evidence of this universal appeal of the outdoor show could be found than in the list of applicants for the position of truck drivers with the new motorized circus, which opens in May.

There are more than 1000 of them on file in the office of the United States Circus Corporation and most of them are from college men. Graduates and undergraduates from the leading universities of the country—Harvard, Yale, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Princeton, Dartmouth, Cornell—want jobs in the circus parade as pilots of the 100 Firestone-equipped Kelly-Springfield trucks and Troy trailers.

There hasn't been much to offer the young college man in circus work heretofore. But the new enterprise with its motorized features presents a different aspect. Almost every young man, nowadays, can operate a motor car. Some of the circus applicants tell of their experience with father's machine, while others tell of their own personal attractions, such as the young man who described his social position and suggested that the use of his name would bring out the social elect in every town visited.

PREVENTS FENDER RATTLE

A close scrutiny of the front end of the Cole Eight discloses a narrow transverse beading running horizontally across the fender splash aprons. So carefully has it been made that it is practically unnoticeable, yet it serves a very important purpose.

This transverse beading starts about three inches back from the front edge of the fender splash apron and runs horzitonally back to within about the same distance from the opposite end. By putting this slight buckle in the sheet metal the same sort of a reinforcement is effected as if a brace were welded to the under side of the apron. It is much neater in appearance, however, than if a brace were welded on, and furthermore, all chance of its coming loose or getting rattly is eliminated.

CAR AS A MARKET BASKET

"The American woman and the medium-weight motor car will do more to lessen the high cost of living the coming summer and fall than many of the potato-patch schemes suggested in a number of municipalities," says Sales Manager F. L. Pierce of the Regal Motor Car Co.

"I look for a return of the market basket habit during the next few months. Nearly every city boasts of a central market place where fresh vegetables can be purchased at a saving, but it will be through trips into the rural districts that the biggest savings will be effected.

"With a light car such as the Regal, which is easy of operation, a woman can make a profit paying excursion into the country, bringing a week's supply at a time, and when fall comes, potatoes, onions, etc., which reached such sky-high prices this year, can be bought right in the field at a very material saving. The cost of the car's operation during such a trip would be practically nothing when compared with the saving."

ADVICE ON SHORT CIRCUITS

"Short circuits may be found in countless places," says W. E. Moerschell of the Moerschell Electric & Auto Supply Co. of 2944 Locust street, St. Louis, the local USL Service Station.

"Generally, however, they are found in either the battery itself, around the battery where electrolyte has been carelessly spilled, or in the wiring some distance from the battery. One might occur at such a point in the electrical system as not to directly affect the battery yet seriously interfere with the working of some other part of the equipment; with the resultant waste of such energy as would render the battery powerless to operate even the lamps of the car.

"If a short circuit is found and cannot immediately be repaired, disconnect one terminal lead of the battery and tape the dangling end.

"To test a battery for a 'short,' comply carefully with the following instructions: Charge the battery at night, upon completion of the charge, unbolt the terminal connectors and thereby isolate the battery so that it cannot be affected by outside influences. Take reading. The following morning take another specific gravity reading. If the reading is as high as at the end of the charge, the battery is 'O K' and the supposed 'short' is in the wiring. If, however, the reading in one or more cells should fall during the night, then the battery itself is shorted.

"Upon this discovery take the battery to a service station for repair. Do not hesitate if you want to save your battery. Delay is fatal."

WE NOW SELL AUTO SUPPLIES AND PIANOS

Field-Lippman announce the opening of the most complete automobile accessory and supply store in St. Louis.

Strange combination—automobile tires and pianos—carburetors and Victrolas. But is it incongruous? Consider the possibilities of such a move and how it will benefit you personally.

It is estimated that in 1917, car owners will purchase more than one billion dollars' worth of automobile supplies (exclusive of gasoline, repairs and garage fees).

That lifts the automobile accessory into as important and conspicuous a position as jewelry, music, books, etc.

For forty-five years this house has steadily kept abreast of progress. As the public demanded, we have sold in the order of their appearance Organs, Square Pianos, Uprights, Player Pianos and then the Talking Machine—to over 150,000 satisfied customers.

Today there is a tremendous demand for Auto Accessories, and, because we are in an exceptional position to furnish real service in a way that will truly benefit the public, we have decided to enter this field.

The tremendous purchasing power of our great chain of stores enables us not only to buy at a surprisingly small cost, but to offer to the public high-grade goods at a remarkably low figure.

Our great success has been due largely to the intense interest we have always shown in the customers' good—selling the best of merchandise at low prices and always giving the utmost of after-service.

Service before and after purchase—that is the magnet we shall use in building a motor car accessory trade, for by such means we have built up and shall continue the largest music business in the West.

Our stock will be most complete in every respect. Here you will find everything for the motor car—everything you could possibly want or need; and even if your want should be very unusual we will quickly get whatever you require.

This department will be managed by an expert who will gladly co-operate with you in every possible way.

"Milady" will appreciate our beautiful store and the courteous treatment offered when she herself wishes to purchase some accessory or knick-knack for her car.

We want you to visit us—to see for yourself what wonderful plans we have made to help you—to save you money. Drop in on your way by tomorrow. We will be mighty glad to show you around.

Will We Continue the Sale of Musical Instruments?

Yes—the establishment of a motor accessory department is in accord with our policy to serve the public in every possible way. It simply means the enlargement of our business and will in no way interfere with our sale of fine pianos, players, talking machines and records.

Will the Same Sales Force Sell Auto Accessories and Pianos?

No—a separate sales force of experts has been placed in charge of our accessory department—men trained and experienced in the automobile business are here to sell you the correct devices for your car. Here you may rest assured of getting the right voltage lamps, proper fitting parts and exactly the tools you want—not almost exact.

Can Charge Accounts Be Opened?

Yes—our charge accounts already hold the names of thousands of car owners. If your name is not already on Field-Lippman's book you can easily arrange for this. Accounts charged after the 25th of each month are included with the next month's statement.

Won't Auto Accessories Bought from Field-Lippman Cost More?

No—to the contrary our great buying power enables us to buy much cheaper than the small dealer, and for this reason our prices will be surprisingly low. You can save money at Field-Lippman's.

TWO MEN TELL OF HAVING RECEIVED ARSON PROPOSALS

Former Employes of Wright-Gilmore Co. Testify at Trial of Bersch, Imel and Gilmore.

ONE ASKED TO INVEST

He Quotes Gilmore as Having Declared "They Could Always Have a Fire."

Former employes of the Wright-Gilmore Decorating Co. yesterday testified in Judge Shields' Court that they were asked to assume a financial interest in a plan to burn the company's plant at 4455 Olive street for the insurance after it had been reorganized as the Gilmore-Bonfig Decorating Co.

The witnesses were William G. Rayson of 4565 McMillan avenue, former superintendent, and John J. Holt, former secretary, treasurer and bookkeeper.

At the conclusion of Holt's testimony at 1 p. m. the trial of Julius R. Bersch, Harold G. Gilmore and Harry C. Imel, charged with arson conspiracy, was continued to 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Rayson testified that Gilmore and Imel tried to induce him to invest $300 in the new Gilmore-Bonfig Co. and told him the investment would be good as "they could always have a fire." Rayson quit the company's employ in April, 1915, about two months before the fire. Gilmore, he said, told him arrangements had been made to buy out the assets of the old company at about 10 cents on the dollar.

Told He "Couldn't Lose."

He quoted Gilmore as saying: "We can't lose. We can always have a fire." Gilmore, he added, told him Imel was coming into the new firm.

Rayson related that shortly before he left the company he met Imel, who asked him if he was going into the new firm. When he replied he was not, Imel, he testified, said: "Well, you couldn't lose. We could always have a fire."

On April 23, the witness averred, he turned his keys over to Imel and said: "Now, don't you have a fire." Imel took the keys, he said, and made no reply.

Holt testified he had $1500 invested in the Wright-Gilmore company. In January, he asserted, Gilmore asked him to make a copy of the ledger and asked him to falsify some of the figures so as to make the inventory agree with the amount of the insurance. Gilmore, he added, told him these figures might be needed in case of fire.

The witness declared Gilmore told him the business was not worth 25 cents on the dollar and the only thing to do would be to set a match to it. In this connection, he continued, Gilmore advised him to get in on the fire scheme and save his investment.

Refused to Enter Scheme, He Says.

Holt asserted he saw Bersch at the store several times and Gilmore told him Bersch had agreed to the arrangement to burn the plant. In the latter part of December, 1914, he said he had lunch with Gilmore and Bersch at the Planters Hotel and Bersch told him the decorating plant would not realize 10 cents on the dollar, but if he would go and visit "his country cousins" he would receive a check for the full amount of his investment when he returned. Holt testified he told Bersch he would rather lose all his money than go in on such a scheme and Bersch replied everything would be done very smoothly.

WOMAN IS DIRECTOR OF BRITISH SHIPPING COMPANY

Lady Mackworth Is Chairman of 29 Limited Concerns Which Father Once Controlled.

LONDON, April 14.—The first woman director of a shipping company is Lady Mackworth, the daughter of Lord Rhonda the Welsh coal magnate. In addition to the shipping directorate, Lady Mackworth is director or chairman of twenty-nine limited companies in all of which Lord Rhonda was interested when he resigned to take up the Presidency of the Local Government Board.

Lady Mackworth who is easily approachable by the humblest member of any of the staffs she controls, first acquired a practical knowledge of commercial work in the offices of the Cambrian Coal Combine, of which her father—then D. A. Thomas—was head. When Lord Rhonda went to the United States soon after the commencement of war, Lady Mackworth extended her grasp of commercial enterprises and concluded several deals so successfully that she was easily able to perform the duties which the twenty-nine companies entail. She has inherited a very large proportion of her father's organizing genius and is married to Sir Humphrey Mackworth who has been on active service since the outbreak of the war.

TOP PRICE $16.40 FEATURES TRADE IN HOG MARKET

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission, National Stockyards, Ill.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT.

	Last Week.	Week Before.	Last Year.
Cattle	16,000	13,200	10,000
Hogs	50,700	50,300	46,000
Sheep	5,000	6,400	9,500

There was a good start to cattle trade last week, but the finish was the reverse. At the close values in most instances showed several notches break from the high point of last Monday or a week ago.

Causes for the decline were not hard to find, the chief reason being an increase of about 3000 head over the week prior. At the close of the market last week killing steer cattle indicated a decline of 15c to 25c, while yearling butcher stuff broke fully 25c per cwt. However, the market on beef cows, canners, stockers and feeders held a uniformly steady level, due to their scarcity.

Cattle Quotations.

Choice to prime beef steers were quoted at $12 to $12.90; good to choice, $11 to $12; medium to good, $10.25 to $10.75; common to medium, $9.50 to $10.25; common off-colored light killing steers, $8.25 to $9; good to choice stockers and feeders, $8.75 to $9.75; medium to good, $8.25 to $8.75; common to medium $7 to $8.25; good to choice stock cows, $7.25 to $7.50; common to fair, $6.50 to $7.25; good to choice light stock heifers, $7.50 to $8.25; choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $11 to $11.75; good to choice, $10 to $11; common to medium, $8 to $9.50; medium to good, $8 to $9; cutters, $7 to $8; canners, $5.50 to $6.50; good fat beef bulls, $9.25 to $10; heavy sausage bulls, $8.25 to $9; light sausage bulls, $7 to $8.

Despite the erratic tendency in hog trade this week, and the fact that the market last Wednesday and Thursday reached the highest pennacle ever attained at this point, $16.40 per cwt. the finish, while lower than the high point, was still 15c to 20c per cwt higher than the close of the week prior. The choice cornfed hogs, particularly those weighing 160 lbs upwards, are the kinds in favor and the ones that are the scarcest.

In Friday's market, with 1100 hogs direct to packers, the supply available for sale was not adequate for good market conditions. A few city butchers bought choice 200-lb hogs at $16.10 to $16.20, with a top of $16.25, with the packers buying good 180 to 200 lb hogs at $15.80 to $16.10. Yesterday's general market averaged 10c to 15c lower than the best time Friday. No choice heavies on sale, but would probably have sold 10c higher than the above top. Choice hogs 180 lbs up $16 to $16.25; mixed hogs 160 lbs up $15.50 to $15.90; 120 to 140 lb pigs $13.40 to $14.50; lighter pigs $10 to $13; best rough hogs $15.25 to $15.50; half-fat roughs $11 to $13.

The sheep market was normal. Best wool lambs, $15.40 to $16; medium to good, $14.75 to $15.75; good to choice clipped lambs, $12.50 to $12.75; common to best cull lambs, $10.50 to $14; good to choice fat sheep, $11.50 to $12.25; medium fat sheep, $10 to $11.50; chopper sheep, $7.50 to $9.25; canner sheep, $5.50 to $7; fat bucks, $10.50 to $11.25. Goats: Choice fat kids, $9.50 to $11.50; choice aged goats, $8.50 to $9.50. Good demand for stock goats with the plain haired kind bringing from $4.50 to $5 per cwt.

The mule market was quiet and the range of prices unchanged. All kinds, except miners, are quotable around $10 per head lower than last Friday.

Mule quotations: 16 to 16¼ hands, $150@270; 15 to 15¼ hands, $125@230; 14 to 14½ hands, $50@105; 13 to 13½ hands, $45@90; plugs, $25@65.

Despite violent temporary setbacks due to outspoken advocacy of Government control of prices, the local grain markets last week retained the greater part of sensational advances that resulted largely from official estimates of unexpectedly severe crop damage, and from sharp competition between exporters and miller. Compared with a week ago, wheat closed yesterday, up 9c to 20c, corn 3⅝c to 6⅝c, and oats 1⅝c.

Surprise over the Government crop figures brought about at once frantic buying of wheat and caused a seldom paralleled upward sweep of values. On Monday, after smashing anew the high-price record, the market underwent a decided break due chiefly to realizing by holders who believed that the Government report showed the winter crop at the worst place. Heavy calling of margins stage and that some improvement in field conditions had since taken counted also as a transient bearish factor, and so, too, did gossip of a possible huge increase of spring seeding.

It was not, however, until next day that the biggest rise of all week took place in quotations, in consequence, apparently, of the fact that the head of one of the strongest houses on the Chicago exchange had gone openly on record as urging immediate radical Government measures to regulate prices.

Big rebounds, which mainly characterized the course of the wheat market on the succeeding days, were ascribed for the most part to brisk demand from seaboard and milling interests. How acute the call would become from these sources was said to depend, in a measure, on the length of time which must elapse before some relief would be afforded by the opening of navigation on the Great Lakes. Yesterday's market was the highest of the week.

Corn and oats borrowed much of their strength from wheat, but there was also independent advances based on reports that scores of distilleries would be exclusively used for the manufacture of denatured alcohol needed for military explosives.

While May wheat was mounting 20 cents last week the cash market was equally strong, and if anything premiums widened for the actual grain here and in other markets. Yesterday sales of No. 2 red wheat were recorded at $2.65, a jump of 5 cents from the preceding session. Cash corn also mounted in leaps and bounds and sales were made as high as $1.53.

Prices on both wheat and corn were the highest recorded here since the Civil War. At that time No. 2 red wheat sold at $3.85 and No. 2 corn at $1.60, but the values were figured on a depreciated currency, as gold was selling at a premium of 40 per cent. On a gold basis the Civil War value of wheat would have been about $2.73.

Cash wheat was 5c higher today, with No. 2 red selling at $2.65; demand active.

Cash corn 1c to 3c higher; demand limited.

Cash oats 1c to 3c higher; demand limited.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The market for sugar futures was firm, influenced by the strength of the spot market, with closing prices 2 to 7 points net higher on covering and scattered buying for trade account. BIG FLOUR SALES LIFT CHICAGO WHEAT MARKET

CHICAGO, April 14.—Abnormally active demand for flour did a good deal today to make wheat prices soar to a new high point, $2.25¾, for May delivery. The market closed strong at 1⅛c to 4c net advance, with May at $2.24½ to $2.25, and July at $1.91½ to $1.92. Corn gained 1c to 1⅛c and oats ⅜c to ⅝c. In provisions, the outcome varied from 2½c decline to a rise of 35c.

Reports of free buying on the part of milling interests counted from the outset as powerful factors on the bull side of the wheat market. It was explained that such purchases were to provide for greatly enlarged flour business, but this information served to increase rather than to diminish anxiety among the wheat shorts.

Attempts to cover disclosed that the market was virtually bare of offerings. Rapid lifting of bids ensued, but realizing sales on the bulge led to only comparatively moderate reactions in the May option. Eager payment of big premiums for cash wheat seemed to preclude any chance of liberal deliveries on May contracts and tended to stimulate buying.

Somewhat improved crop advices from the Southwest, especially Kansas, eased off July and September wheat to a material extent in the last half of the session. The better field outlook was ascribed to rains, and there were prospects of further moisture before Monday throughout the greater part of the winter wheat belt. Week-end adjustment of trades, however, brought about a fresh advance as the market came to a finish.

Corn, as well as wheat, reached a new high level of prices. Strength of wheat was the chief bullish influence, but toward the end of the day appeared to be more or less offset by predictions of an increased movement soon from farms. Oats merely duplicated the action of corn. Trade was of fair proportions, and was well divided.

Toledo Cloverseed.

TOLEDO, O., April 14.—Cloverseed, prime, cash and April, $10.85; October, $10.75.

EGG PRICES SCORE RECORD FOR THIS SEASON OF YEAR

Arrivals Still on a Comparatively Small Scale and Fail to Meet Present Broad Demand.

Record prices for this season of the year continue to be an almost daily occurrence on the local egg market, with yesterday's market ruling stronger than ever. Sales showed a full cent advance on bulk of trading at 33c, and even a fraction more for a few lots in new cases. Arrivals are still on a comparative small scale, and fail to meet the requirements of the present broad demand. Butter values also continued very firm. Turkeys and hens ruled sharply lower in the live poultry market.

The potato market was strong and higher, though very little changed hands, as the street deferred purchasing until Monday. All other staples were in good demand, but little altered in price. COTTON CLOSES STEADY IN A QUIET MARKET

NEW YORK, April 14.—The cotton market showed renewed nervousness and irregularity early today. There was further selling of July, which seemed to come from spot house brokers or Atlantic States sources, and that delivery opened at a decline of 15 points, selling at 19.89c on the call. May was 4 points higher at the start, but new crop deliveries showed an opening decline of 5 to 7 points, and there was probably some selling on the more favorable appearance of the weather map.

On the whole, however, offerings were light and prices steadied after the call on covering for over the week-end. July worked up to 19.97c, or to within 8 points of last night's close, while October advanced from 18.87c to 18.92c.

Rumors of easier ocean freights and complaints of continued dry weather in the Southwest served to stimulate covering later, with July selling up to 20.12c and October to 18.97c, or about 2 to 12 points net higher on the general list. The close was a shade off from the best under realizing, with the tone steady, net unchanged to 5 points higher.

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, April 14.—The glorious results on the western battle front are believed in the city to be understated, rather than overstated. Russia is now the only disturbing consideration; it is impossible to expect that such an upheaval should occur without giving occasional grounds for great anxiety. Financial London has reached the conclusion that the only possibility of a very early termination of the war lies in a German revolution.

The collapse would probably come now but for three mains influences, which will conceivably prolong the conflict for some time. These are, first, the as yet unshaken faith in the submarine campaign; second, the fact that the Hohenzollerns are fighting desperately for their political existence; third, the continued ignorance of the truth by the great mass of the German people, who have been disciplined for 50 years to trust their Government implicitly, and are now being fed on false statements of the situation.

America's Aid in War.

We still expect that your first assistance in the war will be mainly financial. Already all but innumerable fraternal greetings have been exchanged by cable between leading American and English banks.

As for your war loan, Lombard street believes that your Government should undoubtedly issue it in separated installments, and that you should go slow in your tax plans; otherwise too violent a financial dislocation will be caused. Furthermore, unless taxation is most judiciously and scientifically apportioned, its tendency would be to injure the ready floating of bonds on advantageous terms—and that will not naturally be the largest reliance for financial supplies during the progress of the war.

In this, as in other directions, your Government should profit by what Lloyd George, in his speech of Thursday, frankly referred to as our blunders. Doubtless, however, the close co-operation now insured between your public authorities and ours, with personal discussion betwaen the experts, will help to achieve the purpose.

Your financial position is so immensely strong and your available wealth so great that the exigencies created by war finance may prove an actual corrective to inflation tendencies, with the best results when peace arrives. But the best quarters continue to emphasize the necessity for caution here, regarding the money situation and for strict economy—because, however generous your credits to your European allies may be, the terms and amount of ultimate repayment have to be kept in mind. Hence we are still taking every precaution, including continued mobilization of securities.

The imperial German loan, for which subscriptions nominally close next week, may conceivably be a success—partly through adroit use of financial facilities, partly through actual pressure on large subscribers.

PRICE MOVEMENT IN THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET FAVORS BULL SPECULATORS

Peace Talk Causes Fairly Wide Gains on the Week's Trading.

Pig Iron Prices Highest in 40 Years.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 14.—Pig iron prices in the Pittsburg district were today announced as the highest in more than 40 years, basic being firmly established at $40 a ton as a minimum, which compares with $12.50 two years ago. In some quarters this is really held to be the highest since the days of charcoal iron in 1887.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review, says:

"No one need wonder that the Stock Exchange, in the market's movement this week as well as last week, has mainly expressed bewilderment. Reflecting as its action usually does the feeling of the community at large, no other attitude could fill the events which have been rushing to so extraordinary a climax. For the rapidity with which these events have been crowded on one another's heels, since April 2, there is no parallel except for the memorable fortnight which began July 31, 1914.

"The parallel with that beginning of the war is in many ways significant. Difficult as it is in the present swift changes of the scene, to get a foothold from which events can be surveyed in large perspective, there is no doubt of the increasing conviction, in all minds, that militant Germany is crumpling up.

"Few experienced observers are predicting sudden and immediate collapse, and our own Government is rightly conducting its plans and preparations on the assumption of a stubborn conflict. But the point of view changes very rapidly nowadays, and the break in the 'Hindenburg line,' the progressive rupture of diplomatic relations with Germany by the States of North and South America as well as Asia, the new tone of the German press, the Kaiser's efforts to quiet domestic unrest by promises of political concessions, the rumors of separate overtures by Germany's allies, all indicate a situation which must in the nature of things foreshadow even larger changes. It is possible that all of us, a few months hence, will be looking back at our own attitude of the middle of April, and wondering what had become of our deductive faculties, that we did not recognize what was coming.

The Market's Position.

"However this may be, and quite aside from the sense of astonishment and confusion which they share with public opinion generally, the financial markets are confronted in a peculiar manner with a dilemma of their own. They now have to consider the economic influence, on the one hand, of continued war under circumstances of insufficient harvests and enormous increase in the strain on capital; on the other hand, of a comparatively early ending of the war and beginning of the period of readjustment.

"As to the second consideration it may at least be said that our own participation in the war, with the arrangement of our home affairs which will accompany it, is likely to provide the simplest transition from the recent extravagant ideas of 'war profits' and financial 'war values' to the time when the abnormal orders which created them will stop.

"The industries concerned are already agreeing to forego a great part of such profits on our Government's orders. Whether they will have to take similar action when the allies' war orders are financed by our Government remains to be seen, and so does the question of taxation. From the standpoint of these companies and of the financial markets generally, the 'peace readjustment,' whether it comes soon or only after long delay, will bring a greatly alleviated shock.

"In the matter of the demands on capital which our own war budget will invoke, three mistakes of policy were possible—inadequate provision, excessive borrowing at a single moment, or a program of hasty, hotheaded and oppressive taxation. Happily, the present indications are that all three will be avoided. There is certainly no prospect of insufficient provision of resources. The first misgiving, as to a possible purpose of offering all the $5,000,000,000 bonds at once, appears now to have been unfounded. Congress has not yet taken up the question of new revenue, but the course of legislative discussion thus far suggests a carefully thought out general plan, with the House itself in the mood for dealing with the question soberly and intelligently.

"If there were any real probability that the stupid and possibly malicious propaganda for conducting the war through a largely confiscatory income tax would be seriously considered, the proposal might call for discussion. But while the rightfulness of largely increased taxation is admitted everywhere, everyone familiar with the most elementary principles of war finance knows, first, that excessively drastic imposts should be held in reserve by a prudent belligerent; second, that at some point, class taxation of an excessive character must inevitably injure a market for public loans; third, that all experience prescribes as wise a policy in war finance, the fixing of taxes which may be instantaneously levied, instantaneously collected and, when occasion warrants, instantaneously removed.

"This well-known principle will hardly fail to get recognition in a Congress which is providing for immediate war requirements, yet with the character and duration of that war the greatest of uncertainties.

Failure on the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The failure of the Stock Exchange firm of Morris & Pope was announced today on the floor of the exchange. The firm consists of Lewis G. Morris, exchange member, J. Hathaway Pope and Frank B. Porter. The failure is not regarded as important.

Metal Markets.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The copper market has continued very quiet during the past week, with the tone unsettled or easier as a result of offerings from some of the smaller dealers at concessions. The spot position practically was near nominal today in the absence of offerings, while quotations for small lots of electrolytic ranged from about 32c to 33c for spot and second quarter, 29c to 31c for third quarter and 28c to 29c for the fourth quarter. Some of the larger dealers are still said to be asking 30c to 32c for third and fourth quarter copper, but they are reported to be practically out of the market for the time being. Iron was strong today, with prices unchanged.

PERMANENT HOME OF THE HARROUN MOTORS CORPORATION!

The above photograph was taken on April 7, 1917, and shows a part of the present Harroun plant at Wayne, Mich., with a capacity of over

2,000 Harroun Cars a Month

Other units scheduled to be completed during this year will bring the production up to an estimated maximum of 36,000 Harroun cars. The Harroun factory is the most modern automobile plant in the world, and so admitted by the best of authorities on such a subject.

Price Advances
April 18, 1917
Now $8.00 Per Share

The price of Harroun stock will positively advance to $9 a share on April 18th, 1917, and no doubt to a higher price on or about May 1st, when the first cars are completed. Purchasers receive non-transferable ad interim certificates showing the shares of stock subscribed and paid for are deposited with the Equitable Trust Company of New York, said stock to be delivered to the holders of such certificates six months after date thereon.

No order for less than ten shares will be considered.

The officials of the HARROUN MOTORS CORPORATION have just definitely announced that the machinery and apparatus used in the manufacturing of HARROUN cars will be entirely installed on or about April 18th and that the first cars will begin to be turned out on or about May 1st. This advance in price is therefore believed more than justified by the phenomenal developments achieved by the HARROUN MOTORS CORPORATION is approximately the past six months.

The original intention of the officials of the company was to turn out cars on April 2nd, but on account of the congested conditions of the railroads delay was experienced in receiving some of the more important machinery. However, we have been positively assured that commencing on or about May 1st, the plant at Wayne, Mich., will start on its capacity production.

Buy Harroun Stock now before production starts. Foresight counts here. Fortunes have been made and are now being made in the great automobile industry by investors who bought in during the infant days when others doubted their wisdom.

Be a Harroun Stockholder

Join the 11,000 owners of Harroun stock and be among the first to share future big dividends as well as the most probable very large increase in value of this stock.

Your investment is especially protected, as all holdings of Ray Harroun and his associates have been placed in escrow with the treasurer of the State of Michigan until the company is on a substantial net earning basis.

Write or wire (telegraphic tolls collect) or telephone us at once and follow by mail confirmation with remittance covering amount of purchase. Right is reserved to reject a subscription or apportion a smaller amount than subscribed for.

HOTEL-APARTMENT TO OCCUPY SITE OF KRENNING HOME

Sam Kaplar Real Estate & Building Co. to Improve Washington Avenue Lot With Structure to Cost $200,000, Early Construction Being Planned.

BIG PROJECTS IN SAME DISTRICT

By Berry Moore.

The site of the former Krenning home embracing 77x250 feet at 3664 Washington boulevard, has been purchased by the Sam Koplar Real Estate and Building Co. for improvement with a six-story apartment-hotel building to cost $200,000. The negotiations for the purchase were conducted by Sam Hamburg Jr., vice president of the Koplar company.

Construction of the building will begin immediately upon the completion of the eight-story hotel being built by the Koplar company on Berlin avenue, near Union boulevard.

The Washington avenue building will be financed through the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., with which Hamburg is identified.

As the third building of magnitude announced for this section of the city within the last 30 days, the Washington avenue building plans are of more than ordinary interest, especially in view of the fact that the Koplar company as upbuilders ranks second to none in St. Louis.

Big Neighbor Improvements.

The other projects contemplate a 13-story building for the University Club at the northwest corner of Grand and Washington avenues, ground for which has already been broken, and an 18-story hotel for the southeast corner of Grand avenue and Olive street, together with the reconstruction of the Players' Theater.

The site purchased by the Koplar company is within throwing distance of the site of the new University Club building and otherwise is attractive for the purpose for which it has been acquired.

The price paid for the site has not been made public, but it is understood that Hamburg outbid several would-be buyers.

Isaac T. Cook is the promoter of the University Club building, while Louis A. Cella, president of the Southern Real Estate & Financial Co., is behind the 18-story hotel project.

Although comparatively few announcements were made, it is understood that a number of important leases were concluded during the week for quarters for both retail and wholesale purposes. Inquiries relative to locations for local as well as foreign interests give promise of activity in this department for some time to come.

Chain Drug Stores Projected.

The Owl Drug Co., a mammoth retail drug concern, with headquarters in New York, according to real estate agents, is casting about in St. Louis for locations for a half-dozen or more retail stores, which it plans to launch on a broad scale. Corners are sought for all the stores, which will be distributed throughout the downtown district. The establishment of one or two stores in the business and theatrical center of Grand avenue and of King's highway, it is understood, is also under consideration.

Options are said to have been obtained on several eligible locations in downtown St. Louis, including the northwest corner of Seventh and Olive streets, in the Central National Bank Building, for the projected stores. Owing to its strategical advantages, the most elaborate of the sextette of stores is being planned for the Seventh and Olive streets corner, which will be on a scale rivaling that of the company's store on State street in Chicago, for which is paid on annual rental of $50,000. Other corners being discussed in this connection include the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets and the northwest corner of Seventh street and Washington avenue, both of which are vacant or only temporarily occupied.

Among the locations in uptown St. Louis desired by the company are the southwest corner of Grand avenue and Olive street, and the northwest corner of Grand and Washington avenues, the latter being embraced in the site of the new University Club Building now under construction.

Foresight Proves Profitable.

The Grand avenue and Olive street corner, having a frontage of 50 feet on Olive street by a depth of 150 feet on Grand, is owned by Thomas Halpin, who has conducted a drug store at that location for many years. Halpin had an opportunity to lease this corner several years ago for 99 years, on a basis of 4 per cent net on a valuation of $7500 a foot for the Olive street frontage, but he foresaw the future of this section and has been awaiting development.

All the big real estate agencies and trust companies with real estate departments in St. Louis are angling to land the Owl company, which promises to be the biggest catch of the season.

The Hogg-Harris Lumber Co. has taken a five-year lease on a suite of five offices on the tenth floor of the Fullerton Building. This concern, which is one of the largest in its line in the country, was formerly located in the Wright Building.

The Cincinnati Time Recorder Co., manufacturers of time clocks, also has leased a suite of offices in the Fullerton Building, as have C. A. Cour, formerly located in the Globe Democrat Building, and Hogan & Mackler, lawyers and members of the Missouri Legislature.

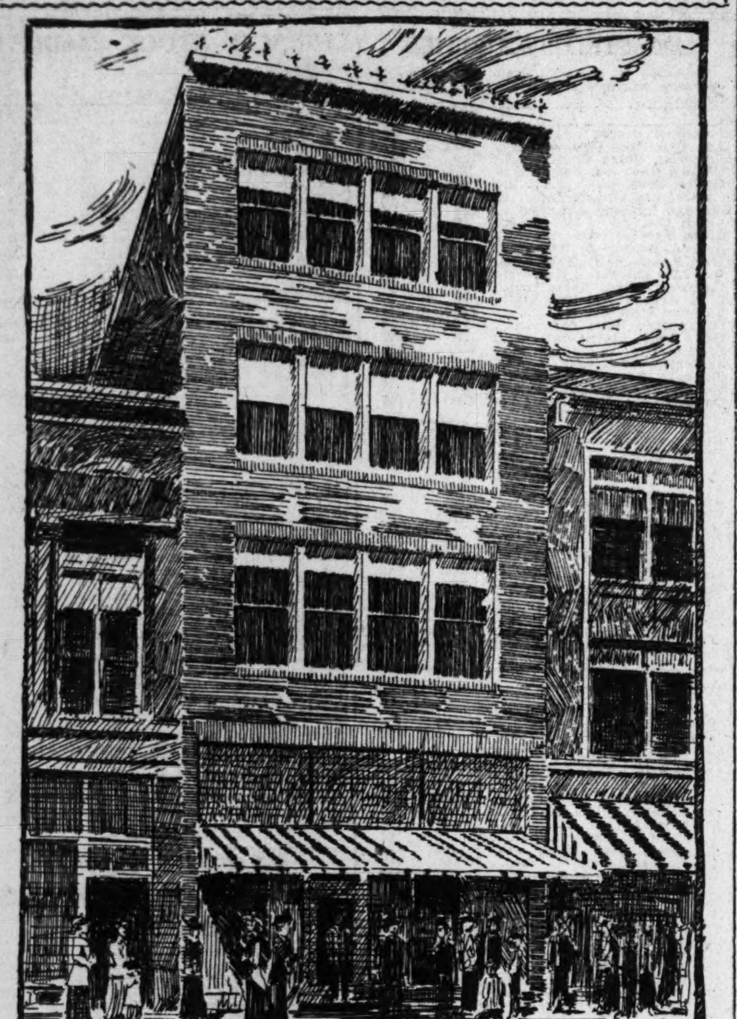
Three Important Deals Closed.

Three deals, aggregating approximately $150,000, were closed Friday by the Rutledge & Kilpatrick Realty Co. One embraced the property at 3041-43 Locust street, belonging to Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick, and which was sold to William G. Jackson as a site for a two-story building to cost $40,000.

The largest of the three deals, involving an investment of $75,000, embraced a lot 109x134 feet on Locust street, between Ewing and Garrison avenues, which was sold for Mrs. Kilpatrick, Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Wiggins. The Fredonia Realty Co., the purchaser, will build on the site a two-story concrete fireproof building, to be used for automobile purposes.

The other sale was that of a lot, 35x152 feet, on the north side of Olive street, near Taylor avenue. It was owned by Mrs. Cora Nugent. The purchaser was the Hartman Realty Co., which will erect on the sit a three-story business building, which, when completed, will represent an investment of $20,000. The seller was represented by the Cornet & Ziebig Realty Co.

Locust Street Home Leased by the Jacob Frank Mercantile Co.



THE Jacob Frank Mercantile Co., manufacturers of fancy work, hosiery and underwear, has leased the four-story building that is to be erected at 819 Locust street, the site formerly occupied by the Budweiser building. The new structure is to cost about $30,000 and has been leased for 15 years.

The leasing company, commonly known as "Franks," was established in St. Louis by the late Jacob Frank in 1848, and was located at 75 Morgan street, moving thence to 823 North Broadway in 1870 and then in 1882 to 821 North Sixth street, remaining at the latter site for 35 years. In 1904 the firm was incorporated under the name of the Jacob Frank Mercantile Co.

The Locust street site was chosen because of its promises to be one of the best for that character of retail business in the city.

Weisels and Block Strongly Supported in Contest That Is to Be Decided Tuesday.

The contest for the presidency of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, the nominees for which are Henry R. Weisels and Leo Block, and which will be decided next Tuesday, promises to be the most spirited in the history of that organization.

Both aspirants are prominent members of the real estate fraternity and both have served on the exchange directory.

Weisels, who is vice president of the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., has been a commanding figure in St. Louis real estate circles for many years, the deals engineered by him ranking with the foremost. He is being championed for the post by many of the leading agents because of his initiative and aggressiveness.

Block is also a representative member of the fraternity and is said to have the support of the present administration.

The following members complete the list of filings for the board of directors: Joseph M. Ebeling, John W. Gibson, Joseph J. Hauer, Chauncey P. Heath, Robert D. Kaime, R. King Kaufmann, Henry J. Korte, Charles C. Kunz, Joseph M. O'Reilly, A. R. Schollmeyer, Oreon E. Scott, J. Philo Young.

RESIDENCES AND FLATS IN WIDE DEMAND, MORFIT SAYS

War Believed to Have Prompted People to Put Money in Homes and Investment Property.

J. H. Farish & Co., through James C. Morfit, sales manager, reports an exceedingly active business, especially in residential and flat properties. The war obviously is prompting people to put their savings in homes and small investment property. The call for suburban homes is the largest in years, Morfit declares.

Morfit states that there is a scarcity of houses for rental in Webster Groves, while the demand is unprecedented. Many new homes are in course of construction in all parts of Webster. Ground there is relatively cheap, considering the conveniences, fine schools and excellent transportation facilities. The Manchester car line will soon run over its new short-cut, which will bring Webster Groves nearer to St. Louis in point of time.

Suburban property just west of Forest Park is in demand. Hillcrest houses are selling rapidly and many have been put up by former lot owners. The opening af Skinker road, one of the city's finest boulevards, has stimulated sales in this subdivision. Morfit states that improvements to the property west of Forest Park on Clayton road and on the Market car line, are bringing many inquiries for South Forest Park Hills just to the south and for which J. H. Farish & Co. are agents.

The high cost of building material has accelerated the sale of older houses. Many realize that they can procure homes suitable to their needs at a much less price than they can build at this time.

ACTIVE DEMAND FOR LOTS IN NORTH ST. LOUIS HEIGHTS

Broadway Savings Trust Co. Is Inaugurating a Special Sale to Close Tract.

The demand for lots in North St. Louis Heights is the feature of the subdivision movement in Northwest St. Louis. The many lots in this subdivision are being purchased for improvement with bungalows, lots being especially attractive for homes of this type. More than 25 homes have been erected in this subdivision. The Broadway Savings and Trust Co. is inaugurating a special sale of lots in North St. Louis Heights with a view to the early closing out of the tract. The property is located on North King's highway and has all improvements. It is reached by the Union avenue line. The sale is in charge of Charles de Largy, real estate officer of the Trust Company.

HOME LEASED BY LAMP COMPANY

The Mercantile Trust Co. has leased to the North American Lamp Co. the four-story and basement building at 1008 North Twenty-second street. The leasing company is a corporation recently formed for the manufacture of incandescent electric lamps. Its system is to buy burned-out lamps and recharge them, under an invention developed by the increased cost of material due to big war orders. The company already has contracts for its entire year's output.

The Mercantile Trust Co. represented the lessee and the Bonner-Miller Manufacturing Co., owner of the building.

POULTRY, BIRDS and ANIMALS

GENERAL-PURPOSE BIRDS BEST FOR THE FAMILY

Federal Expert Tells Breeds of Chickens for Small Flock and How to Care for Them.

For the family that wishes to keep poultry for home consumption rather than for the market, the so-called general purpose breeds are better suited than what are known as the egg-laying breeds, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons are all good varieties for the average person who does not intend to go into the poultry business on a considerable scale. These breeds are good layers and they also make good table poultry. Furthermore, they will hatch their own eggs and brood their own chickens, whereas the Leghorns and other breeds of the egg-laying class do not sit, and the use of expensive incubators and brooders is necessary in order to perpetuate these flocks.

The prime essentials for a small poultry house are fresh air, dryness, sunlight, and space enough to keep the birds comfortable. For the general-purpose breeds about four square feet of floor space should be allowed for each bird. The fowls should also have as much outside space as possible to run in. If this area is too small the ground quickly becomes foul and in time makes it difficult to rear chickens with good success.

In order to avoid foulness it is advisable to divide the lot and to sow part of it to the quick-growing grains such as oats, wheat or rye. The hens are turned onto the growing grain when it is a few inches high. Under this method the yards may be changed every three or four weeks during the growing season. A combination that has proved successful consists of six or seven bushels of equal parts of oats and wheat to the acre, wheat alone being used for the last seeding in the fall. For the convenience of those who have only small areas at their disposal, it may be stated that an acre contains 43,560 square feet.

To secure a satisfactory number of eggs, the fowls should be fed both a dry mash and a scratch ration. The dry mash may consist of equal parts of cornmeal, bran, middlings and beef scrap. This should be kept before the birds in a hopper all the time. A good scratch ration is made up of equal parts of corn, wheat and oats, fed in a litter four to five inches deep, twice daily. It is desirable that the birds should eat about as much of this as of the mash. This means feeding about one quart of mixed grain daily to 12 Plymouth Rock hens or to 14 Leghorns, and an equal weight of mash. Usually waste table products will also be available, and these may be made up into a moist mash in place of the dry mash. In this case the table scrap, if it contains much meat, is substituted for the beef scrap. If it does not contain any considerable portion of meat it should merely be added to the dry mash already described.

Incubators Save Time and Labor

Some poultry raisers still have trouble with incubators. It requires some degree of skill to operate them. The claim of some makers that their incubators are foolproof is not justified. It requires some degree of care and intelligence, also labor, to care for them, but probably not more than to care properly for sitting hens, and the labor is less if one is raising chicks in any considerable number.

The first rule is to follow the printed directions of the maker. The second rule is to put hatchable eggs in the incubator. Disregard of these rules probably causes most of the trouble.

The incubator is the only practicable method of raising chicks on a remunerative basis if you raise large numbers. Eggs can be handled in incubators at a fraction of the time and labor involved in caring for an equal number of them under hens, and the labor is more pleasant. The cost of incubators and oil is also much less than that represented by the capital tied up in broody hens and in the food they consume. The incubator is always ready when the eggs are, while the hen is not.

How 3 Hens Paid Pleasure and Profit

Poultry Editor Post-Dispatch.

Last Christmas my wife found some Barred Rocks at a dealer's and expressed the wish to keep three of them and see if she could get eggs to help out in feeding the family. They were to be eaten if not profitable. I fixed a dry goods box for their roost and gave them an inclosed lot, 5x10 feet, she got the first egg Jan. 1, and up to March 20 has only failed one day to get eggs. In 79 days the total was 164 eggs.

Why such results? One end of the little inclosure, 4x5 feet, is kept with six inches of leaves, pine straws and other refuse. Here the broken grain is fed them morning and evening; 10 cents' worth of oats were purchased and sowed thickly in drills and when six inches high were pulled up and fed to them twice a day—they eat roots and all. The oats are sowed in succession about 10 days apart and up to date not more than the half of the original 10 cents' worth has been used. Bran, oyster shells and grits are kept by them at all times and fresh water in clean dish daily. Feed has cost $2.05, with a week's supply yet on hand. The hens are busy all day long scratching in the refuse for the grain.

Aside from the pleasure the hens have given my wife, the profit, as I calculate it, is: Thirteen and two-thirds dozen eggs at 50 cents per dozen, $6.80; cost of feed, etc., $2.05; net, 4.75. The hens cost originally 90 cents each, but as they will go into the pot before we go North, their cost does not enter into the figures. My wife wants to keep six hens next winter and we will probably have eggs to burn. Respectfully,

D. W. WOODS.

BANK OF COMMERCE RESISTS FORECLOSURES OF RAILROAD

Declares Members of Missouri and North Arkansas Committee and Holders Liable for Payment.

The National Bank of Commerce yesterday, through Attorney George Lockett Edwards, filed an answer in Circuit Judge Cave's court to the suit brought to foreclose the property of the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad, of which the bank holds $525,000 of $6,000,000 in notes issued as security for the stocks and bonds. All of the notes, except those held by the bank, were deposited with a committee consisting of Festus J. Wade, George L. Edwards, G. Herbert Walker, D. R. Francis Jr., Edward Whitaker and Robert McK. Jones, who are plaintiffs in the suit.

The bank in its answer says it declined to deposit its notes with the committee for collection because some of the committee and many of the noteholders are liable as principals for the payment of the notes held by the bank and that the plaintiffs do not intend to undertake to collect the notes other than to sell the pledged collateral.

According to the bank's answer, the committee was authorized to option the collateral to Festus J. Wade for a period of one year from December 1 last at a price which would yield not less than 50 cents on the dollar. "In all probabiltiy," the answer recites, "at a sale of the collateral in the manner asked for by the committee, the plaintiffs as a committee would be the only bidder, and it would be inequitable to allow them to buy at a price less than that for which the property was optioned to Wade." The bank asks that it have prior consideration in the payment of the notes it holds and for judgment against the principals for any amount remaining unpaid.

The Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad Co. is now in receivership. The purchaser of the collateral will become the owner of the road.

WILL OF ALFRED W. ROBERTS

Estate Left to Grandchildren and Son-in-Law.

The will of Alfred W. Roberts, retired wholesale grocer and large stockholder in the International Shoe Co., who died Tuesday at his home, 6301 Waterman avenue, was filed in the Clayton Probate Court yesterday. It leaves $20,000 in trust for his son-in-law, Charles W. Booker, who is to receive the income of it for life.

One-half of the remainder of the estate is left in trust for the testator's granddaughter, Lurline Roberts Booker, for life, and the other half in trust for his grandson, Alfred W. Booker. The will provides that, if, in the judgment of the trustees, Alfred Booker has displayed conservative judgment and business care, he is to receive one-third of his share absolutely at the age of 25, one-half of it at the age of 30, and the remainder at the age of 35.

Jail Prisoner Hangs Himself.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 14.—Pete Manterastelli of Novinger hanged himself in jail last night by tying a blanket around his neck and to a bar at the top of his cell and jumping off his bunk. He admitted the theft of a set of harness and it had been arranged for him to pay a fine, but could not be persuaded he would be in jail only a short time.

Real estate buyers are found through the Post-Dispatch.

THREE VIVIANO KIDNAPING SUSPECTS ARE RELEASED

Boy Who Was Held Prisoner 13 Days Fails to Identify Them as His Abductors.

Peter Orlando, Sam Vitale and Leo Zito, who weer brought to St. Louis last Saturday from a railroad camp near Russell, Minn., as the suspected kidnapers of Frank Viviano, 8 years old, son of Gaeto Viviano, a spaghetti manufacturer, from his home, 5855 Waterman avenue, March 1, and held for ransom 13 days, were released Friday night. The child failed to identify them.

Circuit Attorney McDaniels announced there would be little use in going to trial if the boy did not identify the defendants as the men who had held him captive.

The arrests were made by Detective David Nolan, who traced the men to the Minnesota camp on information given by Pauline Jacobs, 15 years old, who lived with her parents in a house across the yard from the one the boy pointed out as the place he had been held captive. The detective had the first names of the men from the girl and traced them in the records of a labor agency.

Escaped Missouri Convict Caught.

SHREVEPORT, La., April 14.—A white man arrested at Mansfield, La., under the alias of L. A. Toms, but admitting he is Lon A. Wilson, highway robber and alleged safeblower, has been placed in jail here. He confessed to Sheriff Hughes that he served seven months of a 10-year term in the Missouri Penitentiary for highway robbery at Springfield, and then escaped.

JOLSON, LONG ON WAY, HERE AS MAN FRIDAY

"Robinson Crusoe Jr.," a Winter Garden Success — "Seven Chances" Next Week.

'Way along last summer, when tentative plans were being made for the theatrical season of 1916-1917, it was announced that the Jefferson Theater would probably have Al Jolson in "Robinson Crusoe Jr. as its opening fall attraction.

But Jolson did not come last fall, and he has kept postponing his coming since, at the insistent demand of managers and theater-goers in other places nearer Broadway. Now, as the season nears its end, he is to appear in radiant blackface as Crusoe's man Friday, his engagement at the Jefferson beginning tonight.

The Jolson attraction is a New York winter garden show, and has been declared the funniest of the many spectacles which have started there. It carries a large contingent of girls and a special orchestra. The book and lyrics are by Harold Atteridge and Edgar Smith and the music by Sigmund Romberg and James Hanley. There are two acts and 10 scenes, ranging from a Long Island summer home to the deck of a pirate ship, and from the coral beach of Robinson Crusoe's island to a mythical "silver city" of the Orient. The principal performers of the Winter Garden production, which opened Feb. 17, 1916, will be here, the list including Lawrance d'Orsay, Frank Carter, Claude Flemming, George Thornton, Bowers, Crocker and Walters, Mlle. Rodriguez, Kitty Doner, Alexander Dagmar and Mabel Withee.

New Play at Garrick.

"No. 355," the dramatic bill to be presented at the Shubert-Garrick tonight, is announced as "a new American love and mystery play," by Anna Goldmark Gross, a sister of the late Carl Goldmark, Viennese composer. The plot deals with a forgery, of which an innocent young girl is accused, and with the attempted manipulation of a bank's funds by a crooked official. The cast includes Helen Holmes (not the movie actress of that name), Kate Guyon, Percy Helton, Joseph Rawley, Robert Thorne and Carl Gerard.

"Seven Chances," Roi Cooper Megrue's comedy of courtship, with Frank Craven and Carroll McComas in the leading roles, will be seen at the Jefferson a week from tomorrow night. Megrue is the author of "Under Cover" and "It Pays to Advertise." This is a Belasco production, which had a long New York run last fall and winter, and the principals, Frank Craven and Carroll McComas, are those of the New York cast.

The Players' Theater will continue its season two weeks longer, and will open its coming bills on Monday, instead of Sunday. Last week's bill, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," will run through today, and tomorrow night Margaret Mayo's comedy success, "Baby Mine," will be played. In this play Miss Marjorie Foster will appear as leading woman, succeeding Olive Templeton. She has played the leading role of "Baby Mine" in traveling productions of that play, and has been here with William H. Crane's company and in "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford." She has also played for a season with John Craig's Castle Square Company in Boston.

Orville Harrold, American tenor, is the principal entertainer at the Columbia Theater this week. With Hector Mc Carthy at the piano, he sings five songs, including "I'm Falling in Love with Someone," which he sang with Emma Trentini in "Naughty Marietta." Blossom Seeley, in a syncopated act with two accompanists, has second place on the bill. She is the wife of Rube Marquard, baseball pitcher. "The Age of Reason," a comedy success of the Washington Square Players, will be played by a company headed by Vivian and Genevieve Tobin. Chief Caupolican, Indian singer and orator, is another feature of the bill.

Glad t'See You, Sis.

Rose Melville has played "Sis Hopkins" almost as many times as the late Joseph Murphy played some of his Irish dramas, in one of which he used to shoe a horse upon the stage. Count has been lost of the number of Miss Melville's St. Louis appearances in this play, but one more will be added when she begins a week's performances at the American this afternoon. The play is said to have undergone continual revision and improvement, but its chief character is the same.

NEW PUBLICATION FOR ST. LOUIS

Southern Woman's Magazine Will Remove From Memphis.

The Southern Woman's Magazine, which for the last four years has been published in Nashville, Tenn., will soon remove to St. Louis, it was announced yesterday by its publisher, Robert L. Burch.

Twenty-five St. Louis business men have become interested financially in the magazine. Edward Hidden, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, has become president of the publishing company. Frank C. Rand, vice-president of the International Shoe Co., has become one of the vice-presidents, the other being J. M. Gray Jr., of Nashville. Duncan I. Meier, secretary of the Ludlow-Saylor Wire Co., will act for the present as secretary. The headquarters for the present will be in a printing establishment at Ninth and Walnut streets.

Burch, the publisher, is a former newspaper editor in Nashville, and has been editor and publisher of the Merchant and Manufacturer, a trade publication. He has been president of the Nashville Chamber of Commerce and president of the Tennessee State Fair. He said yesterday that the removal to St. Louis was decided on as a matter of economy in printing and because this city is at the center of the Mississippi Valley and in close touch with the South and Southwest

RED CROSS WORK WILL BE DONE BY THE BOY SCOUTS

Law Also Will Be Urged So They Can Co-operate With Coast Guard.

NEW YORK, April 14.—Members of the Boy Scouts of America are preparing to aid the American National Red Cross and the United States coast guard service in war, in addition to the help they have already promised in increasing the nation's food supply by placing unoccupied lands under cultivation.

Plans have been worked out with the Red Cross, it was announced today, to utilize the boys in making surgical dressings, acting as orderlies and in other ways. Meanwhile legislation is being prepared with the approval of Secretary Daniels for enactment by Congress authorizing boy scouts 15 years and older to co-operate with coast guard and navy officials in the capacity of lookouts at visual stations and lighthouses and to do telegraph, wireless and semaphore work. With 75,000 boys available along sea coast territory, it is hoped this number of able-bodied men may be released for sterner service.

Follow This Man's Example. Mail the Coupon Today. After Wednesday, April 25th, it would be useless to send it the sets of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, "Handy Volume" issue, now on hand will be so nearly all sold by that time that it will be too late for us to send out any more of these descriptive books.

We do not ask you to buy the Britannica without finding out for yourself just how it will be of practical value to you, but get the descriptive book now so you'll be able to make an intelligent decision, so you will know for yourself whether or not the Britannica will be useful to you. NOW is the time to send the coupon.

More than a hundred and seventy-five thousand men and women in America are today using the Britannica. The representative big business men, bankers, lawyers, railroad executives and educators own the Britannica and find practical use for it. And for every prominent man there are ten comparatively inconspicuous men or women who own and use the Britannica. Don't you think that if all these thousands of progressive people find the Britannica valuable, you ought to at least find out what this great library of the world's knowledge really is and whether you could use it to advantage? Then, and only then, can you decide intelligently whether or not you ought to own it.

Send the Coupon Today

Fill it in and get it in the next mail. Don't put it off until the very last day. The sooner you ask the better, for no more "Handy Volume" sets of the Britannica can be printed on India paper. No more of this paper can be obtained. And if you do decide to buy the Britannica, you surely want it on this wonderful, thin India paper. Send for further information right away. These last remaining sets are all that can be offered, printed on this genuine India paper.

$1 down puts the complete Britannica right in your home where you can use it while you are paying for it at the reasonable rate of $3 a month (for the cloth binding) during a limited number of months. Send the coupon today.

Or go and see sets at:

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO., Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:—Please send me at once your free, illustrated, descriptive booklet about the "Handy Volume" issue of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, printed on genuine India paper.

I want this so that I can learn whether the Britannica will be useful to me in my work and my home, and so that I can decide before all the remaining sets are sold whether or not I want to buy.

Send me full information as to the smallest monthly payment I will have to make for one of these remaining sets; also the lowest cash price.

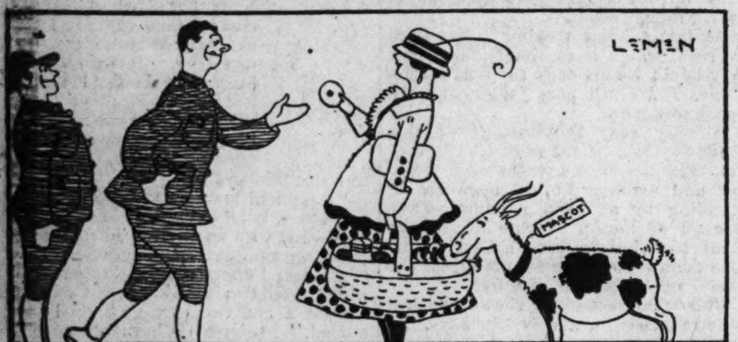
ARABELLA FEEDS THE SOLDIERS.



LEMEN
MASCOT

MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN with patriotic ardor
From every shelf is taking down the contents of the larder,
That lovely jam that mother makes, the sweetest in creation,
Those toothsome tarts and sugar cakes that made her reputation,
And all the good things put away to cut the cost of living
She marshals out in bright array, without the least misgiving.
Down to the Armory they go, the sweetmeats and the cookies,
For Arabella, you must know, just loves to feed the rookies,
Those brave and noble soldier boys excite her deep compassion
And so she's adding sundry joys to supplement their ration.
The bully beef, the navy bean, may do when out campaigning,
But jam and jelly sweet and clean is best for Armory training.
And so Miss Arabella Brown, with patriotic ardor,
From every shelf is taking down the contents of the larder,
To feed those hero soldier boys who wait the call of duty;
In such a kindly deed she joys, this tender-hearted beauty.
And yet with sadness we are filled, while soldier lads are dining,
We weep, alas, our goose is killed, a cause for dark repining,
For in the home of Mrs. Brown the larder now is thinner,
And jamless we must sit us down when we go there for dinner.

WHEN SUNDAY COMES.

(Enter chorus of Early Birds)

WE'RE up with the dawn
And we're off and away,
Departed and gone
For a holiday.
With a basket of lunch and a bottle of tea
We're happy and gay and spry as can be.
We hop on the train at six fifty-nine
For we know that a day in the country is fine.

(Quartette of City Parkers)

FOR the country we don't give a rap,
Where the nits and the gnats will bite a chap.
When out for a lark
We find the park
The most desirable place on the map.

(Children)

WE love the zoo,
O, yes we do,
The monkeys and the parrots.
It's fun, indeed,
To go and feed
The elephant on carrots.

(Chorus of High Brows)

SUCH vulgar taste, we do declare,
Is really quite confounding.
At horrid animals to stare!
The impulse is astounding.
Those base delights are not for us;
With loathing we must flee 'em.
We're waiting for the motor bus
That goes to the Art Museum.

(Singing ballet of Fishermen)

NOW everyone knows there's no delight
That meets our human wishes
Like going where the water's right
And angling for the fishes.
Let mollycoddles all stay home
From Saturday to Monday,
While by some limpid stream we roam
And fish away the Sunday.

(Sextette of Golfers)

AWAY, away with fish and such;
To us they don't amount to much.
Museum, zoo, or picnic lunch
To us is each a foolish hunch.
We'd rather hit the little ball,
A sport we find is best of all.
So come! Tee off!
Hurrah for golf!

(Launch owners in close harmony)

THE chug, chug, chug of our exhaust
Is worth the price at any cost.
The river is the place for us,
Where a thousand motors make a fuss.
Throw over the wheel and let 'er go;
She runs herself and you needn't row.
Yes, it's worth the price at any cost
To hear the music of that exhaust.

(Grand Chorus of Other Folks)

NOW fishing and picnics and golf and zoos
Are things over which we can't enthuse.
Museums and such to us are tame;
Diversions in fact not worth the name.
When they are compared
With that old ball game.
We're off to the bleachers, people all;
Hurrah for the Browns! Kill the ump!
Play ball!

THE BACK YARD.

HELLO, Jinks."
"Howdy Binks. Is your backyard garden growing?"
"Sure."
"So is mine. Let's tell em about it."
"All right. Let 'er go."
"We've got a little onion."
"And we've got a little bean."
"And quite the finest radish."
"The world has ever seen."
"We hope to have a lettuce."
"If the frost will stay away."
"If the yard was only bigger."
"We would try to raise a hay."
"When it comes to making garden."
"We're the farmer boys, b' gosh."
"And when we get our hands in."
"We are going to raise a squash."
"We thought we saw a spinach."
"But it might have been a kale."
"And if we see a garlic."
"We will hang it on a nail."
"We'd love to raise a pepper."
"Or a little Brussels sprout."
"We could sit all day a-waiting."
"For the gumbo to peep out."
"If we only had a celery."
"Or a carrot or a beet."
"Or even just a rhubarb."
"Then our joy would be complete."
"The backyard we are watching.'
"For gardening time is now."
"We'd like to raise a fodder."
"But we haven't got a cow."

A LOOK AROUND
by
Clark McAdams

THERE is no use talking—we are not going to be able to maintain our position that the Governments of Latin-America must be thoroughly constitutional before we can recognize them. There is the present case of Costa Rica. They have just had a revolution in that country, and we have notified the Tinoco Government, which is in power, that we cannot recognize it. Does the Tinoco Government show pique or displeasure? Not a bit of it. Notified a few days later that we have declared war upon Germany, it comes right back as sweet as pie and says it stands with us and is ready to prove it. It is our turn to write now, but well * * * what would you suggest? Is there anything we can say? Soon after we apprised Huerta that we could not recognize his government because it was not constitutional, there was a ruction on the public square in Lima, Peru, and the Minister of Police, or someone of that sort, suddenly became President. It was a terrible violation of our rule, but * * * there was Mexico already * * * Peru is now and always has been a great friend of ours * * * you can see how it was. Indeed, we are afraid the rule is impracticable. It is not the way governments are chosen in Latin-America—not all the time.

The Penalty of Boasting.

COL. ROOSEVELT has boasted of what he would do for the country if it came to blows, and he therefore has to do what none of the rest of us has to do—try to work himself into the service somehow before he is called upon. The Colonel has displayed a very fine spirit in going around to the White House and burying the hatchet in the present crisis—nothing finer. He cannot, however, escape the penalty of boasting, and we can learn that lesson without thinking any the less of his patriotism. No criticism attaches to us for not conspicuously offering ourselves for service at such a time if we have not boasted our intention to offer ourselves. It would, though, instantly turn to Col. Roosevelt, who has boasted his intention, and he cannot permit his readiness to serve to take the usual course. People would josh him about his four sons and his two sons-in-law, and would want to know why they did not move. The thousands of college boys in the country who are thronging to the colors, and who have never said beans about what they would do, are in a much better position than the Colonel—as they ought to be. Modesty always becomes the brave.

Disturbing Nature's Balance.

"NONE of the wild things of earth should be destroyed. They all belong to one of the most delicate of the balances of Nature," said William L. Finley, an Oregon naturalist, in a lecture here a few days ago. There is always working somewhere a misguided tendency to offer bounties on hawks, owls, coyotes, etc. It is all a scientific mistake, according to Finley. Take the hawks and owls away from the field, and they will be overrun by the mice upon which the hawks and owls prey. Take the coyotes away from the West, and you will have a jack rabbit plague—another Australia. The country is seeing that, but slowly. Whether it will realize it in time to preserve the balance of Nature is a question.

Plenty of War News.

JUDGING by what one hears everywhere, there is plenty of war news—only the papers don't get it. It beats all about the papers—usually the last to hear things, notwithstanding the gathering of news is their business. Why don't the newspapers get onto this, for instance? The Kaiser, on one of his trips to the Orient, said to an audience of distinguished Orientals that the dream of his life was to lead a Mohammedan army which should conquer the world. Bless you, Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, was there and heard him. Why don't the newspapers see Dr. Butler? He will be glad to tell about it. Then why don't they tell what the Germans in this country are doing? How about the one-man submarine invented by a man on the Pacific Coast and actually bought by the Government for $500,000? 'Sh! Have the newspapers not heard that Blank, the millionaire, has disappeared—the secret service—heard to say he hoped Germany licked us? No? Well, what do they get?

The Case of Doc Grayson.

ENGLAND is said to be filled with curiosity to know what it was that Commander Gordon Campbell did to be hopped over the heads of 700 Lieutenant-Commanders. The Government will not say, contenting itself with the explanation that he performed one of the most gallant feats in the history of the navy. Can it be that something of this sort is behind the appointment of Doc Grayson as a Rear Admiral over the heads of so many seniors? Doc has been the President's private physician. It is a post fairly bursting with possible bravery, and we imagine that the Senate has some intimation of something of that sort in finally confirming the promotion. Let us see—one's physician. Well, he might have taken some of his own medicine!

PROGRAM FOR SPECIAL SYMPHONY CONCERT

Conductor Zach Announces Numbers That Are Popular in Best Sense.

The general ticket sale for the special concert to be given Saturday evening, April 21, at the Victoria Theater by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra before its departure for its four weeks' Music Festival Tour through the South and West, will open tomorrow. Manager Gaines of the orchestra says the interest in the concert is widespread and many requests for reservations already have come in.

The concert is in the nature of a "good by," and the program forwarded to St. Louis by Conductor Zach, who is spending a fortnight in the East, is popular in the best sense. All the numbers listed are compositions for which Zach has received requests during the season just closed. The final number, Hosmer's Southern Rhapsody, is included because of its appropriateness to the occasion. Immediately after it is played the orchestra will board the train for a series of concerts in the states from which most of the melodies included in the "Rhapsody" came.

Four solo numbers will be given, one each by the four solo artists engaged to accompany the orchestra on tour. This is the largest number of soloists ever presented at a concert by the St. Louis orchestra. The artists to be presented are Leonora Allen, a young soprano, who won success as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra on its last season's spring tour; Lillia Snelling, contralto of the Metropolitan opera; Arthur Hackett, the eminent American concert tenor; and Charles E. Galagher, basso, who last season deserted the grand opera stage to devote his time entirely to concert work. All are Americans, and all have received their entire musical education in this country.

Conductor Zach is expected to return to St. Louis Thursday, and the artists will join him here the same day. Rehearsals are scheduled for Friday and Saturday.

Following is the concert program:

Overture to Rienzi	Wagner
Hans Sachs' Monologue, Wahn! Wahn! from Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg	Wagner
Mr. Galagher.
Second Movement from Symphony No. 5, in E minor, Opus 64	Tschaikowsky
Aria—Connais tu le Pays, from Mignon	Thomas
Miss Snelling.
Symphonic Poem, Le Rouet d'Omphale (Omphale's Spinning Wheel)—	Saint-Saens
Lohengrin's Narrative, from Lohengrin	Wagner
Mr. Hackett.
Invitation to the Dance	Weber-Berlioz
Aria—Leise, Leise, from Der Freischutz	Weber
Miss Allen.
Southern Rhapsody	Hosmer

OPERA AND DRAMA SCENES IN ART LEAGUE'S PROGRAM

Parts of "Thais" and "Martha" and Two Short Spanish Plays to Be Given.

Three scenes from grand opera and two modern Spanish plays, will be the principal features of tomorrow night's musical and dramatic evening of the St. Louis Art League at the Victoria Theater. The entertainment, arranged by the league's music and drama committee, is for the benefit of the league's scholarship fund.

Two scenes from Massenet's "Thais," one at the home of Thais and one in the desert, will be produced. Mrs. Blanche Skrainka will sing the role of Thais, Louis Templeman that of Athanael, and John W. Bessee that of Nicias, and Ellis Levy will play the violin solo, "Meditation." The third operatic scene will be from the third act of "Martha," and the singers will be Mrs. Edna Bradford, Mrs. Arthur Schutz, John W. Besse and J. J. Kressler. The high schools' chorus will also sing choruses from "Traviata" and "Aida" and from two Wagner operas.

The Spanish plays will be "The Street Singer," by Jose Echegaray, with four principal players and a large group in the street scene, and "By Their Words Ye Shall Know Them," by the Quinteros, with three characters. The players in the two drama will be Mrs. Willard Bartlett, Miss Nancy Lewis Saunders, Adolph Drey, Millard Kaiser, Florence Grant, Percy E. Ramsay and J. Hobart Windmuller. Mrs. W. F. Saunders, assisted by Mrs. E. W. Pattison, will direct the Echegaray play and Elizabeth Morse will direct the other. Ethan Allen Taussig is general director of the entertainment.

LIEDERKRANZ CHORUS TO MAKE INITIAL PUBLIC BOW

Miss Stella de Mette, St. Louis contralto, and Angelo Antola, baritone, both of the San Carlo Opera Co., will present a duet scene in costume from "Cavalleria Rusticana," during a concert at the Odeon, on the night of April 27. Miss de Mette will also sing the "Habanera" from "Carmen," assisted by the Liederkranz Club mixed chorus. Both singers will present several popular operatic numbers.

The Liederkranz Club chorus, at this recital, makes its first public appearance in 14 years, its efforts in that period having been limited to private at the club. It will be directed by Ernst Prang Stamm.

Relieves This Serious Case of Chronic Constipation

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Corrects Condition That Seemed Hopeless.

After suffering from chronic constipation until she was so run down she was unable to do any kind of work Miss H. A. Frees, 209 Adams St., Dayton, Ohio obtained a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and used it with such gratifying results that she continued the treatment and has written to Dr. Caldwell that her condition is again normal and that she wants to recommend Syrup Pepsin to everyone who suffers with constipation.

Good News for Fat Folks!

If You Want to Reduce Ten to Sixty Pounds Easily and Quickly, Read This

Most fat people would like to enjoy healthful, normal weight. After unpleasant experiences with starvation dieting, drastic drugging and tiresome exercising, most of those burdened with surplus weight give up hope of ever finding relief.

At last a home treatment has been evolved, which is so simple that some may doubt its efficacy for that reason alone. But don't pass judgment until you know more.

A very easy requirement of this unique system of fat reduction is that you take ten deep breaths each morning and evening in the open air or standing by an open window. Take one oil of korein capsule after each meal and before retiring at night; also follow the other simple directions that come with the capsules.

This treatment often shows a noticeable reduction in a very few days. Its consistent use should greatly improve the general health, overcome sluggishness and reduce your weight to normal. Beautify figure; all to vitality and efficiency; become genuinely happy! The oil of korein capsules may be obtained at the drug store. It is certainly a happy feeling to have a lithe, natural figure.

Itching Pimples Kept Mr. Simpson Awake for Hours. Suffered Badly. Healed By Cuticura.

"I suffered very badly with my head which came out in little white pimples. They would go away in a week and then come back again. They festered and came to little white heads and my scalp was sore. It itched and burned so badly I would just lie awake for hours with the pain and I used to have big eruptions on my head from scratching. My hair was also thin and dry.

"I was told to wash my head with salt and water, but it did no good and I tried ——— but with no relief. Then I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I afterward bought more and when I used two large boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two bars of Soap I was healed." (Signed) Charlie Simpson, Oak St., River Grove, Ill., June 7, '16.

When Cuticura has cleared your skin of pimples and redness keep it clear by using the Soap assisted by the Ointment for every-day toilet purposes. Absolutely nothing better.

WOMAN SILENT FOR FIVE HOURS

Glasgow Munitions Worker Punished for Being Talkative.

GLASGOW, April 14.—A young woman employed in a factory asked the Munitions Tribunal for a clearance certificate because she had been put into a room and forbidden to speak for five hours.

It was stated that the young woman was particularly talkative, and in order to restrain her volubility she was separated from her intimate friends, and placed in another department. She was ordered back to work.

GIRLS! ACT NOW! HAIR COMING OUT SIGN OF DANDRUFF

25-cent "Danderine" will save your hair and double its beauty.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first —yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine—ADV.

AMERICAN PAINTINGS TO BE SHOWN THIS FALL

City Art Museum Is Arranging for National Competitive Exhibition.

The City Art Museum will hold a national competitive exhibition of American paintings this Fall. It will be open from Sept. 23 to Oct. 28, and will be composed of paintings selected by a jury of five members, including Childe Hassam, John F. Carlson, Edmund H. Wuerpel, Ralph Clarkson and Director Holland of the Art Museum.

All American artists have been invited by the Museum to submit their work to this jury, as it is realized the success of the exhibition is dependent upon the co-operation of the artists.

The annual American exhibition at the Museum has, in previous years, been made up entirely of specially invited paintings. Though no difficulty has been found in assembling an important collection in this manner, it is felt that a broader policy would insure a more representative display and one which would more truly set forth the trend of the best contemporary American art. There is no intention to lower the quality of the pictures admitted, but rather to establish such standards that any artist may consider the acceptance of his pictures an honor.

The Museum authorities have not as yet been able to arrange for prizes or other awards, but it is felt that the privilege of displaying pictures and the opportunity for sales will be inducements of considerable weight. In this connection, it is pointed out, that the sales from the annual exhibition of American paintings at the Museum have approximated a total of $35,000 in the last three years.

It is thought that once the benefits of an open, nation-wide competitive exhibition are fully appreciated as a general stimulus to the art life of the city, cash prizes will be established by means of donations and public subscriptions as a further inducement to the artists to send their best works. This has been the history of such exhibitions in other cities. The Chicago Art Institute gives $1900 in prizes each year; the Pennsylvania Academy, Philadelphia, $1550, and the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, makes awards amounting to $5200 at each of its biennial exhibitions of American art. In every case, these funds have been made available through the generosity of private citizens.

RINGLING CIRCUS TO OPEN TENT SEASON HERE MAY 1

New Features Announced for Five Days' Performance on Laclede Avenue Lot.

May day will be circus day in St. Louis. Ringling Brothers have set Tuesday, May 1, as the time for their first performances in St. Louis this season, and the performances will continue through Saturday, May 5.

The Ringlings will open their tent season in St. Louis this year, as they did last year. They are now showing in the Chicago Coliseum. The show grounds here will be the lot at Laclede and Vandeventer avenues. New European circus acts are announced, and the menagerie has a number of new features. Bingo, known as the two-story elephant, heads a flock of 31 of these interesting creatures. The spectacle, "Cinderella," which was highly praised for its beauty last season, will be given on the large stage.

Among the new features promised in the performance are the Chau Wah troupe of Chinese acrobats; 10 speed mechanics who assemble an automobile in six minutes; wood choppers and orange packers who claim the speed records in those occupations; Hillary Long, who skates on his head, and Ink Spot, comedy bareback rider. Sam McPherson and his troupe of Scotch riders and pipers head the bareback riders, in which the Wirth family, led by May Wirth, is prominent

'COME TO SUNDAY SCHOL DAY' WILL BE OBSERVED APRIL 29

Campaign Will be Conducted to Bring Out Greatest Possible Attendance.

Come-to-Sunday-School-Day will be observed Sunday, April 29, by the Sunday Schools of Protestant churches in St. Louis, which will have programs arranged by the St. Louis Sunday School Association.

A campaign will be carried on by window posters and personal visits by teachers and scholars of the Sunday schools to bring out the greatest possible attendance.

The purpose of the special day's program, as announced by the association, is to induce persons who ordinarily do not attend Sunday school to go that day in the belief that many of them will become regular attendants. The program provides for the singing of "America" in all the Sunday schools in addition to the usual devotional music.

Each Sunday school has been urged to map out a definite campaign, to determine the number of persons it can reasonably expect to have, and to work diligently to bring in that number.

Three Recitals Announced.

Three recitals are announced by students of the Strassberger Conservatories —Tuesday night at the South Side branch, Grand and Shenandoah avenues; Thursday night at the North Side branch, 2200 St. Louis avenue, and Sunday afternoon at the South Side conservatory. Pupils of the new O'Fallon Park branch, Alice and Florissant avenues, are represented on the program, which will be made up of dramatic, vocal, violin and piano numbers.

Relief from Diabetes Obtained by Use of Old Reliable Remedy

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy has brought health and happiness to many who thought themselves beyond aid.

Diabetes is a peculiar and baffling disease which the medical profession seems to be unable to accurately describe and definitely cure, despite the many years of experimenting and research by foremost physicians throughout the world.

Diabetes is invariably the result of impaired nutrition—this results in an excess of sugar in the blood and failure of the food to nourish, hence a gradual wasting away while eating well.

Symptoms of the disease are: increased thirst, emaciation and dry skin.

Following are a few voluntary words of praise from a man who has used Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy with gratifying results. Perhaps you may be benefited in a like manner.

"I had been troubled with Diabetes for 8 years. I heard about Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy and I tried some of it and got myself in good condition and went to work again. One man said he doctored for 2 years and that one bottle of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy did him more good than all the doctors. I am much pleased and so thankful for your life-saving remedy that I cheerfully recommend it to anyone troubled with Diabetes and I hope this will be the cause of helping many sufferers." (Signed) James Platt, Nat'l. Military Home, Dayton Ohio.

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from a formula tried and tested and used with remarkable results during the past 40 years. As the name indicates. Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is absolutely safe and is made solely from herbs and other beneficial ingredients. For sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all leading druggists. Free sample on request. AUTOMOBILE NEWS

HERE IS A SUMMER SEDAN

"The Jackson Automobile Co. has expressed its faith in the popularity of the all-season sedan by bringing out at the opening of the spring season one of the handsomest permanent-top, convertible models of the year, faturing 'staggered doors,' the latest sedan improvement," says Joseph A. Schlecht of the Mound City Buggy and Auto Co.

"Believing, as the Jackson company does, that the demand for the convertible sedan will be practically as large during the spring and summer months as in the fall and winter, we were in no great hurry to produce this type of car during the cold weather of 1916-1917. Many manufacturers would have waited until next fall if they had been in our place, as our sedan is really a year ahead in design.

Replace it with A VESTA

No other battery will give you as long life, as dependable service, as much peace of mind as the Vesta—because there is no battery made like the Vesta.

No other battery is so constructed to protect you so positively against short circuits, "treeing," and other annoying, expensive battery troubles.

Vesta Indestructible Isolators prevent short circuits; Vesta Impregnated Wooden mats prevent "treeing;" Vesta Titanium hardens the lead plates, precipitates impurities and adds vastly to the battery's strength.

No other battery has a single one of these life-prolonging features.

And finally, whatever make of battery you may have, we will make you just as good an allowance as the manufacturer of your old battery. In replacing an old battery or buying a new one, it is safe, wise business to get the Vesta. It costs no more — gives double the service.

It is very seldom necessary to make an adjustment on a Vesta Battery; however, when it is necessary, adjustment is made on a basis of eighteen months' service.

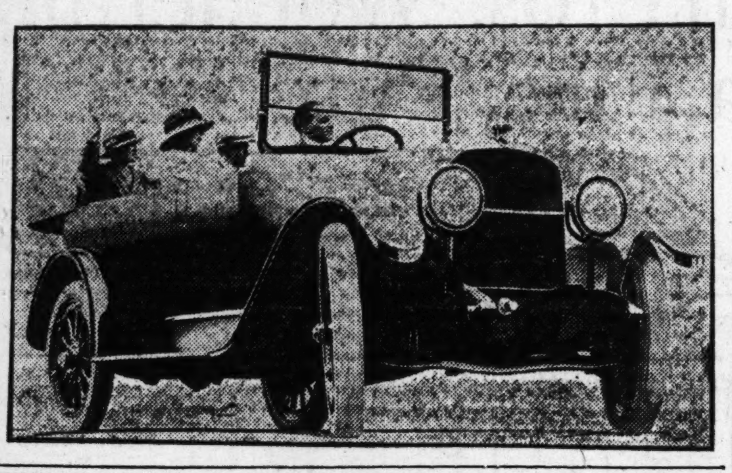
THE NEWEST DORRIS PRODUCTION



OFFER BIG REWARD.

The King Motor Car Co. of Detroit will continue their Car Owners' Service tests during the coming year and the public is asked to make suggestions. In case a suggestion is adopted, Artemas Ward Jr., president of the company, states that the sum of $100 will be paid to the person with the idea, provided they are not connected with the King organization.

It is not the intention of the King officials to stage any event except the kind that has real merit for the service of the eight-cylinder King owner and the thought must be something along original lines.

During the past year the eight-cylinder King has figured in a number of Car Owners' service tests with stock cars, two of the tests being under the auspices of the American Automobile Association, giving to the King products records that were never before established or, thus far, even attempts made to break. One was the well-known 10,850-mile non-motor stop (no mechanical trouble) run on the Sheepshead Bay Motor Speedway and the other "an over the road" under actual touring condition fuel economy test from Pittsburg to Milwaukee.

PIANO HOUSE ADDS MOTOR SUPPLIES TO ITS BUSINESS

St. Louis Concern's Novel Departure Planned to Capitalize Good Will of Its Music Customers.

Pianos and automobile accessories are usually not coupled together, but the Field-Lippman Piano Stores of St. Louis, beginning Monday, will join them in a very practical way by opening at their piano stores, 1120-22 Olive street, St. Louis, a completely stocked automobile supply and accessory department, occupying the east of the large building, with reserve stock on other floors.

The company also plans to open in connection with its piano business branch accessory stores at Sedalia and Farmington, Mo.; Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio, Tex. According to W. A. Lippman, general manager of the Field-Lippman house, this move has been contemplated for several years.

W. G. Acton, who has been connected with the automobile department of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., will be manager of the automobile accessory department.

The east side of the building has been fitted up with counters, and large plate-glass cabinets in consonance with the fittings of other parts of the stores.

The Field-Lippman house has been in business for 45 years and it is believed by members of the firm that the good will built up will be an important asset in the sale of automobile accessories and supplies, on the theory that a very large proportion of piano owners are also owners of automobiles.

By joining accessories in the business of selling pianos, the company is enabled to keep constantly in touch with a number of piano, music machine and sheet music buyers, through the sales force and their personal visits, and to interest them in automobile supplies. This covers, for the accessory business, a large expense in the way of overhead, and permits, according to Mr. Lippman, the making of closer prices and the rendering of better service.

The great financial resources of the company, which are about $600,000, put it in a position to buy on very close margins and to sell according.

In addition to complete lines of accessories for automobiles and supplies, the stock will include a number of important and exclusive agencies. The new department will also specialize in touring, camping and traveling specialties, including fully equipped camp trailers. These lines will be shown on the third floor, together with a complete line of sporting goods. A touring bureau will also be maintained in the reception room on the fourth floor. The information will be given free of charge.

TO TRY OUT ROUTE FOR AD MEN'S CARAVAN

SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—Planning an itinerary for an overland caravan to adopt is not as simple as might be thought, is the experience of the San Francisco Advertising Club's 'On to St. Louis' Committee, which has the arrangements of the schedule in hand.

When this committee, some weeks ago, announced a route from San Francisco via Truckee, California, Reno, Lovelocks, Winnemucca, Montello, Elko, Ogden, Salt Lake, Grand Junction, Denver, Kansas City to St. Louis, a storm of protest arose from towns that were not on this designated route.

So emphatic were their protests and claims that the entire route matter was reconsidered, without the committee coming to any new decision. The chief objection from the route through the southern Rockies was that it had not been tried out, consequently there was a doubt that it might be in perfect condition. The grades across the continental divide also were complained of.

The matter apparently has reached an impasse. The advertising club's caravan, which will be an epoch-making tour for California, leaves San Francisco on May 20. A decision quickly must be made. Army officers are expected to accompany the tourists to inspect the road, and the schedule of running, which requires an average of 200 miles per day, is so tight as not to allow of any delays once the caravan starts.

The suggestion accordingly has been made by Claude McGee of the Howard Automobile Co., representatives of the Buick on the coast, to send a car from San Francisco on May 1 to make the trip east over one of the disputed roads, returning via the other. This test car should be back in San Francisco May 28.

REMARKABLE RECORD OF ANCIENT DORRIS

H. F. Wedemeyer, a former St. Louisan, now in business on the coast, is visiting here this week. He has something interesting to say about his Dorris automobile.

"In the seven years I have been in Southern California," said Mr. Wedemeyer, "I drove my 1907 Dorris over 100,000 miles, mostly in Los Angeles, Riverside and Orange counties. Two hundred or more miles in one day is about the average for a family outing and all of this traveling on a set of tires a year (one left front tire on all three years). The last day I drove the car I got 47 miles on hour out of it, same as your Mr. Rumble did when demonstrating to us. I never touched the engine in four years, except to clean spark plugs.

"The only new part on this motor is a water pump and a new Stromberg carburetor and the two main bearings. The last few years I have used distillate (one-half the price of gasoline). My ignition is a Seeley system on the order of an Atwater-Kent—and for juice, dry cells. The roller bearings are O K, so is the body and the top has not even a break in it.

"The old boat is as good as new—I always get there and have never been towed in and always returned home on time. If it ever wears out, you know, there is only one car for me. Did I ever ride in any other car? Sure! Everything from a twin-two and up. Bought the car 10 years ago this week."

LANDAULET IN FAVOR.

During the past winter there has developed among buyers of inclosed cars in the larger cities an unmistakable trend toward the landaulet. This is the impression gained by the Cadillac Motor Car Co., which reports that the demand for its own landaulet model is continuing into the spring months.

The character and utility of the landaulet type make this a logical development, since this car is admirably adapted to use in both summer and winter, in fair weather and foul.

She Dreaded an Operation More Than Anything Else

MRS. MARY E. FRANSE

Tried Fruitola and Traxo and Has Never Since Been Troubled With Gall Stones.

Mrs. Mary E. Franse, whose address is West Point, Neb., Box 411, has written to the Pinus laboratories a very strong endorsement of Fruitola and Traxo. "About ten years ago I was about to undergo an operation for gall stones when I heard of your medicine. Dreading an operation above everything, I determined to try Fruitola and Traxo and have never been sorry I did so, as I have never been troubled with gall stones since."

Fruitola and Traxo are compounded from the original Edsall formulas at the Pinus laboratories in Monticello, Ill., and can be purchased in drug stores; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant. One dose is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened, rundown system.

A booklet of special interest to those who suffer from stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Illinois.

Slip it under the axle of your car. Note the remarkable ease with which it lifts.

This will be enough to convince you that here's the easiest-working auto jack. Then consider its construction—solid, machine-turned, accurately-fitted steel gears, tough malleable iron casing, handy reversing lever, long handle, short stroke; beautiful design and finish. Compare it with any other auto jack you ever saw or heard of and you'll chug away with one in your tool box. Positively the best jack money can buy. With reasonable care, will outlast two automobiles.

Oakland

The Sensible Six

THE first thought that pops into a man's mind when he looks over the new Oakland Six is: "There's a car that is really practical in every way. It is sensible in size, power, equipment and price, and it bears the name of one of the most reliable concerns in the business. That is the common-sense car for me to buy."

The new Oakland Six is sensible in size. The wheelbase of Model 34 is 112 inches. The bodies of both touring car and roadster are not only longer and wider and higher than the Model 32, but they are roomier and more comfortable than in other cars of the same, or in many cases even longer, wheelbase.

It is sensible in power. The motor is the high-speed valve-in-head type, and develops 41 horsepower at 2500 revolutions per minute.

It is sensible in weight. Though big in capacity and very strongly built, the new Oakland Six weighs 2150 pounds or 53 pounds to every horsepower developed by the motor.

It is sensible because it is over-tired. Tire manufacturers recommend 32x3½-nch tires for 2200-pound cars. The Oakland Sensible manufacturers recommend 32x3½-inch tires over-sized tires. This means not only improved riding qualities, but greatly increased tire mileage.

It is sensible in construction. Some features of the Oakland Sensible Six are: Oakland-Northway six cylinder motor; Hotchkiss drive; Delco starting, lighting and ignition; tapering frame on which entire length of body sill rests; long, semi-elliptic springs; Marvel carburetor; over-sized tires; genuine leather trimming, pleated type, with deep, comfortable upholstery; low center of gravity prevents side-sway and skidding, which wear out tires and rack the frame and driving mechanism.

It is sensible because of its wonderful riding qualities. Tires are over-size—32x4 inches—and rear springs are 51 inches long and shaped to eliminate rebound. Upholstering is deep and soft and wheelbase is of correct length to give perfect road-action.

It is sensible because it is economical. Fuel gives from 18 to 25 miles per gallon, and extra-large tires last much longer and cost less per mile of use than in cars of the same or higher price than the Oakland Six.

Lastly, the Oakland Six is sensible in price. Considering all its features—greater power, lengthened wheelbase, bigger body, over-sized tires, light weight—this car at $875 sets the standard of value for cars of its type. At less price you cannot get all the qualities you really want in a car, and in most cars at higher prices you pay entirely out of proportion to what you get.

FOOLED THE FOUNDRIES

"Delayed by causes beyond our control" is a phrase that is being used more and more by concerns that are obliged to purchase certain parts of their products. War business has completely disrupted a great many lines of manufacturing, owing to the extraordinary demand for many of the raw materials. Most manufactured articles are made up of a number of separate parts, and the failure to obtain any one of these parts often makes it impossible to produce the finished article. Thus one manufacturer is dependent upon another and for several months past it has been very difficult to obtain regular deliveries—from foundries in particular.

To overcome this situation the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation of Chicago decided to free itself from these delays by operating its own foundry. Accordingly, a foundry was established at Beloit, Wis., and another step was taken in the plan to control the manufacture of Stewart products from the raw material to the finished article. The new foundry at Beloit was built large enough to handle the business for a number of years without crowding.

MOTOR CYCLE IN AIR

A newcomer into the family of war appliances is the motor cycle carrying aeroplane. A special platform built between the planes, just outside the body of the aeroplane, carries the motor cycle. The addition of this machine greatly enhances the effectiveness of the aeroplane, and affords a quick means of land travel in case of a shortage of gasoline or disability of the aeroplane engine. If the aviators who were lost in the Mexican desert during Gen. Pershing's expedition, had been equipped with motor cycles, their return to headquarters would have been a matter of only a few hours instead of a three days' wait for the searching party. Goodyear tires are equipping both motor cycle and aeroplane in the combination.

LONG TIRE MILEAGE.

A Chambersburg (Pa.) motor cycle enthusiast sends in the following gratuitous report on the extraordinary service he got out of a United States "Usco" mortor cycle tire:

"One Sunday last May I bought an 'Usco'. The boys wanted to take a trip and I was afraid that m yold tire would blow out, so I had the dealer put the 'Usco' on instead. I ran that 'Usco' tire 3500 miles at least. Then I made a trade on a second-hand four-wheeler. I took the 'Usco' off my motor cycle and put it on the left rear of my four-wheeler. Since then she has made about 3900 miles more, and she is going to make some more revolutions before she blows. When I buy any more tires they must have the same trade mark—the U. S.—that comes on the little old money we use."

WITHDRAW SPECIFICATION

"Disregard specifications and shoot forward all the cars you can get, regardless of model"—this in a word is about what P. D. Stubbs, general sales manager of the Premier Motor Corporation, is getting from his dealers all along the line, including St. Louis.

The fact is that he cannot hope to meet the demand for Premier cars during the present selling months, and as nearly as can be told this far in advance, it looks as if the fall months were going to be very heavy selling months for the new Premier Aluminum Six with magnetic gear shift.

A High Standard Made Higher Still

Were they so disposed, Dodge Brothers could not lower the quality of this car.

They are no longer free agents, because public opinion has established a standard for everything bearing their name.

They dare not fall below the high estimate that has been formed of them as motor car manufacturers.

The American people are quick to detect deterioration.

And what is much more important—they expect the constant improvement of any product in which they repose complete confidence.

They would be slower to forgive a fault in any car Dodge Brothers might build, than in one they esteemed less highly.

Every dealer in Dodge Brothers cars knows that the customers who come to him, come with the highest possible expectations.

He knows that the thing he is selling primarily is Dodge Brothers word and their good name.

He knows that he is not merely dealing in motor cars, but acting as custodian for Dodge Brothers reputation.

Naturally, this knowledge of what is expected by the buyer breeds a deep sense of responsibility.

In the Works, it has the effect of inspiring Dodge Brothers to a constant personal oversight of all of the manufacturing operations.

The entire institution is honestly permeated with the idea that quality and performance are paramount and all-important.

And so, a standard which was naturally high, has been made higher still, by the bestowal of complete confidence on the part of the public.

It is a mutual contract which offers constant inspiration to the manufacturer and constant insurance to the customer.

With the interests of buyer and seller so closely knit together, the result, everywhere, is what might have been expected.

It is impossible for Dodge Brothers, with all their great facilities, to build enough motor cars to satisfy the public.

It will pay you to visit us and examine this car

REPUBLIC TIRES BY NEW PROCESS

Republic tires, made by the Prodium process, are making a bid for recognition in a big way. The Republic Rubber Co. is just starting a national advertising campaign to make clear to the public what the Prodium process has done in improving automobile tires.

This process was discovered in the laboratories of the Republic company nearly two years ago and after long factory tests the manufacturers of Republic tires by this process was undertaken in a cautious way.

During the past year thousands of the tires were tested out in all parts of the country and under all sorts of driving conditions. As a result of these tests the company claims that Republic tires last longer and that they wear down evenly and smoothly. Also that they are extremely tough and practically immune to road cutting and chipping. Rubber made by the Prodium process is so strong that a strip of it one and a half inches square will suspend a weight of more than three tons.

The local branch of the Republic Rubber Co. reports that the demand for Republic tires is increasing so rapidly, and that the advertising of the Prodium process is expected to have such an effect on the tire-buying public, that arrangements have been made for trebling the production of Republic tires.

INCREASE TIRE GUARANTEE

On the theory that with proper lubrication of the springs of a car, the possible mileage from the tires will be greatly increased, the makers of the Dann Spring Insert are offering to car owners this extra mileage.

Through Bittel-Leftwich, Grand and Lindell, the St. Louis distributers, they will give an additional guarantee of 1500 miles to tires on any car equipped with Dann Inserts. Thus if a tire carries a 5000-mile guarantee they will make it 6500; if it is 3500, they will increase it to 5000 miles. This gives the owner a tangible benefit as the result of his equipment.

The principle of the Dann Insert is the same as that of any other bearing in the car. The leaves of the spring must slip over one another easily if spring action is to be perfect. There must be no rust nor roughness to hinder this movement.

The Dann Insert is a bronze bearing or strip that is inserted between each of the leaves of the spring. Its structure is such that it supplies continuous lubrication to the entire surface of the spring leaves which rest upon it.

Several popular makes of cars now include the Dann Inserts as regular equipment and they are made in sizes to fit all makes of cars. In addition to the increased mileage feature, the big feature is the increased riding qualities which are claimed for cars equipped with it.

OWNERS SHOULD KEEP RADIATOR CELLS CLEAN

"To secure the best results from a motor car cooling system, the owner should take care to keep the radiator cells free from foreign matter, particularly when he is driving over muddy roads, or on dusty highways," said James E. Newell, president of Newell Motor Car Co.

"If the trip is at all long, the accumulation of dust, dirt and mud pettets. driven to a lodging place by the motion of the car, seriously impairs radiation by retaining the heat the radiator core would ordinarily dissipate in the air. An examination of only a limited number of motor cars will reveal radiator interstices that are so tightly packed with particles of earth they can play no part in reducing the temperature of the water system.

"The quickest and best way to correct the evil is to play a hose with considerable water pressure on the radiator for a few minutes at each watering place, and the ability of the car to rid itself of its excess thermal load will be accordingly increased. Care should be exercised that the foreign matter is not left clinging to the radiator core as sticky mud.

"At stopping places where it is not possible to take this precaution, merely brushing off the radiator from time to time with a stiff brush or sweeping with a broom will materially simplify the cooling problem."

POLICE HANDCUFF OFFENDING AUTO

"The strongest proof that the horse is eventually to be eliminated by the motor car is shown by the present situation in Chicago and New York City," said Stewart McDonald, vice president and general manager of the Moon Motor Car Co. of St. Louis. "At present there are no horses permitted on Michigan avenue in Chicago, nor on Fifth avenue in New York. People who have followed automobile development will remember that a few years ago no automobiles were allowed on Fifth avenue nor on Michigan avenue.

"Horse-drawn vehicles are not permitted to drive continuously on either of these boulevards. They can drive in at a block for the delivery of merchandise in that block, but must get off the street at the first corner. Also because of the automobiles there has been no sprinkling on Fifth avenue, New York, for three years, and none on Michigan boulevard for about the same period.

ACCESSORY MEN TO MEET

The Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis will hold its April business meeting and dinner at the City Club Tuesday night, April 17. W. E. Bilheimer, who is sales manager for the Franklin Life Insurance Co., who is the highest paid insurance man in the West, is an inspirational talker on the selling problem, and is president of the Salesmanship Club of St. Louis, which is affiliated with the World's Salesmanship Congress.

WAS CYCLONE PROOF.

A novel testimonial of the sturdiness of the Inter-State, came from Newcastle, Ind., which was recently swept by a cyclone. The car was standing in front of its owner's house several hundred feet away when the cyclone struck.

It was rolled over and over and finally came to rest on its side. After the owner righted it, the report continues, he started the engine and drove 20 miles to the Inter-State factory at Muncie, Ind., to have the dents taken out of the radiator.

Announcing
a Very Important Discovery

WE KNOW, now, that the Prōdium Process of compounding rubber does prolong the life of the tire.

That fact has been established by a year's exhaustive experience.

Republic Tires made by the Prōdium Process do undoubtedly last longer.

They do undoubtedly wear down slowly to a smooth and even surface—like a piece of steel.

They do develop a tensile strength beyond anything hitherto known.

They are unmistakably stronger and tougher, with greater spring and responsiveness.

What we have actually produced is a rubber, so tremendously strong that a strip of it, an inch and a half square, will suspend more than three tons of dead weight.

We have now built more than one hundred thousand sets of Republic Tires by the Prōdium Process.

The evidence is not only abundant but positive.

We are so sure of the facts, that on the strength of our certainty the output of the Republic plant will be trebled.

The merit of the tires has so advertised itself that an unprecedented demand has sprung up everywhere.

From four to five hundred new and unsolicited customers are being reported every day.

We are straining every nerve to spread the distribution to every city and town in the country.

LITTLE LILLIAN ROMAINE FISHER CAN TALK AGAIN

This attractive little lady is the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Fisher, 238 North St., Harrisburg, Pa. Last winter she had an attack of measles, together with a very severe cold. Just at that time Druggist S. J. Wilhelm presented Mr. Fisher with a jar of the Southern "outside" treatment—Vick's VapoRub Salve, which was just then being introduced in Harrisburg, and requested that he give this preparation a thorough trial. Mr. Fisher writes—

"I must say that our baby had such a cold on her chest and in her throat that she could hardly talk, and we could not get her to take anything internally. After we used Vick's VapoRub Salve on her breast and throat at night before going to bed she was entirely relieved."

No family should be without this preparation. It is externally applied, and so can be used freely—it is absorbed through and penetrates the skin, and, in addition, is inhaled as a vapor. It has a hundred uses for the many minor ailments for which every mother is the doctor. Three sizes, 25c, 50c or $1.00.—ADV.

Continuous Profit Demands a Permanent Standard of EXTRA VALUE

Primarily, the Inter-State is built to return a legitimate profit to the builders.

They are thoroughly conscious, however, of this one verity—that they cannot maintain this profit continually if Inter-State cars do not offer a definite assurance of quality and service to the buyer.

For the past three years Inter-State owners have proved that the Inter-State Motor Company is upholding this fundamental principle of successful business.

The unbounded enthusiasm of prospective buyers and the large number of requests for territory concessions that have been made this year, are conclusive proof of the confidence there is in a product which has stood for one thing for three years — a definite standard of Extra Value.

FARMERS ARE BUYING HIGH-PRICED CARS

A Saturday evening census of the cars "hitched" along the curb of any small town, made while their farmer owners are attending the Weekly Movies or the Lyceum Bureau's entertainment, would surprise a good many city folks.

The number of high-grade six-cylinder cars that will be found "three-quartered" toward the sidewalk proves that the best in automobiling pleasure is none too good for the present-day farmer and his family.

The long wheelbases afforded by the larger cars greatly increase the comfort of riding over country roads and permit of higher speeds. And with the coming of the light sixes, ample pulling power has been provided in addition to low cost of operation.

James E. Newell, president of the Newell Motor Car Co., Haynes distributers, reports a large percentage of sales made to farmers. And this does not mean that only the wealthy farmers have been buying Haynes cars.

The farmer is famous as a close buyer. He is also quite familiar with gas engines as a result of using them with his farm machinery. He wants figures, not promises or sweet-coated talk, as to exactly what a car will cost him for gas, oil, tires, repairs, etc.

Haynes dealers, by reason of 1917 being the third year during which the Haynes "Light Six" has been offered without vital changes in construction, have been able to produce the definite upkeep figures demanded and to show the farmers that the Haynes finds them all the advantages of a big, high-powered car at the upkeep cost of a car in the $1000 class.

WILL BUILD 2000 GRANTS A MONTH

Production is now going forward on a quantity basis at the new Grant factory which has just been erected in Cleveland. The plan, which is modern in every respect, is built with a capacity in view of over 30,000 cars a year.

The plans for 1917, however, call for 25,000 and at the present rate about 2000 will be built during April. "There is little doubt but that a car shortage will be felt," says J. C. Barcus of the St. Louis Grant Motor Co, "but the Grant factory, with its new plant and its huge stock of materials, will be in excellent shape to supply the demand."

For the benefit of Grant owners and dealers in this territory, a parts depot has been established in St. Louis with the new distributors, at 3950 Olive street, and all parts will be supplied from here.

APPERSONS ADVANCED.

Due to abnormal conditions, both in the labor and material markets, the Apperson Bros. Automobile Co. of Kokomo, Ind., have announced an advance in price of three of the five different models this well-known pioneer company is building at the present time, by wire to the J. W. Leigh Motors Co. of St. Louis.

The ew price becomes effective April 15, and covers an advance of $100 in the list price of the three six-cylinder cars which are the only ones affected by the increase. The two eigh-cylinder models are not changed by the advance, and they will continue to sell in either the seven-passenger touring or four-passenger Chummy roadster at $2000.

This will make the six-cylinder seven-passenger touring and six-cylinder four-passenger Chummy roadster list at $1850 and the six-cylinder five-passenger touring car at $17.90.

In making the announcement of the advance in price, the Apperson company advises that a further increase will be necessary later on, probably at the time the new 1918 models are placed on the market.

POWER OF A "DOUBLE SIX"

"There is no question about the surpassing power, flexibility and smoothness of action of a 12-cylinder motor,' says Harry Newman, the Kissel Kar local distributer.

"It is really a new sensation in motion, suggesting the steam turbine rather than the internal combustion engine that it is. Vibration is eliminted. There are no jerks in starting. Shifting of gears is rarely necessary.

"No wonder, therefore, that all motordom, and especially those looking for new thrills, are attracted to twelves. Although the new Kissel double six has been on the market but a short time, and the congested freight situation has kept delivery from a large number of dealers who have them on order, great public interest in the new model is manifested from every section of the coutnry."

LARGE VELIE ACTIVITY

Approximately twelve thousand Velie Sixes will be built this year by a considerable margin the largest production ever reached by the Velie Motors Corporation of Moline, Ill. A systematic rearrangement of factory departments will permit an even greater output the coming year, says a letter from the factory to the Velie Automobile Co. of St. Louis.

The announcement of a Velie tractor caused great interest and the recent purchase of fifteen acres of ground just East of the Velie truck factory for tractor purposes, promises a substantial development in that field. Velie motor truck production is also at a maximum, the domestic demand absorbing a large majority of the output.

TO SELL THE SELDEN

The Igou Motor Co., 4333 Warne avenue, has taken the agency for St. Louis and territory for the Selden truck. The initial contract was for 100 trucks, and to meet the demands of this business large additions to the present shop on Warne avenue are being built. Complete service stations will be installed there.

INSTALL ELECTRIC TAXIS

A fleet of six Milburn electric taxicabs has been installed by Marshall Bros. for use in St. Louis. These cars are duplicates of the handsome Milburn town car except in color. They will be used for the present for private service, as shopping, calling, receptions and other functions. Marshall Bros. expect to add to the number of their fleet from time to time.

There is the world's non-stop record for endurance, as testified to by the American Automobile Association.

Monthly Expenses $8.19

For 9,700 miles Mrs. Miriam Seeley, Professor at the Oregon Agricultural College, drove her Maxwell on a total expense account, including gas, oil and repairs, of 1⅓ cents per mile, making an average monthly running expense of $8.19.

There's a record expense performance—often lowered by hundreds of Maxwell owners every month.

When You Buy a Maxwell You Buy a Real Car

You don't have to figure up another two or three hundred dollars on "extras" when you buy a Maxwell car.

You get what you pay for and what you are entitled to—a thoroughly up-to-date automobile, complete in every respect.

You know the whole story now—the story of the increased price next month and the story of your last chance to buy at $635.

If you buy in May you'll get the same car exactly. BUT the price will be $665.

TODAY the Maxwell is $635.

The difference is the premium for your prompt action.

NEW M'FARLAN HOME.

The McFarlan Motor Sales Co. will be in its new building at 3017 Locust street, by April 25. The building has been especially designed for McFarlan sales and service. The exterior is to be finished in buff stucco, and the interior in white ivory. Night and day service will be maintained by Manager C. H. Dolfuss r.

It has been announced by the Nash Motors Co. that E. G. Soward has resigned his position as pleasure car sales manager to enter a business of his own.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandrufff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—ADV.

SCHLECHT AT HEAD OF TRADE ASSOCIATION

At the annual meeting of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association last Monday night at the City Club, Joseph A. Schlecht, the Allen and Jackson distributor for St. Louis was selected for president; H. F. Fahrenkrog of the Kardell Motor Car Co. is the new vice president; Herman L. Schnure of the Velie Automobile Co. is the treasurer. The directors selected were: F. W. A. Vesper, Buick; H. W. Spalding, Packard; W. L. Johnson, Ford; Frank R. Tate, Dodge; J. D. Perry Lewis, Chandler; I. G. McNiece, Cadillac. The new directors will meet Wednesday or Thursday of this week to select a secretary and organize.

The report of the Show Committee to the meeting was that the recent automobile show was so successful as to reduce the cost of space to member exhibitors to 2 cents per square foot. The space was sold to them at 40 cents per square foot, and the difference rebated to them. Dealers from 11 states to the number of 3029 attended the show. The total attendance at the show for the week was nearly 30,000.

DOUBLES TRUCK OUTPUT

Because of the great inrush of orders for Jeffery all-purpose and quad trucks during the past 30 days, C. W. Nash has called a conference of his factory heads and ordered truck production doubled.

At the same time a definite manufacturing program was decided upon for the balance of this season, and the season to come, which includes the production of a greater number of Jeffery trucks than the factory has ever built pleasure cars in a single season.

CYCLISTS TO REPEAT PAUL REVERE'S RIDE

In these days of national fervor, it is quite appropriate that there should be demonstrations of patriotism on every hand and occasional revivals of events having historical significance. The plans which have been instituted for the Fisk Bicycle Clubs of America is unique to a degree and particularly appropriate for the month.

Fisk Bicycle Clubs in nearly every city and town will celebrate April 19 as Paul Revere day by riding their bicycles over a course which will correspond to Revere's Boston to Concord route. At each point where occurred some unusual incident in Revere's ride, the club historian will dismount and read to his fellow members the details of that incident.

A recent issue of Fisk Club News, the official magazine of the organization, announced that approximately 5000 boys in all parts of the country will take part in this pageant.

CHANGE OF TITLE.

Announcement is made by M. E. Johnson that the M. E. Johnson Motor Car Co. will be hereafter used as the corporate name of the company hitherto called the Harry Newman-Johnson Co. This company handles the H A L car, for which Harry Newman of Chicago is the general distributor.

CARS COATED WITH OIL

The Kardell Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, distributors of the Reo car, are planning a big driveway from the factory at Lansing, Mich., as soon as the weather will permit. A number of dealers in this territory will go to the factory to drive cars overland to their respective towns. The Kardell Motor Car Co. originated the plan of coating new cars with oil to prevent damage from dirt and dust when thus driven from the factory or a distributing depot.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow it to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by Johnson, Enderle & Pauley, Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson and others.—ADV.

The Studebaker SIX

—As to Quality

For sixty-five years the name Studebaker has stood for honorable dealing with the public.

Studebaker has put into its product the most careful and experienced workmanship and the best materials that money can buy.

These combined with time honored honesty are the things that make quality.

In the Studebaker Six, quality is present in the material, deep in the vital parts where it is revealed by years of durability and by silent, smooth running efficiency.

There is further evidence of Studebaker quality which you can plainly see.

Compare its beautiful paint and varnish work with that of any car on the market.

Compare the quality of its genuine leather upholstery with that of cars costing $2000 or over.

Note the high grade, leather bound crimson carpet in the tonneau, the genuine, pin tumbler Yale ignition lock.

Note the heavy gauge crown fenders, the beautiful head lamp mountings.

These are outward evidences of quality, but the real quality in Studebaker cars is that which meets emergencies, the life giving "factor of safety" which is splendid insurance for you to buy.

Come in and let us show you point by point the evidences of Studebaker quality.

Let us convince you that to equal the Studebaker in quality you have to pay many hundreds of dollars more.

It is well worth your while to investigate.

Nine years of continuous, consistent development, improvement, refinement!

Each year a better car and a better value!

Over three hundred thousand now in use!

That is the history of the car that built Overland because it represented integrity of value.

And as steadfastly as this car has represented original integrity of value, so also has The Willys-Overland Company sustained that integrity of value throughout its service in the hands of those who purchased it.

The Overland Big Four of this season and its twin—except for the motor—the Overland Light Six, are the direct outcome of all this development.

More than three hundred thousand owners and more than four thousand dealer and factory-branch organizations have assisted this development by their experience with these cars and their helpful suggestions of improvements.

In their new beauty, in their perfected easy riding qualities, in their proven sturdiness and mechanical excellence, in their admitted tire, fuel and oil economy, these cars are worthy of the confidence we have, that they will further enhance Overland prestige.

The prices are $850 for the Big Four, $985 for the Light Six, while we have them to deiver until May 1st—thereafter $895 and $1025.

SERVICE STATIONS FOR SMITH-FORM-A-TRUCK

With the increased number of Smith Form-A-Trucks in daily use, the Smith Motor Truck Corp., its manufacturer, has adopted a new service policy. A limited number of sales and service stations will be appointed in different sections of St. Louis and its suburbs.

Through this new plan it is hoped to give to the owners the most efficient service possible because each of these service stations will maintain a complete stock of parts and be in a position to give any service necessary, thus insuring the owner of 100 per cent efficiency from his truck.

The change in policy was brought about by the number of these trucks in use, over 300 having been sold in St. Louis within the past year. In addition to the Motor Truck Sales Co., 4527-29 Delmar, which is the distributor for this territory, these service stations have been appointed.

The success of the Smith Form-A-Truck in St. Louis has been duplicated in practically every other city in the country, according to Franklin Young, who is here from the factory. During 1916 more than 13,000 of these trucks were manufactured, necessitating one increase after another in the factory facilities.

A complete new plant in Chicago was started in operation last November, but the demanad was such that it was doubled in size as fast as posible, this third unit being completed April 1. With the present facilities a Smith Form-A-Truck is now being turned out every four minutes and all of the three plants are working 24 hours a day. Yet this does not entirely relieve the congestion.

STUDENTS SEE PLANT.

Prof. D. A. MacInness and 45 members of the 1917-18 class on Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, University of Illinois, visited the Vesta Accumulator Co.'s Chicago plant Thursday. Prof. MacInness who is considered one of the ablest men in his line, is of the new school of college instructors and believes that practice combined with theory enables a university to turn out more efficient graduates.

When it came time for his class to take up the subject of storage battery construction, the Vesta plant was selected as a model of its kind. Permission was obtained from the Vesta management and Thursday spent in getting a first hand insight into the manufacture of automobile storage batteries as they are made today.

Much interest was displayed by Prof. MacInness and his students in the recent Vesta discoveries, which have gone a long way toward revolutionizing automobile battery construction. Among these are the late Vesta indestructible isolators, which lock the plates of this company's batteries apart and prevent short circuits, formerly the bane of the automobilist; the new Vesta method of impregnating their wood mats, which does away with "treeing" another seriuos cause of battery deterioration; and Vesta's latest and bigest discovery the use of Titanium in their batteries as a purifier.

BRISCOE'S DELIVERY CAR

Realizing the big field that is open to a light delivery car the Briscoe Motor Corporation, makers of Briscoe pleasure cars, has added such a car to their line.

The chassis, while practically identical with that of the pleasure cars, is strengthened where necessary. The motor is the same which has been given such wide publicity as the "half-million-dollar motor."

The new delivery car comes with a choice of two syles of bodies, a full panel body at $725 and a canopy top at $700. The Briscoe Motor Sales Co., 3141 Locust, the St. Louis distributor, finds great interest in the new delivery wagon, not only in St. Louis, but in the territory as well, where it is proving popular with farmers, for whose work it is admirably suited.

PATRIOTIC DECORATION.

Many of the show rooms along Motor Row have taken on a patriotic air with flags and buntings. One of the most attractive, especially at night, is that of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co., 3221 Locust street.

In each window is a huge Kelly-Springfield tire, 39x6, with two silk American flags crossed in the center. A large spotlight over each tire brightly illuminates it, leaving the rest of the window and shown room, behind it in darkness. The light shimmering on the waving silk flags makes a beautiful effect.

The Goodyear Business Triangle

THE whole strength of the Goodyear proposition lies in the simplicity and completeness of the business triangle by which it is symbolized.

In the attainment of full success in the tire business there are three important relationships: between the manufacturer and the dealer, between the manufacturer and the user, and between the dealer and the user.

These relationships form the three sides of an equilateral triangle, with the manufacturer and the dealer at the two bottom corners and the user at the peak.

Weakness on any side weakens the whole triangle—takes from the business profit of the manufacturer or dealer and lessens the user's satisfaction.

But there is no weakness in the Goodyear triangle.

The manufacturer has taken care to build into Goodyear Tires extraordinary stamina—potential satisfaction—and has taken care to distribute these to retailers on a basis of unvarying fairness, with no jobber to intervene and no special discounts to complicate and weaken the relationship. This supplies two sides of the triangle.

Then the Goodyear Service Station Dealer takes care to keep a full stock of the items in the Goodyear line and to sell Goodyear Tires to the user on a basis of painstaking service, guaranteeing the user the information and assistance which will make him realize on the full built-in goodness of these tires.

This supplies the third side of the triangle.

No side has a single weakness.

The result is that the Goodyear business triangle is perfect from every point of view.

All three parties—user, dealer and manufacturer—get all that they should get, and more.

ROACH OPPOSED FOR CHAIRMAN OF TAX COMMISSION

EXPECTED TO TAKE PLACE

Gov. Gardner Will Name New Body as Soon as His Decision Is Received.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON, CITY, April 14.—The signing by Gov. Gardner of the State tax commission law, enacted by the last Legislature, creating a commission of three members as an investigating arm of the State Board of Equalization, to equalize assessments in Missouri, and to seek out and place on the assessment records personal property which has escaped taxation, has revived discussion here as to the probable personnel of the commission.

The Governor on several occasions has announced his intention of naming Cornelius Roach, former Secretary of State, chairman of the commission at a salary of $4000 a year. Roach has not agreed to accept the position, but his friends here believe that he will take it. When the bill was under consideration in the Legislature an effort was made in the Senate to amend it to have only one commissioner, at a salary of $6000 a year. This was understood to be for the purpose of making a more desirable place for Roach.

Opposition to Appointments.

Opposition to Roach's appointment has developed, and was even noticeable when the bill creating the commission was under consideration. The opposition is based principally on Roach's record as a member of the State Board of Equalization for the eight years he was Secretary of State.

Under the Constitution the duty of equalizing assessments is placed with the State Board of Equalization, and the Tax Commission can only recommend to the board the result of its investigations.

The board, during the period Roach was a member, accomplished nothing toward equalization of assessments, although it was notorious that property in the counties of the State was assessed at from only 10 to 40 per cent of its actual value, while St. Louis property was assessed at approximately 70 per cent of its value. Roach's opponents insist they cannot reconcile his record on the board with the duties provided for a Tax Commissioner.

The defense offered by Roach and the other members of the board was that all the members had their duties as State officials and had no time to investigate assessments in the counties, and that they could not make radical changes without detailed information. They say that the Tax Commission bill provides the machinery for such investigations and that the board can act on its reports intelligently.

Judge's Rebuke to 1909 Board.

Roach, former Gov. Major and former Auditor Gordon, who were members of the board in 1909, were subjected to a rebuke by Judge Elmer B. Adams of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in an opinion, for their failure to carry out the provisions of the law.

Herbert S. Hadley, who then was Governor and a member of the board, offered a resolution to assess all property at actual value. James Cowgill, the State Treasurer, voted with him, but Roach, Major and Gordon voted against the resolution.

The matter came before Judge Adams on a writ of mandamus brought by holders of bonds of Macon County, where the Assessor refused to assess property at sufficient valuation to provide money to pay the bonds. The suit was directed against the members of the State Board of Equalization because of their refusal to assess the property at its real value.

Judge Adams in his opinion said:

"This brief of legislation clearly discloses that the policy of the State requires holdings to be assessed on the basis of real value in money. It is sufficient for our purpose to observe that it is a duty made by the law of the State.

"A majority of the board members, constituting a working quorum, refused to allow the board to do that duty and made it decline to do so.

Did Not Stand for State.

"In so acting, they did not stand for the State of Missouri and were not the State within the meaning of the Eleventh Amendment to the Constitution.

"A sovereign State must be willing that its laws shall be obeyed. Through its laws it commanded its servants. It commanded them to do something. Certainly these servants, by their act of disobedience, do not stand for the State. This suit, therefore, instead of being against the State, is against its servants, to make them do such a duty, which by taking office they agreed to do."

The Governor is expected to announce the appointments to the commission as soon as he receives a definite decision from Roach as to his acceptance. One member of the commission is to be a Republican.

CANADA offers 160 acres free to farm hands. Bonus of Western Canada land to men assisting in maintaining needed grain production. The demand for farm labor in Canada is great. As an inducement to secure the necessary help at once, Canada will give 160 acres of land free as a homestead and allow the time the farm laborer, who has filled on the land to apply as residence duties, the same as if he actually had lived on it. Another special concession is the reduction of one year in the time to complete duties. Two years instead of three as heretofore, but only to men working on the farms for at least six months in 1917. This appeal for farm help is in no way connected with enlistment for military service, but solely to increase agricultural output. A wonderful opportunity to secure a farm and draw good wages at the same time. Canadian Government will pay all fare over 1 cent per mile from St. Paul and Duluth to Canadian destinations. Information as to low railway rates may be had on application to C. J. Broughton, 112 W. Adams st., Chicago, Ill., Canadian Government Agent.

Old Tires Rebuilt Like New
Not Double-Treaded.
This new method of rebuilding tires must not be confused with the stitching or retreading system. We furnish a brand-new Miller non-skid top, which adds from 4 to 6 plies of fabric, making the tire almost puncture proof. This new method makes old tires look and wear like new, and at a great saving in tire expense. Bring or ship your old tires to us. Mail orders promptly attended to. We also do tire and tube vulcanizing. RECONSTRUCTED TIRE CO., 3444 Lindell. Phone, Lindell 856. (c)

SECURE THIS TRUCK AGENCY

The Pull-More Motor Truck Co. of Pittsburg, Pa., is about to place an agency in your territory. Applicants must be men with business standing and able financially to take care of a lucrative and rapidly growing business.

The Pull-More Motor Truck Co. is bringing on the market a motor truck that will practically sell itself with a single demonstration. America's leading automobile engineers predict "Pull-More" will revolutionize the truck industry.

The majority of business men will buy a Pull-More in preference to any other truck, because it embodies such selling features as FRONT DRIVE, which develops more power, reduces fuel consumption, eliminates skidding and friction on wheels, increases tire mileage. ACCESSIBILITY to all working parts, which are compactly assembled in a two-piece hinged crank case that opens up in 20 seconds. When truck buyers see this accessibility feature they invariably say "Greatest invention and improvement ever made in a motor truck." In many cases a single showing of this feature alone will produce an immediate sale. TWO UNITS, with a three-point suspension on each unit, eliminates vibration, shocks and strains, thus insuring long life to the truck, and secures a FLEXIBILITY never before thought possible.

The Pull-More Co. has just completed a mammoth daylight factory, which is one of the finest and largest individual truck plants in the country. The company is financed by a number of the most prominent steel men of Pittsburg.

If you are interested, write today, or wire or come.

Bell, Bomont 1241; Kinloch, Central 7615. (c83)

WE HAVE IN MIND A MAN IN VERY MODERATE CIRCUMSTANCES WHO DRIVES A GOOD USED CAR.

This is the way he does it. There are two girls and one boy who are working. The children wanted a car and were willing to forego some useless trifles to help buy one. Now, this man thought a lot of his wife, who was economical and industrious. Somehow he could never get much ahead. Finally they had a family meeting, with the result that he put in $100, the good wife put in $75 she had saved up and the children each agreed to put in $2 a week from their pay, or $6 a week for all three of them. This, together with what father and mother put in each month enabled them to not only make the first payment on a car, but to make the remaining payments without scrimping. And the strangest part about it is that they thought they could not afford to buy or run a car. This family, instead of sitting around home Sundays, after this are planning to spend the day in the country, along the Meramec or up along the Mississippi. Some way or other, the boys don't want to hang around the corner poolroom like they formerly did. There is nothing like a car to get the family on good terms with one another.

We have several good cars that we'll gladly sell on very easy terms to any responsible person—to you. There are no set terms—we try to make them to suit your convenience. Tell us what you can do; if reasonable, we'll meet your wishes.

Open all day Sunday and every evening until 9 o'clock.

Come in, talk it over with Mr. Smith or Mr. Ward.

BUY an "Efficiency Bungalow"

At Glen Echo Park

Second Subdivision.

Four Now Under Way

We have a new plan to help the thrifty man to own his home. You can have just the kind of home you want, and pay for it as easy as paying rent. In a few years you own the home instead of a bunch of worthless rent receipts.

These homes are thoroughly modern and fully equipped.

Electric light, water, gas and hot-water heating plant, Murphy "in-a-dor" beds and many other devices to make woman's work easier have been installed.

To go to Glen Echo Park, Second Subdivision, take the Kirkwood-Ferguson car at Wellston, going west, get off at Lucas and Hunt road, walk three blocks south. Or take the St. Peter's car at Wellston direct to the property. Fare five cents from Wellston. Glen Echo Park is five minutes' ride beyond Wellston.

Better find out about this at once.

A Little About a Lot

On Waterman

Don't you wish you could buy a lot on Waterman Avenue between Skinker and Westgate for $100 a foot? Even if you didn't want it for yourself you could sell it quick for a handsome profit. And yet

Don't you know that you could have had your pick of lots on Waterman between these cross streets, ten years ago, for less than half of what they sell for today? And that being the case

Don't you think that it's worth investigating when we tell you that history is repeating itself (with a somewhat speedier pace) on Waterman just West of Westgate.

"What Will American Inventors Do?"

HOW GENIUS OF NATION ROSE IN CRISES OF OTHER DAYS

Mines, submarines, torpedoes, machine guns, armored battleships, in fact, almost everything used by the fighting forces of Europe, is of American origin—Allies expect American brains to revolutionize conduct of the great war.

IT'S American brains, not American brawn or American dollars, that the allies in Europe are counting on to bring the great war to a victorious end.

"We wonder what Edison is doing?" was the first comment that came out of Europe when President Wilson had asked Congress to cast the lot of the United States with the entente.

Edison in Europe typifies American inventive genius. France and England know that there are a hundred Edisons in the United States and that any one of them is likely to draw from his brain an artifice that will greatly accelerate the coming of peace.

America's reputation for ingenuity in war devices comes to it honestly. Consider for a moment, the submarine, the armored battleship, the mine, the machine gun, the revolver, the telephone, the telegraph, the caterpillar traction engine, anesthesia—all are American inventions.

Germany has been credited with great ingenuity, but Germany is not inventive—it is an improver on the devices of others. Probably the two greatest agencies in the offensive of the the Teutons are submarines and machine guns—American ideas developed and improved by the Germans. Even the wonderful commissary of the German army is based on the commissary of an American Wild West show.

The American Civil War saw the introduction into practical use of the armored warship, mine, submarine, torpedo and Gatling gun. With the present knowledge of electricity and machinery, is it too much to expect that American inventors in this war will develop an idea that will startle the world and reform warfare? If you have doubts, read of these American accomplishments:

Battleships.

THE first steam man-of-war was the Demologos or Fulton, designed by Robert Fulton and launched in New York in 1814. She was built of oak and carried the heaviest guns of her day, the first real battleship of the world.

The first screw-propelled war steamer was the U. S. S. Princeton, built in 1842. The screw propeller permitted the engine to be placed below the water line and thus out of danger. The idea was seized upon by all nations with navies.

Along about 1850 Ericsson, a New Yorker, presented to the French Governernment a design for an armored turret vessel. Little use was made of it at the time, but 10 years later, when the Civil War broke out, Ericsson had the opportunity to show the worth of his iron-coated craft. The battle between the Monitor and the Meramec in Hampton Roads was probably the greatest single event in the naval history of the world. With one blow it condemned to the junk heap the wooden ships that had been used for centuries. The single turret Monitor was followed by ships with two, three and four turrets.

The modern dreadnought is nothing but a strengthened Monitor. Among the numerous ingenious inventions in connection with modern battleship construction many are to be attributed to American ingenuity. The present method of loading guns is the invention of one of our naval officers and the range finder, which makes accuracy of firing possible, was brought out by Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske.

Submarines, Torpedoes and Mines.

The submarine, probably the most conspicuous figure of the present great war, is altogether the product of American ingenuity. While European inventors had been planning undersea boats for many years, it was not until Robert Fulton took a hand in the work between 1796 and 1810 that any practical results were accomplished. His perfected craft was eighty feet long, had armor plating on the top and was actuated by a steam motor, whose silent operation gave the boat its name—The Mute. Fulton, however died before the trials of the submarine were completed. It was not until the American Civil War that an attempt was made to use the submarine in war. One of these craft sank the Federal gunboat Housatonic in Charleston harbor, with a spar torpedo, but sank itself with all on board. The Holland submarine, invented by J. P. Holland of Patterson, N. J., may be considered the parent of the submarines now in operation. A notable feature of the boat was a dynamite gun (also an American invention). It was the successful performance of the Holland submarine that led Great Britain to begin the construction of its undersea flotilla.

Then came the improved submarine of Simon Lake of Bridgeport, Conn. Although it was not as fast as the Holland, it had many valuable qualities and the United States Government authorized the construction of several of the boats. Soon afterwards Russia purchased some of them. The submarines now used by Germany with such disastrous effect are developments of the Fulton, Lake and Holland models.

Submarine mines and torpedoes were first used during the Civil War. The wonderful ingenuity of the Confederates in the use of self-acting and controlled mines was in a large measure responsible for the prolonging of the war. The first submarine mines were built by Robert Fulton, but no war use of them was made until 1862.

The initial experiments in torpedoes may also be traced to Robert Fulton, but it was not until the Civil War that they came into practical use. Robert Whitehead, an English engineer, and Capt. Howell of the American Navy are responsible for the automobile torpedo, now employed by all the navies of the world. Thus it can be seen that all phases of undersea fighting had their inception in America.

Aeroplanes, Hydroplanes, Balloons.

While balloons were known even in the Middle Ages, it was two residents of Philadelphia, D. Rittenhouse and F. Hopkinson, who first used gas for inflation. James Wilcox, a carpenter, made the first ascension in a hydrogen-gas-inflated balloon, and it is from this flight that modern ballooning dates. While the usefulness of balloons has been limited in war, it is employed largely in observation work. In the American Civil War balloons were used for the first time in connection with military movements. In 1861 McClellan had a balloon corps attached to his armies.

About the aeroplane little need be said. Throughout the civilized world the Wright brothers, Orville and Wilbur, of Dayton, O., are recognized as the inventors of the useful heavier-than-air machine. Probably no greater part in the war is being taken by any military branch than the flying corps. England, Germany and France have made improvements on the Wright patents, but the basic idea of this, probably the greatest war invention of modern times, is American. The hydroplane, of course, is an outgrowth of the Wright conception. It would be useless to dilate on American ingenuity in connection with aeroplanes. The details are known even to children.

Revolvers and Rifles.

The magazine rifle now carried by all the armies of the world is an American invention, dating from 1840. For three decades before that date the general arm in use was the breech-loader, also first produced in the United States. Rifled firearms existed in the Middle Ages, but were not seen in war until late in the seventeenth century, when they made their appearance to a limited extent on European battlefields. In 1811 an American named Hall produced a breech-loading rifle which was used during the war with England. For the next 50 years Europe experimented with many makes of rifles, but none of them gave general satisfaction and no two countries had the same type of arm.

In the meantime, in 1840, Colt brought out his repeating rifle. In 1860 it was followed with improved types by Henry and Spencer. In 1867 the Henry was improved and renamed the Winchester. Europe did not accept the repeating idea until 1877, when the Turks, who had been supplied with American rifles, showed the immense advantage of the United States arm over the single-firer used by the Russians. From that time on the magazine rifle has been the only one recognized throughout the world for military purposes.

The pistol with the revolving barrel was first perfected by an American, E. H. Collies, in 1818. After many years of experiments Samuel Colt of Hartford, Conn., patented the Colt revolver, which is the model for all revolvers in use by the armies of the world today. The hammerless pistol, the automatic, hair-trigger, safety and other devices are also developments attributed to American inventive genius.

Artillery and Machine Guns.

The Gatling gun invented by John Gatling of North Carolina, just before the Civil War, is the father of all the present-day machine guns, rapid-firers, etc. Originally it was a sort of revolving rifle, the 10 barrels of which were set around an axis and fired in turn when brought into position by the revolving mechanism. It was taken up by the British and French at once, and with slight improvements continued to be the rapid-fire gun in use up to the time of the Spanish-American War, when great improvements were made by Hotchkiss, Nordenfelt and Maxim. Notwithstanding these changes, there are still military authorities who consider the Gatling gun superior to its progeny.

American ingenuity has also played a great part in artillery improvements. The wiring of guns to enable them to resist high tension was invented by Dr. Woodbridge, an American, in 1850. The development of the disappearing rifle is also due in large measure to the ingenuity of Crozier, an officer in the United States Army, who conceived the idea of putting the recoil of the gun to practical use.

The torpedo shell fired by coast artillery howitzers is an American invention. It weighs about a thousand pounds and is intended to produce powerful explosions on decks of warships. It is in use in Germany, France and other countries engaged in the present war.

Communication and Transportation.

Among the great needs of fighting forces today are adequate means of communication and transportation. The telephone and telegraph, both indispensable in the conduct of campaigns, are altogether American inventions.

In the field of wireless, which is, strictly speaking, an Italian invention, American ingenuity has added many improvements of value in war. There is, for example, the invention of John Hays Hammond Jr., which makes it possible to explode torpedoes by wireless at a distance of several miles. William Dubelier, a New York electrician, has improved the Leyden jar used with wireless to such an extent that even the heavy concussions of naval fire are unable to silence the instruments.

Through this invention American battleships engaged in a fight can keep in constant communication with each other by wireless. An early opportunity may be given both of these young inventors to prove the value of their brain children.

In the field of communication it is but necessary to allude to the motor truck and the caterpillar tractor to show the great part that Americans have played in war invention along these lines. The motor truck today has succeeded all forms of transportation behind the battle line. The caterpillar tractor makes it possible to carry ammunition and provision to the firing line over the roughest roads.

The Care of the Wounded.

Undoubtedly the greatest contribution of American ingenuity to war is anesthesia. Think for a moment of the number of limbs that are amputated after a great battle and other excruciatingly painful operations that are performed. In the old days a man's leg was sawed off while he was fully conscious and the stump seared to prevent further flow of blood. Of course, thousands and thousands died of shock as a result. Through the use of anesthetics few men who suffer the amputation of an arm or leg die—at any rate few die from the shock.

While Sir Humphrey Davy as early as 1800 observed the anesthetic qualities of nitrous oxide (laughing gas), it was Dr. Horace Wells, a dentist of Hartford, Conn., who put the theory to practical use in 1844. He had himself rendered insensible by nitrous oxide while a tooth was being extracted. Another dentist, Dr. W. T. G. Morton of Boston, soon followed with its use in several cases. These achievement marked a new era in surgery.

American surgeons have been in the forefront with discoveries in sanitation, hygiene and care of the wounded that have saved thousands of lives. American dentistry has reached such a point of perfection that entire faces of soldiers have been practically remade.

Barbed wire, of which so great use is being made, is an American invention, and so is the intrenching tool employed by all the belligerants.

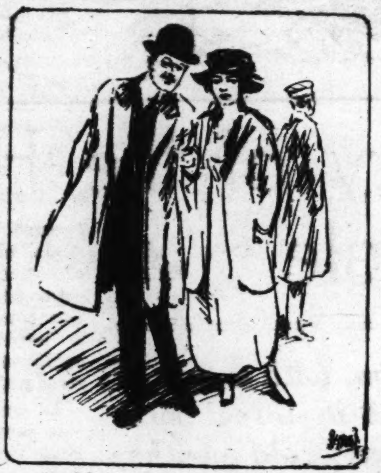
The wonderful Germany Commissary Department is based on observations made by German officers at an American Wild West show that was playing in Berlin. They were so greatly impressed with the mechanical precision by which the hundreds of circus followers were fed that the idea was at once carried into the army.

Uncensored Diary of American Woman Who Spent Five Months in Germany, Austria and Belgium

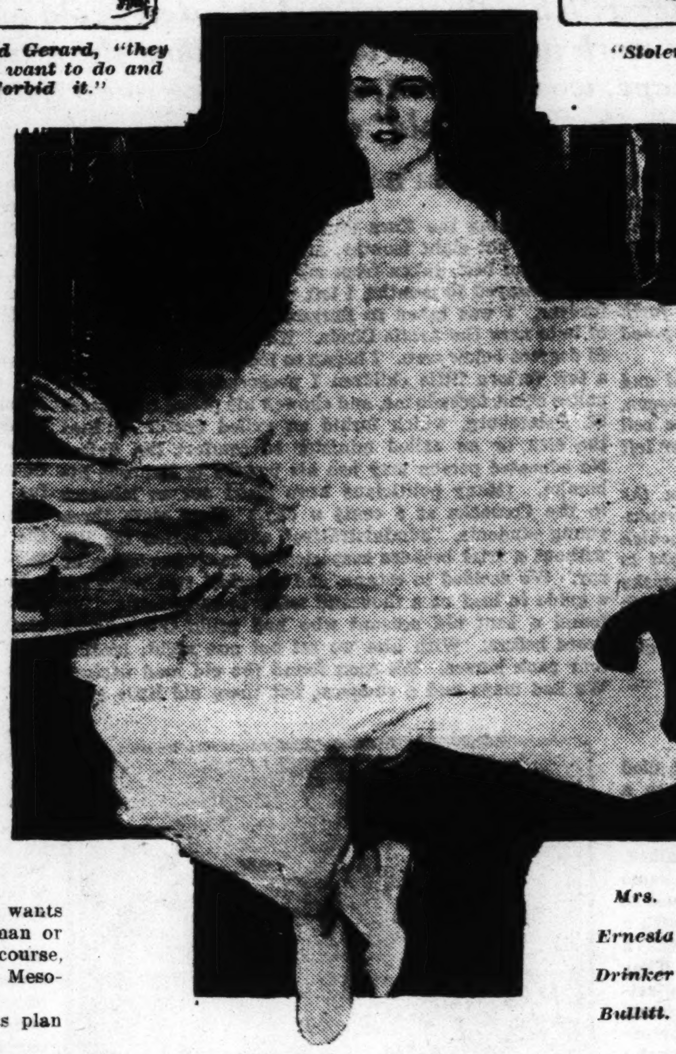
Amazingly frank statements made by Teutonic leaders on the war aims of Central Powers and possible terms of peace in conversations with wife of newspaperman, Mrs. Ernesta Drinker Bullitt, daughter of the president of Lehigh University.

INTERVIEWS of astounding frankness with the highest officials of the Central Powers are contained in a diary kept by Mrs. Ernesta Drinker Bullitt, who with her husband W. C. Bullitt, an American newspaper man, spent five months last year in Austria, Germany and Belgium—and the diary was permitted to cross the Atlantic UNCENSORED. Mrs. Bullitt, whose father, E. S. Drinker, is president of Lehigh University at Bethlehem, Pa., was enabled through letters of introduction and through the American embassies to meet many of the greatest figures of the war. Across luncheon tables and at receptions these men talked to Mrs. Bullitt with amazing freedom. Many of the entries in her diary are of great importance in view of the things that have happened in the past few months.

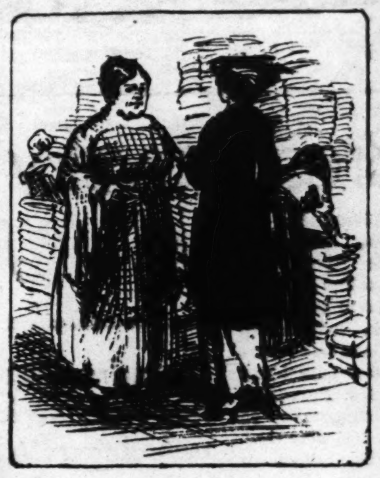
Among the men quoted by Mrs. Bullitt in her diary are Gen. Von Bissing, the Governor-General of Belgium, Zimmermann, now Foreign Secretary of Germany, Rathenau, the industrial dictator of the country, Count Apponyi, probably the greatest individual figure in the Dual Monarchy, and Helfferich, the financial wizard of the Teutonic entente. The diary, published by Doubleday-Page & Co. begins with May 14, 1916 and ends with an entry Sept. 28. Excerpts follow:



"In Germany," said Gerard, "they find out what you want to do and then they forbid it."



Mrs. Ernesta Drinker Bullitt.



"Stolen!" "No, booty."

BERLIN, June 3.— * * * I asked Baron Roeder what he did and he said he was Master of Ceremonies and official introducer at the court and several other things. His chief irritation against England is being cut off from his London tailor. He talked politics to us, saying:

"If the Kaiser should die and the conservative Crown Prince come into power and appoint a junker ministry it would mean the ruin of Germany and the pursuit of a reckless policy of annexation. The Kaiser and the greater part of intelligent Germany do not wish to keep Belgium or Northern France. They want only two or three miles in the Vosges hills, so that if war comes again our armies will not have to fight their way uphill. Alsace-Lorraine will not be returned. Germany wants autonomy for Finland and Poland, under a German or Austrian Prince. It would annex Courland. Of course, Germany wants her colonies back and a share of Mesopotamia."

"Why doesn't the Government make known its plan of evacuating Belgium?" we asked.

"I have urged it," he answered, "but the military party won't allow it. They say we must hold it as a hostage for our colonies."

JUNE 7.—Tea with an artist from Munich and others. Maj. Herewarth-Bittenfeld, former military attache in Washington, was talking to me about the Panama Canal.

"It's of no use to you strategically. You don't own the land up to it. Imagine our holding the Kiel Canal without Schleswig-Holstein! It is as if you were writing a book and began at the end. Watch out that someone does not write the beginning for you."

JUNE 20.—Billy and I went to see Zimmermann at the Foreign Office. He is a large blond man with a high forehead and cheeks much scarred by sword slashes.

"I have just been seeing some bankers," said he. "We are negotiating another loan for our Turkish friends. Those people are always in need of money."

Billy asked if the U-boat war was likely to be resumed.

"That depends on Wilson," answered Zimmermann; "if he pushes England into obeying international law we will not resume it."

Alfred Zimmermann.

Dr. Karl Helfferich.

Dr. Walter Rathenau.

Count Apponyi.

Gov.-Gen. Von Bissing.

I said that Wilson was not likely to do anything before the election and asked if Germany would be willing to wait that long.

Zimmermann shrugged his shoulders. "That is a long time," said he. "We have enough submarines now."

Speaking of a lasting peace, he said: "Nothing but a United States of Europe would amount to anything.

"We will have a United States of Europe some day to enable us to compete economically with America. That may come in eighty or a hundred years, but not in our life time. If you would really develop your natural resources we would be helpless."

JUNE 27.— * * * After this I went to Baroness von Bissing for tea. We sat down to tea and cherry tarts and I asked her when she was going next to Belgium. She can, of course, go whenever she likes, but not officially, because German officers are not allowed to take their wives to Belgium.

"It is very hard to be without my husband and eldest son," she said.

"Where is your boy?" I asked.

"He was taken prisoner by the French; wounded six times; and when he got well they put him in solitary confinement because the French thought we did not treat the son of Delcasse well."

Speaking of the invasion of Belgium the Baroness said: "It's a pleasant joke of the allies about our invading Belgium first, but I KNOW that the English and French were there before us. I have seen in Antwerp a great house which was so filled with English hospital supplies that we have not used them up yet."

JULY 1.—Dined with Baron von Mumm (of the Foreign Office) at the Automobile Club. He is a fraud and I hope soon to tell him so. There was a crowd in the Leipziger Platz when I got there and two men were standing at a window. I asked what it was and they said: "Nothing, nothing, only the usual people going home from work." It really was a Socialist demonstration against the imprisonment of Liebknecht for two years and a half. That shows what a Berlin riot is! I looked on and never knew it!

We have heard from Freiherr von B—— that there was really a recognizable one at Duesseldorf. The women went to the city hall and demanded potatoes. The Mayor tried to calm them with tales of peas and beans, but the crowd wanted potatoes and emphasized their demands by smashing all the windows.

Dined with the Boecklins. The Baron is just back from the front. He says Verdun will fall in two weeks. What a 14th of July for the French!

HAMBURG, July 6.—We went to Max Warburg's to dine. Mrs. Warburg was well dressed and wore, oh, wonder of wonder, silk stockings. Mr. Warburg is one of the biggest bankers in Germany. He said Americans were the most charming, uninformed people in the world.

"They know nothing of international affairs," he said. "We wonder how they get along with such little knowledge of the affairs of the world."

He said he told his brother, Paul Warburg that it's easy enough for him to be a big man in America, where there is so little competition, but let him try it in Germany!

I went to the Kriegshilfe, where old clothes are made over by women, and also military supplies. In the sandbag department I saw piles and piles of bags made out of some Canton flannel stuff.

"Why do you use this goods instead of sack cloth?" I asked.

"Oh," said the ladies, "we had great quantities of that brought in from Poland."

"Stolen!" I cried.

"No!" was the horrified chorus. "Booty!"

BERLIN, July 13.—We went to the War Office to arrange about going to Belgium. The first thing they showed me there was a shell made by the Bethlehem Steel Co.

"Don't blame me for that now," I said. "I come from Bethlehem, but my father is only a harmless college president and is not in the Steel Company.

We were introduced to an Excellenz Coates, who will guide us through Belgium.

JULY 17.—Billy saw Rathenau, the most brilliant of Germany's industrial kings.

"At the earliest in 1918," he said when asked when the war would end. "I think peace will be made on these terms: Germany will not keep an inch of French or Belgian soil. Talk of our keeping the Meuse forts or the crests of the Vosges is nonsense. We shall pay Belgium an indemnity say of 2,000,000,000 marks. We shall not call it an indemnity, but we shall tie it up in the purchase price that we will pay for a strip of the Belgian Congo to connect our colonies in East and West Africa. We shall not keep Courland. We shall not attempt to keep Poland or bring her into a Zollverein. The question of Servia is harder. Bulgaria will probably keep the part of Macedonia which she wants and Austria will take some Servian territory. Servia will be compensated by the acquisition of Montenegro and an outlet to the sea in Albania.

This is the peace that Germany is willing to make today. The great danger is that peace will probably be put off perhaps until 1920. This danger springs from the chance that Germany will recommence the U-boat war. That I consider absolutely unnecessary. A recommencement of the submarine war would bring in Rumania, the United States, Holland, Denmark and Norway and make us the most hated people on earth.

"The Emperor is on the fence. The naval party will be strong next spring. We are finishing from FOUR TO FIVE SUBMARINES A WEEK. I KNOW BECAUSE I MAKE HALF THE ENGINES."

BRUSSELS, Aug. 2.—Our last night in Brussels we dined with Gen. von Bissing. He is 72 years old and looks 60. His face is stern and not unkind. On finding that I spoke no German he changed to a careful, correct French, beginning with the not too original question:

"How do you like Belgium?"

I said I was greatly interested to hear that he had made plans for feeding the Belgians from their own soil if the Relief Commission had to leave.

"Yes," said Von Bissing, "I am convinced that it could be done. The people might not have enough to eat, but they would not starve."

BERLIN, Aug 15.—After dinner we went for a walk on the pier. I was with Ambassador Gerard, who kept making his dry, humorous remarks about everyone. Soon a guard turned us back.

"What's the matter?" I asked.

"You are in Germany," replied M. Gerard. "Don't forget that. They wait until they find out that people like to do a thing and then they forbid it."

He make the most glorious remarks to everyone. One day Zimmermann said:

"The United States couldn't go to war with us because we have 500,000 trained Germans in the United States."

The Ambassador replied: "You may have 500,000 trained Germans in the United States, but don't forget that we have 500,001 lamp posts."

VIENNA, Aug. 23.—We drove that afternoon. When we got into the cab the driver said it was forbidden to take a cab for sightseeing, but he was willing to take us, his not being a Prussian conscience. Our fondness for the Viennese increased at every block. Vienna seemed so gay after Berlin. * * * It is a common expression that the Austrians are pessimistic but gay and the Germans are optimistic but glum. * * *

BUDAPEST, Aug. 28.—One does not have to be here long to discover the bitterness against Austria. They say that the Hungarian troops are always put in the front trenches. We find that here as in Austria there is little love for Germany.

Speaking of Germany, he said: "One of the best things we have in this war is the realization that our great ally will stand by us to the end. And we two, Austria and

Mme. Breshkovsky's Own Story of the Horrors of Siberian Exile

Grandmother of the Russian revolution, with scores of her compatriots, conveyed 5000 miles in three horse vehicles with hardly a stop and in bitterly cold weather —Her work in the Siberian mines, how she attempted to escape, was captured, and kept for more than three years in the "black hole" of her prison :: :: ::

AFTER passing 44 of her 73 years in exile, Catherine Breshkovsky, the "Babushka," or "little grandmother," of the Russian revolution, is back in Petrograd and Moscow, where within the last few days demonstrations have been held in her honor. Almost coincident with the overthrow of the Romanoff dynasty a message was dispatched to her in far-off Siberia by the new Government inviting her to return to Russia.

Mme. Breshkovsky has given up virtually everything but her life for the cause of Russian freedom and her writings and sayings make it perfectly clear that she would willingly have given even that if called upon to do so. She is a daughter of a Russian nobleman and began to take note of the condition of Russia's poorer classes when a tiny girl. At 19 she associated herself with a group of Liberalists in Petrograd; she returned home and opened a school for peasants. When she was 26 she severed all ties, even those of a husband and child, and went forth among the peasants dressed in their attire, to spread her gospel.

She did not do this for long. She was arrested and after first being cast into an unspeakably vile dungeon, was removed to a prison cell in Petrograd. The cell was nine feet long by five feet wide, and she never left it for more than two years.

Mme. Breshkovsky and the other politicals in the prison formed a "club," the members of which communicated with one another by rapping on the pipes which ran through their cells. Finally they were brought to trial, and in the article which follows Mme. Breshkovsky tells of her trial, her terrible journey to Siberia with scores of other unfortunates, her attempt to escape in bitterly cold weather, her capture and punishment and her release and first return to Russia.

By Catherine Breshkovsky

IN 1878 we were tried. One hundred had died or gone insane. We 193 were packed into a little hall. Over half had belonged to our club, and I had a strange shock as I now looked at these clubmates with whom I had daily talked. White, thin and crippled, but still the same stout hearts. We nerved each other to refuse to be tried, for the trial we knew was to be a farce, with a special jury of only seven, of whom but one was a peasant, and with a Judge appointed by the Czar. They divided us into groups of ten or fifteen; the trials lasted half a year. When my turn came I protested against this farce; for this I was at once taken out and my prison term was lengthened to five years as hard labor convict in the mines. My term served, I was a Siberian exile for life.

Secretly at night, to avoid a demonstration, 10 of us were led out. Other tens followed on successive nights. In the street below were 11 "telegas"—heavy hooded vehicles with three horses each. Into one I was placed, a stout gendarme squeezed in on each side, to remain there two months. Just before my knees sat the driver. We went off at a gallop, and our 5000-mile journey began. The Great Siberian Road was feelingly described by Mr. Kennan. A succession of bumps of all sizes; our springless telegas jolted and bounced; my two big gendarmes lurched; our horses continually galloped, for they were changed every few hours; we bounced often a whole week without stopping over 10 minutes-day or night; we suffered that peculiar agony that comes from long lack of sleep. Our officer ordered the gendarmes never to leave us. At times we women held shawls between the gendarmes and our friends. Three wives who had come to share their husbands' exile were treated the same. We were all dressed in convict clothes. The men had also heavy chains on feet and wrists; their heads were partly shaved. Our officer kept the money given him by our anxious friends at home, and gave us each the Government allowance of 4 1-2 cents a day. For sleep, we were placed in the etapes (wayside prisons). Mr. Kennan has well described the cells—reeking, crawling, infected with scurvy, consumption and typhoid. They had log walls roughly covered with plaster, often red from vermin killed by tormented sleepers. The air was invariably noisome from the open excrement tubs; the long bench on which we slept had no bedclothes. Through the walls we heard the endless jangling of fetters, the moaning of women, the cries of sick babies. On the walls were a mass of inscriptions, names of friends who had gone before us, news of death and insanity, and shrewd bits of advice for outwitting the gendarmes. Some were freshly cut, but one worm-eaten love poem looked a century old. For along this Great Siberian Road over a million men, women and children have dragged, 250,000 since 1875, people from every social class; murderers and degenerates side by side with tender girls who were exiled through the jealous wife of some petty town official.

You keep asking me for scenes and stories. But you see we were thinking of our dream and did not notice so much the life outside. Did any die? Yes, one by typhoid. Our officer rushed the sufferer on at full gallop, until his delirious cries from the jolting vehicle so roused our protests that he was left in the Irkutsk Prison, where he died. Were there any children? Yes, one little wife had a baby 10 months old, but the rest of us did all we could to help her, and the child survived. Friends to say good-by? Ah, let me think. Yes—as we passed through Krasnoyarsk a student's old mother had come from a distance to see him. She caught but a glimpse, the gendarmes jerked him back into the vehicle and they galloped on. As I came by I saw her white, haggard old face. Then she fell by the roadside.

On reaching the Kara mines I found that the prison year was but eight months, and that my 40 months in prison had been taken from my 48-month sentence. So having stayed 10 months, I left Kara—as I then hoped—forever. I was taken to Barguzin, a bleak little group of huts near the Arctic Circle. We arrived in February, 45 degrees below zero. I began to look for work. Seeing a few forlorn little children I proposed a school. The police agent forbade me, and showed his police rules from St. Petersburg, which forbid an exiled doctor to heal the sick or an exiled minister to comfort the dying. No educated person may use his powers to improve his hamlet. (Many politicians have hired out as laborers to the Cossacks at 5 cents a day.) Here were three young students, "administrative" exiles, exiled for life without a trial because suspected by some gendarme or spy. We decided to escape, and searched two years for a guide to lead us a thousand miles to the Pacific. We found a bent old peasant who had made the journey years before. With him we set out one night, leading four pack horses. We soon found the old man useless. We had maps and a compass, but these did little good in the Taiga, that region of forest crags and steep ravines, where we walked now toward heaven and now to the region below. Often I watched my poor stupid beast go rolling and snorting down a ravine, hoping as he passed each tree that the next would stop his fall. Then for hours we would use all our arts and energies to drag and coax him up. It was beautiful weather by day but bitterly cold by night. We had hard-tack to eat, also pressed tea and a little tobacco. So we walked and climbed about 600 miles; in a straight line perhaps 200.

Mme. Catherine Breshkovsky.

Meanwhile the police had searched in vain. The Governor had telegraphed to St. Petersburg, and from there the command had come that we be found at any cost. The plan adopted was characteristic of the system. Fifty neighboring farmers were seized (in harvest time) and were exiled from farms and families until they brought us back. After weeks of search they found us in the Apple Mountains. Their leader shouted across a ravine that unless we gave in they must keep on our trail and escape was impossible. As we went back, around each of us rode 10 armed men.

The three students were sent in different directions up into the worst of the Arctic wilderness—Yakutsk. Here each slept in a little "yurt" (mud hut), with wild Mongolians and their cattle, sealed in winter, stifling, lined thick with rotting straw, rags and animal filth. If the exile walked out to breathe, the watchful natives dragged him back. To such yurts two young girl friends of mine, Rosa Frank and Vera Sheftel, students from the medical college at St. Petersburg, were sent each alone and spent years without a word from civilized people. In such places even men have gone insane. But I leave my story. Of the three students, one is dead, another is dying of consumption and the third escaped, returned to the old struggle in Russia, was caught and given eight years as a hard-labor convict, and having again escaped, is today renewing the struggle.

As punishment for my attempt I was sentenced to four years at hard labor in Kara and to 40 blows of the lash. Into my cell a physician came to see if I were strong enough to live through the agony. I saw at once that, afraid to flog a woman political without precedent, by this trick of declaring me too sick to be punished they wanted to establish the precedent of the sentence in order that others might be flogged in the future. I insisted that I was strong enough, and that the court had no right to record such a sentence unless they flogged me at once. The sentence was not carried out.

Back in Kara I rejoiced to meet 17 women politicals, with whom I lived in four low cells. Here we had books and writing materials and were quite comfortable, discussing the future struggle for Russia's freedom.

A few weeks later eight of the men politicals escaped in pairs, leaving dummies in their places. As the guards never took more than a hasty look into that noisome cell, they did not discover the ruse for weeks. Then mounted Cossacks rode out. The man hunt spread. Some of the fugitives struggled through jungles, over mountains and through swamps a thousand miles to Vladivostok, saw the longed-for American vessels, and there on the docks were recaptured. All were brought back to Kara.

For this we were all punished. One morning the Cossack guards entered our cells, seized us, tore off our clothes and dressed us in convict suits alive with vermin. That scene cannot be described. One of us attempted suicide. Taken to an old prison, we were thrown into the "black holes"—foul little stalls off a low grimy hall which contained two big stoves and two little windows. Each of us had a stall 6 feet by 5. On winter nights the stall doors were left open for heat, but in summer each was locked at night in her own black hole. For three months we did not use our bunks but fought with candles and pails of scalding water, until at last the vermin were all killed. We had been put on the "black hole diet" of black bread and water. For three years we never breathed the outside air. We struggled constantly against the outrages inflicted on us. After one outrage we lay like a row of dead women for nine days without touching food, until certain promises were finally exacted from the Warden. This "hunger strike" was used repeatedly. To thwart it we were often bound hand and foot while Cossacks tried to force food down our throats.

Kara grew worse after I left. To hint at what happened I tell briefly the story of my dear friend Maria, a woman of broad education and deep refinement. Shortly after my going, Maria saw Mme. Sigida strike an official who had repeatedly insulted the women. Two days later she watched Sigida die, moaning and bleeding from the lash; that night she saw three women commit suicide as a protest to the world; she knew that 20 men attempted suicide on the night following, and she determined to double the protest by assassinating the Governor of Trans-Baikal, who had ordered Sigida's flogging. At this time Maria was pregnant. Her prison term over, she left her husband and walked hundreds of miles to the Governor's house and shot him. She spent three months in a cold, dirty "secret cell," not long enough to lie down in or high enough to stand up in, wearing the cast-off suit of a convict, sleeping on the bare floor and tormented by vermin, she was then sentenced to be hanged. She hesitated now whether to save the life of her unborn child. She knew that if she revealed her condition her sentence would be changed to imprisonment. She decided to keep silent and sacrifice her child, that when the execution was over and her condition was discovered, the effect on Russia might be still greater. Her condition, however, became apparent, and she was started off to the Irkutsk Prison. It was midwinter, 40 below zero. She walked. She was given no overcoat and no boots, until some common criminals in the column gave her theirs. Her child was born dead in prison and soon after she, too, died.

Meanwhile I had been taken to Selenzgiensk, a little Buriat hamlet on the frontier of China, where Mr. Kennan met me.

Kennan speaks of her in these words: "Her face bore traces of much suffering, and her thick, dark, wavy hair, cut short in prison at the mines, was streaked here and there with gray. But not hardship nor exile, nor penal servitude had been able to break her brave, finely tempered spirit, or to shake her convictions of honor or duty. * * * There was not another educated woman within a hundred miles; she was separated for life from her family and friends. and she had, it seemed to me, nothing to look forward to except a few years more or less of hardship and privation, and at last burial in a lonely graveyard beside the Selenga River. * * * The unshaken courage with which this unfortunate woman contemplated her dreary future, and the faith she manifested in the ultimate triumph of liberty in her native country were as touching as they were heroic. Almost the last words she said to me were: "Mr. Kennan, we may die in exile and our children may died in exile, and our children's children may die in exile, but something must come of it at last!"

The seven years that followed, she continued, were the hardest of the 23, for I spoke to but a few politicals who stopped there several weeks. In winter—from 20 to 50 below zero—I used to put my chair up on the brick stove and sit with my head close to the thatch. (Hence

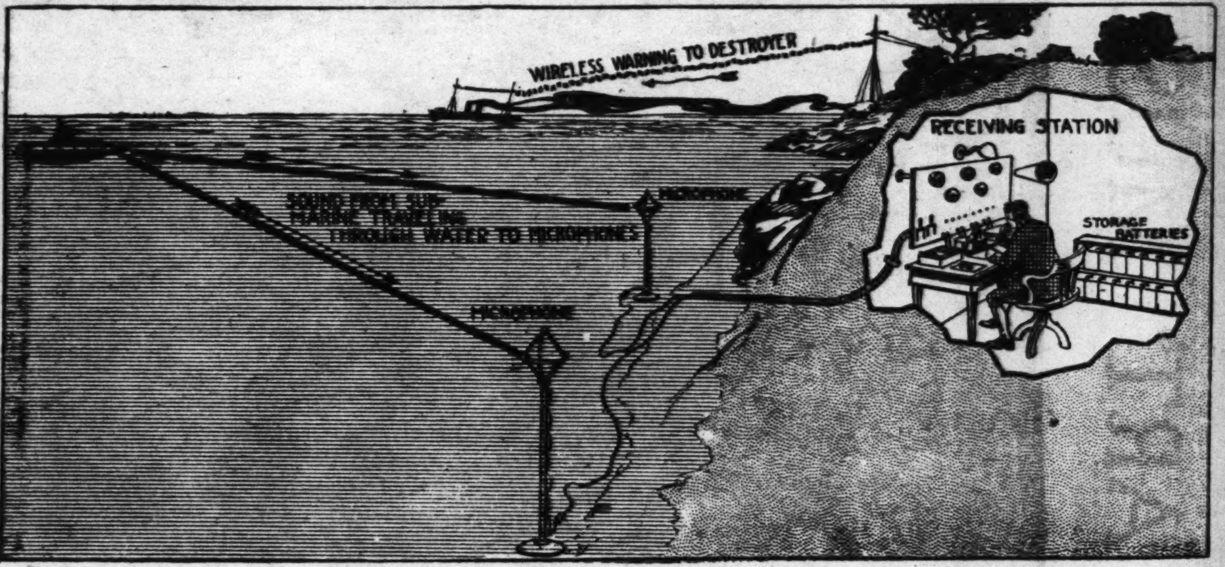
American Youth Who Listened to the Song of the U-Boat and Caused 48 to be Sunk

William Dubelier invented microphone with radius of 75 miles used successfully by French—Now making wireless machines for American navy that cannot be stricken dumb by the concussions of battle—Works in little New York shop on East Side where he was reared :: ::



WIRELESS WARNING TO DESTROYER
RECEIVING STATION
STORAGE BATTERIES
MICROPHONE
MICROPHONE

"Any time a submarine came within 75 miles her whine was picked up by two microphones placed three miles apart. By triangulating the exact points at which the sounds were clearest we had the spot she was then passing. The same observation 10 minutes later and we could tell her course and speed. Then we'd wireless the nearest destroyer which would lay a course and wait for the submarine to come up." In the above drawing the figures have been crowded together in order to visualize the entire scene. As a matter of fact, the distance from the microphones to the submarine might be 75 miles.

THIS is the story of a little man who listened to the song of the submarine as it whined its way through the waters on errands of destruction and caused 48 of those ruthless destroyers to be sent to the bottom of the sea. He is scarcely known to fame, though his achievements give him high rank among the world's inventors.

His name is William Dubelier and he has a little shop at 434 Canal street, New York City. He is but a trifle more than five feet tall, 28 years old, with large brown eyes, olive complexion and a maze of thick black curls scattered over a round head. He talks modestly and laughs easily.

The Patent Office at Washington has credited him with 100 inventions, most of which have to do with wireless and telephone apparatus. First, however, let us consider his submarine "listener," a microphone with a radius of 75 miles that might have ended the submarine menace forever but for an unforeseen circumstance.

"I wish," said Dubelier, with a laugh, "you could have seen us catching German submarines from Cherbourg. So easy. The Frenchmen had the idea, but they had not carried it quite far enough. I happened to have developed a microphone to a higher degree of sensitiveness than any of the others. I took it over. With Prof. Tissot of the University of Paris I placed it under water at a fortified place on the coast.

Improved mica Leyden jar unaffected by concussion.

His own machine had caught the sounds of passing submarines some miles away; but these were mixed with all sorts of other sounds that travel under water, so they were too confused to follow. My microphone could be tuned up to a far higher pitch, so as to register the keen whine of the submarine sneaking under water for her prey—and to register nothing else.

"You know she moves, when submerged, by electric power; hence the whine. You hear the same thing any time you pass an electric motor. The slots across the armature of the motor accumulate tiny bubbles of air as the motor spins around. These bubbles are shot off as drops of water would be shot off a whirling wheel. They really patter along in a series of staccato explosions, but the high speed runs them all together so that the sounds are blended into a whine.

"Now you see how easy it was. Any time a submarine came within 75 miles her characteristic whine was picked up by two microphones three miles apart. By triangulating the exact points at which the sounds were clearest we had the spot she was then passing. The same observation five minutes later and we could tell just what course she was running on and her rate of speed. Nothing could be easier or surer. Then we'd wireless to the nearest destroyer: 'Submarine in Square No. 567'—they have the sea all plotted in squares—'going S. S. W., nine miles an hour.' That was all. The destroyer would lay a course, find her, loaf along and wait for her to come up. A couple of shells would do the rest."

Dubelier shook his curly head sadly, as if the memory of hope deferred was wearying him. He had hoped for a perfect score.

"Oh, the Germans found out after awhile," he resumed. "Do you remember that they stopped submarining for three months after the sinking of the Lusitania? And folks thought it was because of the protest our Government made? We had another opinion. Our people had picked up 48 submarines with our little microphone that could hear them singing on their way to do murder, and then they called the rest of their assassin flotilla home out of danger.

"And then? Well, there was a man with us who had been an assistant of Prof. Tissot for 18 years. He had a good French name, too. No one suspected him. He heard us discuss everything at Cherbourg. After three months he disappeared. And when the German submarines began to come out soon after that they no longer whined. We could not hear a ghost of a sound.

"You see, when you turn your slots diagonally across the face of the revolving armature of the motor, the air bubbles flow easily from the end of one slot into the beginning of the next. Therefore there is no pop; therefore no whine. The singing submarine becomes as silent as a moth."

"Have you any device now for detecting a submarine under water?" he was asked.

"I can say nothing," replied Dubilier. Somehow he did not look distressed. Nor can this page say anything further.

At present Dubelier is busy with a machine that takes the place of the old-fashioned Leyden jar as a condenser for the wireless and makes it impossible for the concussion of battle to put it out of business. Said Dubelier:

"We're making them as fast as we can for the Navy Department; yes, OUR Navy Department, of course. They'll never strike one of our ships dumb, as they did the two or three British fighting ships that were lost with all hands in the battle of Jutland because they could not call for help."

The Dubelier invention will make it possible for American battleships to talk by wireless during a battle, no matter how heavy the gun fire is. It has been the experience in battle that the air concussions have rendered wireless almost useless and heavy smoke has made ordinary signaling difficult.

Dubelier was born in Vienna, but was brought to America when only 1 year old and brought up on the east side. He thus described his early career:

"I call myself 45 years old because for the last 16 years I've worked double shifts. Began with school from 9 to 3; then New York Telephone Co. from 8 to 12 at night. Then I got a job with the Western Electric. I was a sweeper at $6 a week till I told the boss that if he'd get me a Wheatstone bridge I'd test instruments he was paying two boys to lug over to another shop and back afterward. After that I did the testing. The boss raised me to $8 a week, and the other boys ran me off the place because they'd been there a long time and got no raise. I got another job, and went on studying electricity at Cooper Union."

Dubelier made his first bid for fame in Seattle seven years ago when he talked with Tacoma, 27 miles away, by a wireless telephone of his own invention. Three hundred telephones receive at one time on the tuning apparatus he has contrived. He organized a $500,000 company to operate it in Seattle and a bigger one in Russia.

"But please don't call me an inventor," he begged. "I'm an engineer and glad of it. But an inventor—pshaw! It's like the barber and the chiropodist—always a professor."

"How do you keep the wireless of the warship from being struck dumb?" he was asked.

"Oh, that's perfectly simple when you get to it," he replied. "You see, the ordinary wireless apparatus has a sending outfit of 16 delicate Leyden jars. The electric current collects and adheres to the tinfoil in them, and as long as the jars stand up the sending goes on. But if only one glass jar cracks—good-night! Your warship is all alone. My scheme is easy—just use layers of mica, placed inside of this frame of aluminum. One of these machines does the work of four Leyden jars, and lasts for years. We're making them now for our Navy Department. No one else can have them. Spies! Let them spy. Anybody is welcome to take one of these jars apart, and he may look as far as he likes, and he'll never discover how to make one like it."

"How far can we talk by wireless?"

"I won't try to answer that," he said simply. "You see, I haven't worked much for distance. It would sound extravagant to say what I think. But I've got my short-distance wireless in good shape—weighs less than half what other wireless telephones weigh. Great stuff for aeroplanes directing artillery fire, works clear as a bell.

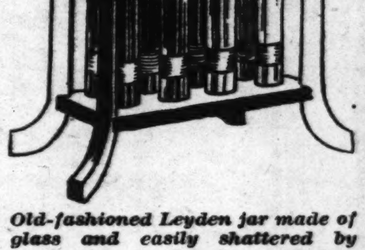
"Artillery smashing trenches is the whole business of modern warfare on land. You have your big guns at least five miles back, so as to send up a plunging fire that will dive into the trenches and pulverize them. Your aviator watches every shot and directs the next by wireless. The distance between trenches is not more than 200 yards; so you have to be very accurate with your curtain of fire that goes before a charge, or you'll finish your own men. Our small, light, wireless telephone will give us a big advantage in field operations."

Dubelier thinks that there are several German submarines off the American coast at the present time. He believes that there is an oil and supply base for the U-boats somewhere near the three-mile limit. Says he:

"It was well known that they had supplies of oil and other stuff hidden under water off the coast of Great Britain. I've heard the English talk about them—waiting at the rat-hole. They'd hide near by, well hidden, and when a German submarine came up and made fast and was busy pumping in a supply of oil they'd simply jump out and get her.



Old-fashioned Leyden jar made of glass and easily shattered by concussion, rendering wireless useless in battle.

"The method of hiding a supply depot is very easy. They have a big tank, say as big as this room, and build another tank around it with an air space between the two walls of steel. The inner tank is full of oil. It is swung down into the sea from a harmless tramp steamer in some lonely bay just before dawn. When it has been towed to its anchorage, water is let in and the tank sinks. It is marked with an innocent-looking buoy.

"The German submarine arrives; peeps around with her periscope. If the coast is clear, she goes in, picks up a pipe marked by the buoy, pumps out water and lets in air between the inner and outer tanks. The depot rises to the surface, he helps himself to what he wants, lets in water and down sinks the tank.

"You remember the U-53 was in Newport harbor only three hours when her commander paid his respects to our navy, then went out and sank half a dozen ships off Nantucket. I am convinced that she replenished her oil supply before she showed herself to our people; for it is certain that no vessel of her type could accomplish the distance of 3000 miles across the Atlantic and 3000 miles home without refilling her oil tank.

"Then you expect that submarines will attack shipping on our coast?"

"Surely."

"And we will"—

"Oh, I guess we'll do all right," said the youth placidly.

The Famous Parrot Story of the Austrian Court.

A RECENT volume on Austrian court intrigue relates the famous "parrot story" of the Austrian court. It has to do with the late Archduke Francis Ferdinand, who was killed at Serajevo. For a long time it went the rounds of the Vienna cafes. Here's the story:

"Neither Archduke Francis Ferdinand nor his morganatic wife had the wisdom to hide the impatience with which they awaited the aged Emperor's death. One day a bird of very rare plumage, evidently the property of some very aristocratic personage, was found straying in the public gardens of Vienna. A gardener promptly caught it and took it round to the police. Shortly afterward the Sergeant in charge was startled to hear the parrot begin to discourse with great fluency. 'That old cat Valerie' was its delicate way of referring to the Emperor's favorite daughter. When the parrot broke into a steady stream of talk, with a kind of refrain, 'He'll live to be a hundred, Sofie,' in an exact imitation of the gruff tones of the heir to the throne, who was evidently referring to the Emperor, the Sergeant picked up a cloth, threw it over this utterer of high treason and carried the loquacious bird to the Chief of Police, who returned it to the Archduke and his wife."

$90,000 TAPESTRY ON VIEW IN ST. LOUIS ART MUSEUM

Sixteenth Century Flemish Weave, Depicting "The Knight's Repentance," is nearly 23 feet long and once was owned by J. Pierpont Morgan :-:

THE most notable exhibit in the St. Louis Art Museum in recent weeks is a tapestry 13 feet 7 inches high by 22 feet 9 inches wide, woven in Flanders in the beginning of the sixteenth century and loaned to the museum by P. W. French & Company of New York. It is a magnificent creation in red and blue, red predominating, and delineates a love story entitled "The Knight's Repentance." It was formerly in the collection of J. Pierpont Morgan and was secured by its present owners at the sale of Mr. Morgan's art treasures after his death.

St. Louis could acquire this tapestry for approximately $90,000, but the price is beyond the means of the Museum, since the annual appropriation for the maintenance of the institution and the purchase of art objects is only a little more than $100,000. The tapestry has elicited such keen admiration from those who have viewed it in the short time it has been on exhibition that museum officials are hopeful that some public-spirited citizens will add it to the Museum as a gift.

The commanding presence in the center panel of the tapestry of both Venus and Cupid indicates to a certainty that love is the theme of the pictured story. Venus, winged and with a huge feathered arrow in her left hand, sits on an inlaid Venetian chair in a tiny balcony far above all the courtiers, as if presiding at one of the courts of love so popular in this period. Cupid, winged and blindfolded, flies into the scene from the left, holding a bow from which an arrow has just been shot.

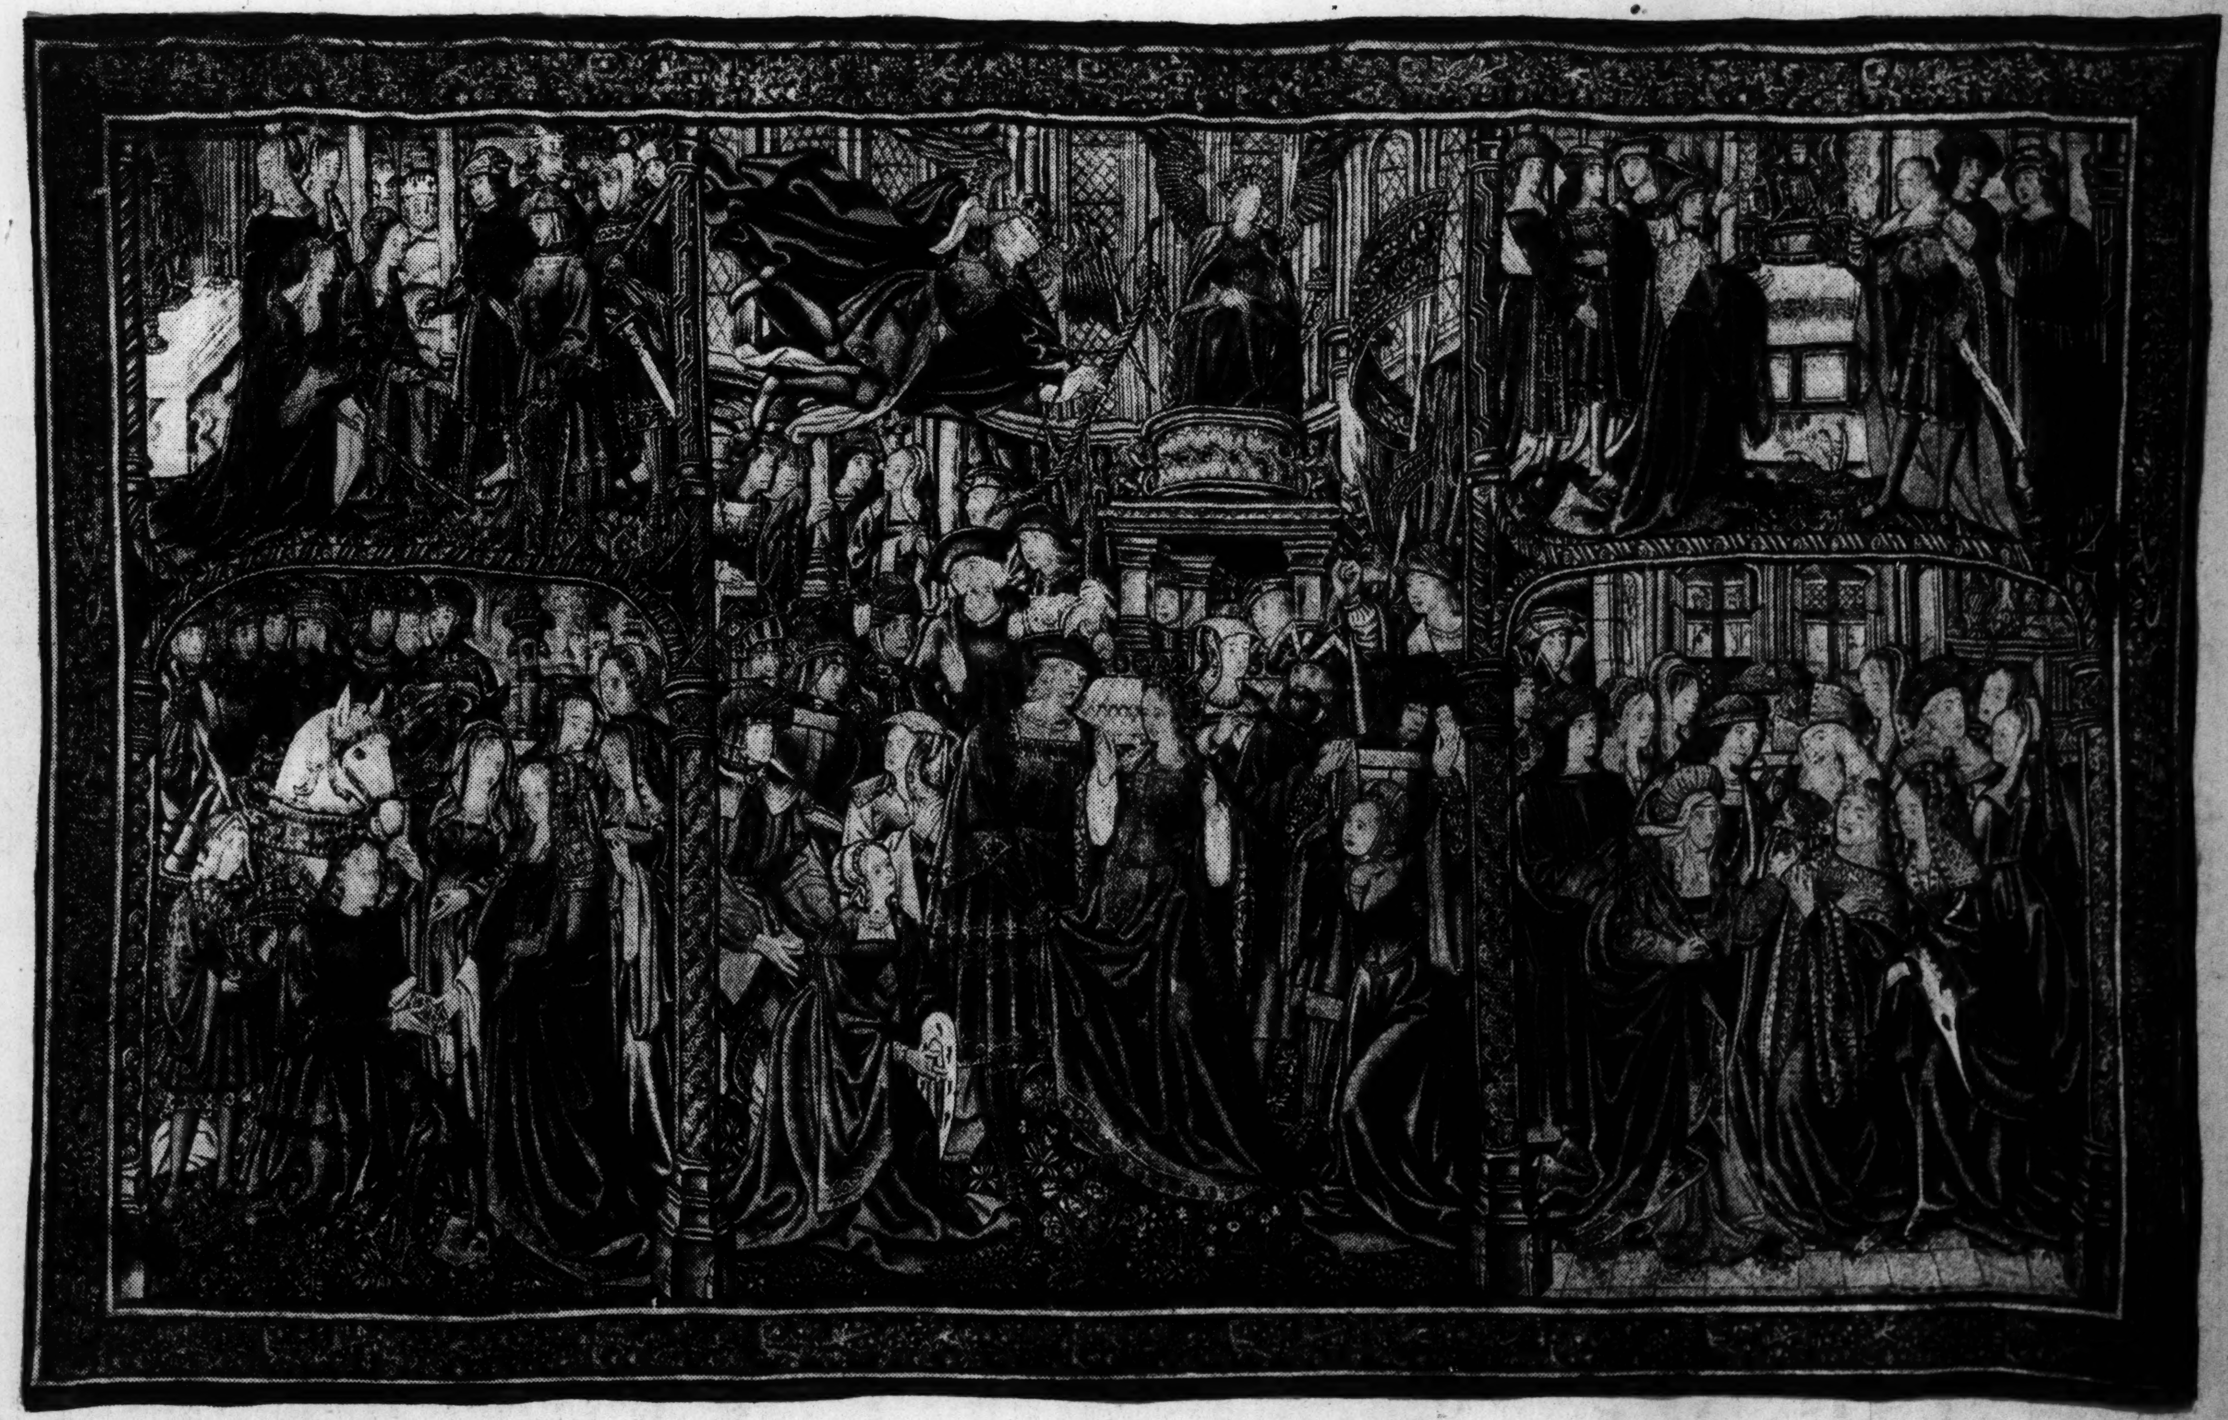
A striking feature of the work is its distance effects, the most difficult of all to represent in a tapestry. All five scenes reveal the work of a master designer skillful in obtaining line contrasts and in creating pictures peculiarly suited to expression on the loom. The hatchings in the long, flowing robes are wonderfully employed to produce deep, luxurious folds.

The five scenes depicted are: "Investiture With Knighthood," "Delivery of the Letter," "The Court of Love," "Confession of Guilt" and "Repentance." Scene I shows the hero has achieved the honor of knighthood, and after all-night vigil before the altar, on the left, received sword and necklace from the two ladies who kneel before him. This is evidently the final stage of a ceremony that was, in the sixteenth century, one of the most magnificent in a gentleman's life.

Scene II—Kneeling, the young knight delivers a half-unrolled letter to a richly gowned lady, who receives it with evident pleasure. Her four fair attendants watch the proceeding with keen interest. Behind them is a fountain, and behind the knight stands a page, holding the helmet which has been removed out of courtesy to the lady. In the background wait the knight's retinue.

Scene III—The Court of Love. Evidently the knight's suit was successful, and he is now married to the lady of his choice. But trouble has arisen through the claim upon his affections preferred by another lady, who kneels in the foreground, encouraged by the young man behind, who holds his arms as if to assist or embrace her. On the right stands the parents of the injured lady, in attitude of protest. In the background are knights, courtiers and friends. The knight grasps the lady's gown as if in mute appeal for forgiveness.

Scene IV—Confession of Guilt. Before the same altar where he received the honor and sword of knighthood, stands the hero of our story, left hand on sword and right raised in asseveration of the truth of his confession. To mark the humility of his confession, his hat lies on the floor between himself and the Bishop to whom he confesses. On the right and on the left are other personages to witness his declaration.



Scene V—Repentance. Here the knight, in submissive posture, but supported and comforted by his faithful wife, is about to drain the cup of repentance extended to him by a figure symbolic of justice, but carrying whip instead of sword.

St. Louis Art Museum's collection of tapestries is much inferior to those of cities with which St. Louis ranks, and officials of the Art Museum Board believe the collection should be enriched with a notable work such as this.

The Sleepmaker

Newest Craig Kennedy Story

By Arthur B. Reeve.

"PERHAPS racehorses may be a little out of your line, Mr. Kennedy, but I think you will find the case sufficiently interesting to warrant you taking it up."

Our visitor was a young man, one of the most carefully groomed and correctly dressed I have ever met. His card told us that we were honored by a visit from Montague Broadhurst, a noted society whip, who had lavished many thousands of dollars on his racing stable out on Long Island.

"You see," he went on hurriedly, " a good many strange things have happened to my horses lately. They have been losing consistently. Take my favorite, Lady Lee, for instance."

"Do you think they have been doped?" asked Kennedy.

"I don't know," replied the young millionaire. "I've had the best veterinary in the country to look my stable over, and even he can't seem to find a thing that's wrong."

"Perhaps a visit out there might show us something," cut in Kennedy, as though he were rather favorably impressed by the novelty of the case.

Broadhurst's face brightened.

"Then you will take it up—you are interested?" he queried, adding: My car is outside."

"I'm interested in anything that promises a new experience," returned Craig, "and I think this affair may be of that sort."

Broadhurst's stable was out on central Long Island, not far from the pretty and fashionable town of Northbury, through which we passed.

As we swung out again into the country, we could see ahead of us some stable boys working out several fine thoroughbreds on Broadhurst's private track, while a group of grooms and rubbers watched them.

Before a desk sat Murchie. He rose quickly at the sight of Broadhurst.

"Murchie, I would like to have you meet my friends, Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Jameson," introduced Broadhurst. "They are very much interested in horses, and I want you to show them about the place and let them see everything."

We chatted a moment, and then went out to look at the horses.

Murchie looked up at him quickly.

"Until the last few races, I thought so," he replied, stopping before the stall of the famous racer.

Lady Lee was a splendid 3-year-old bay, a quivering, sensitive, high-strung animal.

"A horse, you know," Murchie said reflectively, "is just as ambitious to win a race as you are to win success, but must have hard training. I keep horses in training eight or nine months out of the year. I get them into shape in the early spring and am very careful what they eat. If they get a vacation, they may eat green foods, carrots and grass in the open field; but when we prepare them for the ring or a race, they must have grain, bran and soft foods. They must have careful grooming to put the coats in first-class condition, must be kept exquisitely clean, with the best ventilation."

"How about exercise?" asked Kennedy.

"Well," replied Murchie, "I work out horses according to age, with the distance for fast work gradually increased."

We returned to the office. Murchie walked ahead with Broadhurst. As we reached the door Broadhurst turned to us.

"I hope you will pardon me," he said, "but there is some business up at the house that I must attend to."

"Oh, Mr. Broadhurst," interjected Murchie, "before you go back to town I want to talk over with you some of the changes that ought to be made about the boys here, as well as their food and quarters."

"All right," returned Broadhurst; "jump into the car and ride with me. We can talk on the way, and you can come right back. I'll pick you gentlemen up later."

Kennedy nodded, quick to perceive the cue that Broadhurst had given him to watch the stables without Murchie watching us.

We sat down in the office, and I looked about at the superb fittings.

"Do you think it is possible for an owner to make a financial success of racing without betting?" I asked Kennedy.

"Possible but highly improbable," returned Craig. "I believe they consider that they have an excellent year whenever they clear expenses. I don't know about Broadhurst, but I believe that a good many owners don't bet on their horses. They have seen the glaring crookedness of the thing, especially if they have happened to be officers of jockey clubs or stewards of various race meets. Personally, I should think a man of Broadhurst's stamp would not permit himself to be made a victim of the leeches of the turf—although he may wager a bit, just to give zest to the race. American racing has often been called a purely gambling affair, and I think, before we get through, that we shall see the reason for much of the public opposition to it."

Just then a small man entered the office, and seeing us, asked for Mr. Murchie. His face was pinched and thin. He wore the latest cut of clothes, but was so very slight that his garments hung loosely on him. One could well imagine that he had tried all sorts of schemes to keep himself down toward the hundred-and-ten-or-twelve-pound mark. He was the very type of jockey. He introduced himself to us as Danny McGee, and I recognized at once the famous $25,000-a-year rider who had so often successfully defended the Broadhurst colors.

"Mr. Murchie has gone up to the house," replied Kennedy to his inquiry.

"Friends of his?" he asked in a confidential tone.

"Of. Mr. Broadhurst's," Kennedy said quietly.

There was a noticeable change in McGee's manner.

"Just out here to look the stable over," went on Kennedy; "a wonderful place."

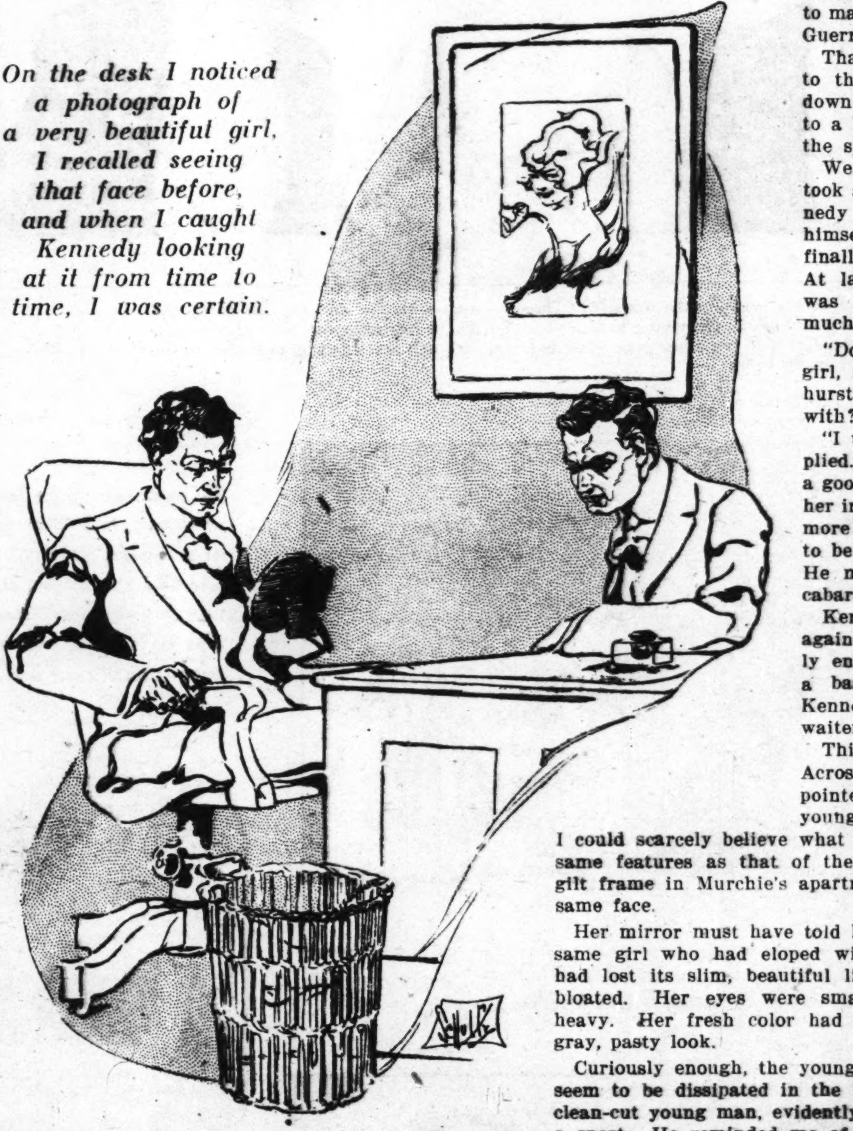
"Yes, we thinks so," assented McGee.

"It seems strange," ventured Kennedy, "that, with all this care, Lady Lee should not be keeping up to her record."

McGee glanced at us keenly.

"I don't understand it myself," he said. "I suppose lots of people must think it is the fault of the jockey, but I have certainly earned my salary lately with that filly. I've done the best I can, but in spite of it there's something wrong. The filly," he added, "has her regular workout and the regular feed, and yet she seems to be all tired out most of time. Even the veterinaries can't seem to find out what's the matter."

An awkward silence followed, during which both Kennedy and myself endeavored to conceal our ignorance of horses by saying nothing about them. Finally McGee rose and excused himself, saying that he would be back soon.



On the desk I noticed a photograph of a very beautiful girl. I recalled seeing that face before, and when I caught Kennedy looking at it from time to time, I was certain.

Without saying a word, Kennedy rose and opened the door which led into the stable. Across the lawn in the center we could see a man's figure rapidly retreating through the main entrance, and, somehow or other, I felt that at the sound of the opening of our door he hastened his pace.

Kennedy walked quickly around the circle of box stalls until he came again to Lady Lee. He entered the stall and looked the famous racer over carefully. I was wondering what, if anything, he expected to find, when, almost before I knew it, I saw him jab a little hypodermic needle into her neck and withdraw a few drops of blood.

Lady Lee reared and snorted, but Kennedy managed to quiet her. He returned the hypodermic, with these few drops of blood, carefully into its case again, and we made our way back to the office.

A few minutes later, the drone of Broadhurst's car told us that Murchie had returned. We resumed the talk about horses, upstairs in Murchie's own apartment, which consisted of living rooms, a library and bath. It was a luxuriously appointed place, in keeping with the tastes of its occupant. We sat down in the library.

On a little table I noticed a colored photograph in an oval gilt frame. It was a very beautiful girl. She was something over medium height, with a fine figure, golden hair and deep-blue eyes. Somehow, I recalled that I had seen that face before, and when I caught Kennedy looking at it from time to time I was certain of it.

Suddenly it flashed over me that the picture had been published in the Post. It was Cecilie Safford. I remembered having read of Murchie's escapades, one of which was his elopement with a pretty young stenographer whom he had met at the horse show a couple of years before.

I noticed that Kennedy was even more interested in Murchie's pictures, now, than in his conversation. In the place of honor, over the mantel, hung a portrait of a slender girl with dark hair and hazel eyes, with a soft, swanlike throat and neck, and a somewhat imperious manner of carrying her head.

I followed Craig's glance across the room. There, in a frame upon the wall in a corner, hung an enlargement of a group photograph. It was of a middle-aged woman, a little boy and a little girl. Then I remembered the whole story.

At the time of his elopement, Murchie had a wife living. Since then he had been divorced. Although he had promised to marry Cecilie when the divorce was obtained, he was now engaged to marry a wealthy girl, Amelie Guernsey.

That night, instead of going to the laboratory, we walked down Broadway until we came to a hotel much frequented by the sporting fraternity.

We entered the restaurant, took a seat at a table and Kennedy proceeded to ingratiate himself with the waiter, and finally, with the head waiter. At last, I saw why Kennedy was apparently wasting so much time over dinner.

"Do you happen to know that girl, Cecilie Safford, that Broadhurst's trainer, Murchie, eloped with?" he asked.

"I used to know her," he replied. "She used to come here a good deal, but you won't find her in the Broadway places any more these days: She's likely to be over on Eighth avenue." He mentioned the name of a cabaret saloon.

Kennedy paid the check and again we started out. We finally entered the place, down in a basement, and once more Kennedy began to quiz the waiter.

This time he had no trouble. Across the room, the waiter pointed to a girl, seated with a young fellow at a round table. I could scarcely believe what I saw. The face had the same features as that of the photograph in the oval gilt frame in Murchie's apartment, but it was not the same face.

Her mirror must have told her that she was not the same girl who had eloped with Murchie. Her figure had lost its slim, beautiful lines. Her features were bloated. Her eyes were smaller, and her lips were heavy. Her fresh color had disappeared. She had a gray, pasty look.

Curiously enough, the young fellow with her did not seem to be dissipated in the least. In fact, he was a clean-cut young man, evidently more of a student than a sport. He reminded me of someone I had seen before.

I was getting rather interested in an underworld cabaret, when, suddenly Kennedy grasped my arm. At the same moment, a shot was fired.

We jumped to our feet in time to see a young tough, with a slouch like that of the rubbers and grooms at Broadhurst's. The fellow who had been seated with Cecilie was struggling with him for the possession of a pistol which had been discharged harmlessly. Evidently the tough had been threatening him with it.

The waiters crowded around them and the general melee about Cecilie's table was at its height when a policeman came dashing in on the run.

The arrest of the gunman and his opponent, as well as of Cecilie as a witness, seemed imminent. Kennedy moved forward slowly nearer to the table. Instead of interfering, however, he stooped down and picked up something from the floor.

"Let's get out of this as quickly as possible, Walter," he whispered, turning to me.

When we reached the street he stopped under an arc-light, and I saw him dive into his pocket and pull out a little glass vial. He looked at it curiously.

"I saw her take it out of her pocketbook and throw it into a corner as soon as the policeman came in," he explained.

"What do you think it is? Dope?"

"Perhaps," answered Kennedy. "But it's worth studying to see what drug she is really using.

Late as it was, Craig insisted on going directly to the laboratory to plunge into work. First, he took the little hypodermic needle with which he had drawn several drops of blood from the racehorse, and emptied the contents into a test tube.

Finding that I was probably of more use at home in our apartment asleep than bothering Kennedy in the laboratory, I said good-night. But when I awoke in the morning I found that Kennedy had not been in bed at all.

It was as I expected. He had worked all night, and as I entered the laboratory I saw him engaged in checking up two series of tests which he had been making.

"Have you found anything yet?" I asked.

He pointed to a corner where he kept a couple of guinea pigs. They were sound asleep, rolled up in little fluffy balls of down. Ordinarily, in the morning, I found the little fellows very frisky.

"Yes," he said, "I think I have found something. I have injected just a drop of blood from Lady Lee into one of them, and I think he's good for a long sleep."

"But how about the other one?" I asked.

"That's what puzzles me," ruminated Kennedy. "Do you remember that bottle I picked up last night? I haven't finished the analysis of the blood or of the contents of the bottle, but they seem to contain at least some of the same substances. Among the things I find are monopotassium phosphate and sarcolactic acid, with just a trace of carbon dioxide. I injected some of the liquid from the same bottle into the other fellow, and you see what the effect is—the same in both cases."

The telephone bell rang excitedly.

"Is there a Mr. Kennedy there?" asked long distance, adding, without waiting for an answer: "Hold the wire, please."

I handed the receiver to Kennedy. The conversation was short, and as he hung up the receiver, Craig turned to me.

"It was Broadhurst at the Idlewild Hotel," he said quickly. "Today is the day of the great Interurban Handicap at Belmore Park, with stakes of $25,000. Usually they take the horse over to the track at least a week or two before the race, but as Broadhurst's stable is so near, he didn't do it—hoping he might keep a better watch over Lady Lee. But she's not better. If the horse is being tampered with, he wants to know who is doing it and how."

Kennedy paused a moment, then went over to a cabinet and took from it a bottle and a very large-sized hypodermic.

We must have been among the first on the field at Belmore Park that day. With Broadhurst, who was waiting for us, we lounged across the field in the direction of the stable. There was no doubt about it, Lady Lee was not in prime condition. It was not that there was anything markedly wrong, but to the trained observer the famous racehorse seemed to lack just a trifle of the "elan" which meant a win.

While Murchie and the jockey were talking outside to Broadhurst, Kennedy slipped into the stall to look at the racer.

"Stand over by that side of the door, Walter," he muttered. "I'll be through in just a minute. I want you to act as a cover."

Quickly he jabbed the hypodermic into the horse and pressed down the plunger.

Lady Lee reared and snorted as she had done before when he extracted the blood, and instantly Murchie and McGee were crowding past me. But the instant had been long enough for Kennedy. He had dropped the hypodermic into his pocket and was endeavoring to soothe the horse.

"I guess she's not very much used to strangers," he remarked coolly.

A few minutes later Broadhurst rejoined Kennedy and myself. He was greatly worried.

"I don't understand it," he kept repeating. "And what is worse, the news seems to have leaked out that Lady Lee isn't fit. The odds are going up."

"If you want to win this race, Mr. Broadhurst," Kennedy remarked in a low tone, "watch Lady Lee every minute from now until the start."

"What do you mean?" whispered Broadhurst hoarsely.

"I can't say yet, only watch."

While Broadhurst and Kennedy hovered about the stall on one pretext or another, watching both Murchie and McGee as they directed the rubbers and others who were preparing for the race, I watched the trainer and the jockey minutely. They certainly did nothing, at least now, to excite suspicion.

When the bell sounded the paddock call, McGee led the racer out of the stall and to the paddock. Presently the field, Lady Lee to the fore, walked past the grandstand and cantered slowly down the course to the starting post.

Meanwhile, following Broadhurst, we had already made our way over to the clubhouse inclosure.

It was not like the old days, when there was money everywhere, thousands of dollars in plain sight in the cashboxes of the bookmakers, when men rushed wildly about with handfuls of bills of large denomination and bets were made with frequent rapidity. And yet there was still a certain maelstrom of the betting ring left; but the bookmakers had to carry everything in their heads, instead of setting it down on paper. I knew the system, and knew that in spite of the apparent ease with which it seemed possible to beat it welching was almost unheard of.

The grandstand was crowded. Every eye in that sea of moving humanity seemed to be riveted on Lady Lee and her rider. It was a pretty good example of how swiftly inside news at the racetrack may become public property. Field glasses were leveled at the horse which should have been the favorite, and one could tell, by the buzz of conversation, that this race was the great event of the season. As the jockeys maneuvered for position, one could almost feel that some wonderful feats of memory were being performed by the bookmakers. The odds, during the morning, had gradually lengthened against Lady Lee.

The barrier was sprung and the flag dropped. They were off! The grandstand rose in a body.

For a moment it seemed to me that McGee had lost his nerve. He had not got away from the barrier ahead of the field. Another rider, too, had got the rail, and hence the shortest route. I wondered whether, after all, that had been the trouble all along, for nothing can win or lose a race quicker or better than those little failures of the jockey himself.

Lady Lee, I had heard it said, was one of those horses that do not require urging, but go to the front naturally. Just now, it did not seem that she was beaten but that she lacked just the power to lead the field. Did McGee figure that the horses ahead of him were setting such a fast clip that they would drop back to him before the race was over?

Cleverly, however, he avoided being pocketed, as those ahead of and beside him tried to close in and make him pull up.

Around they went until the horses looked to the naked eye like toys strung on wires. Only the tension of the crowd made one feel that this was no play; it was deadly serious sport. On they sped, watched in a lull of deathly stillness. They were coming into the stretch now!

Suddenly it seemed that by some telepathic connection both the horse and the rider caught the electric tension which swayed us in the clubhouse inclosure.

I myself was carried away by the frenzied spirit of the race. Broadhurst was leaning forward, oblivious of everything else in the world, straining his eyes through a fieldglass. Murchie was watching the race with a supercilious air, which I knew was clearly assumed.

On they came!

Lady Lee suddenly shot through the field. A mighty shout rose from the entire grandstand.

It was over in a matter of seconds. She had finished first by a half-length! She had won the classic and the rich stakes.

Pandemonium seemed to reign in the clubhouse inclosure. Broadhurst slapped Murchie over the back with a blow of congratulation that almost felled him. As for McGee, they nearly carried him off the field on their shoulders. Only Kennedy seemed to be calm. The race had been won—but had the problem been solved?

Broadhurst seemed to have forgotten all along his previous appeal to Kennedy in the unexpected joy of winning.

We paused awhile to watch the frantic crowd, and once, I recall, I caught sight of a stunning, dark-haired woman grasping Murchie's both hands in an ecstasy of joy. Instantly I recognized Amelie Guernsey.

As Kennedy and I motored back to the city alone, he was silent most of the way. Once only did he make a remark.

"The Belmore Inn," he said, as we passed a rather cheap roadhouse some distance down the track. "That's where I heard one of the rubbers say the former Mrs. Murchie was living."

That night Craig plunged back again into work in the laboratory, and I, having nothing else to do, wrote a feature story of the great race for the Post.

Kennedy made up for the rest he had lost and the strain of the day by a long sleep; but early in the morning the telephone bell rang insistently. Kennedy bounded out of bed to answer it.

"Good God, Walter," he exclaimed as he jammed down the receiver, "Murchie's been murdered!"

He gave me no time for questions as we hustled into our clothes to catch the early morning train.

"Broadhurst is at the Idlewild Hotel," Kennedy said as we left the apartment, "and I think we can make it quicker by railway than by motor."

The turfman met us at the station.

"Tell me just what happened," asked Kennedy.

"No one seems to understand just what it was," Broadhurst explained, "but, as nearly as I remember, Murchie was the lion of the Idlewild grillroom all the evening. He had 'come back.' Once, I recall, he was paged and the boy told him someone was waiting outside. He went out and returned considerably flushed and excited.

"'By George,' he said, 'a man never raises his head above the crowd but there's somebody there to take a crack at it! There must have been some crank outside, for before I could get a look in the dark I was seized. I managed to get away. I got a little scratch with a knife or a pin, though,' he said, dabbing at a cut on his neck."

"What then?" prompted Kennedy.

"None of us paid much attention to it," resumed Broadhurst, "until just as another toast was proposed to Lady Lee and someone suggested that Murchie respond to it, we turned to find him huddled up in the chair, absolutely unconscious. The house physician could find nothing wrong apparently; in fact, said it was entirely a case of heart failure. I don't think any of us would question his opinion if it had not been for Murchie's peculiar actions when he came back to the room that time."

Murchie's body had been removed to the local undertaking establishment. As Broadhurst drove up there and we entered, Kennedy seemed interested only in the little jab and a sort of swelling upon the neck of the dead man. Quickly he made a little incision beside it, and about ten or a dozen drops of what looked like blood serum oozed out on a piece of gauze which Craig held.

As we turned to leave the undertaker's a striking, dark-haired girl, with the color gone from her cheeks, hurried past us and fell on her knees beside Murchie's body. It was the woman who had congratulated him the day before, the woman of the panel—Amelie Guernsey.

I had not noticed, up to this point, another woman who was standing apart in the crowd, but now I happened to catch her eye. It was the woman whose picture with the two children hung in Murchie's apartments. Kennedy drew me back into the crowd, and there we watched the strange tragedy of the wife that was and the wife that was to have been.

Craig hurried back to the city after that, and, as we pushed our way up the ramp from the station, he looked hastily at his watch.

"Walter," he said, "I want you to locate Cecilie Safford and let me know at the laboratory the moment you find her. And perhaps it would be well to start at the police station."

At the police station she had not been, but had given an address which had proved fictitious.

As I left the place I ran into Donovan of the tenderloin squad, and put the case to him.

"Of course I could find her any time I wanted to," he said. "I knew that was a fake address."

He gave me the address and I hurried to the nearest telephone to call up Craig.

"Have Donovan bring her over here as soon as he can find her," he called back.

When I arived at the laboratory I found Kennedy engrossed in his tests.

"Have you found anything definite?" I asked anxiously.

He nodded, but would say nothing.

"I've telephoned Broadhurst," he remarked a moment later. "You remember that the former Mrs. Murchie was at Belmore Inn. I have asked him to stop and get her on the way down here in the car with McGee, and to get Amelie Guernsey at the Idlewild, too." He continued to work. "And, oh, yes," he added, "I have asked Inspector O'Connor to take up another line, too."

It was a strange gathering that assembled that forenoon. Donovan arrived soon after I did, and with him, sure enough, was Cecilie Safford. A few moments later Broadhurst's car swung up to the door, and Broadhurst entered, accompanied by Amelie Guernsey, McGee following with the former Mrs. Murchie.

Mrs. Murchie was still a handsome woman. She now carried herself with an air of assumed dignity. Amelie Guernsey had regained her color in the excitement of the ride and was, if anything, more beautiful than ever. But one could almost feel the frigidity of the atmosphere, as the three women who had played such dramatic parts in Murchie's life sat there.

The suspense was relieved when O'Connor came in. With him were the young man who had been seated with Cecilie at the table the night of the fight and also the gunman.

"The magistrate in the night court settled the case that night," informed O'Connor, under his breath, laying down two slips of paper before Kennedy, "but I have their pedigrees. That fellow's name is Ronald Mawson," he said, pointing to Cecilie's companion, then indicating the gunman, "that's Frank Giana—Frank the Wop."

I watched Mawson and Cecilie closely, but could discover nothing. They scarcely looked at each other.

McGee, however, glared at both Mawson and the gunman, though none of them said a word.

"They used to be out there as stable boys at Broadhurst's," I heard O'Connor continue, in a whisper. "I think they had a run-in—and were fired. Each says the other got him in wrong."

"When you came to my laboratory the other day, Mr. Broadhurst," Kennedy began a moment later, "you remarked that perhaps this case might be a little out of my line, but I can assure you that I have seldom had the privilege of unraveling a mystery which was so cleverly rigged and in which there are so many cross-currents of human passion."

"Then you think Lady Lee was doped?" asked Broadhurst.

"Doped?" interjected McGee quickly. "Why, Mr. Broadhurst, you remember what the veterinary said. He couldn't find any signs of heroin or any other dope they use."

"That's the devilish ingenuity of it all," shot out Kennedy suddenly, holding up a little beaker in which there was some colorless fluid. "I am merely going to show you now what can be done by the use of one of the latest discoveries of physiological chemistry."

He took a syringe and, drawing back the plunger, filled it with the liquid. With a slight jab of cocain to make the little operation absolutely painless, he injected the fluid into the livelier of our two guinea pigs.

"While you and Murchie were absent the first day that I went out to your stable, I succeeded in drawing off some of the blood of Lady Lee," Craig resumed, talking to Broadhurst. "Here in my laboratory I have studied it. Lady Lee, that day, had had no more than the ordinary amount of exercise, yet she was completely fagged."

By this time the little guinea pig had become more and more listless and was now curled up in a corner sound asleep.

"I have had to work very hurriedly this morning," Craig continued, "but it has only been covering ground over which I have already gone. I was already studying a peculiar toxin. And from the fluid I obtained from Murchie's body I have been able to calculate that a deadly dose of that same powerful poison killed him."

Kennedy plunged directly from this startling revelation into his proof.

"Perhaps you have heard of the famous German scientist, Weichardt, of Berlin," he resumed, "and his remarkable investigations into the toxin of fatigue, Scientists define fatigue as the more or less complete loss of activity. An interval of rest is usually enough to bring about their return to some degree of power. But for complete return to normal condition, a long interval may be necessary."

Kennedy went on, looking at the sleeping guinea pig rather than at us:

"Weichardt has isolated from fatigued muscles a true toxin of a chemical and physical nature, like the bacterial toxins, which, when introduced into the blood, gives rise to the phenomena of fatigue. This is the toxin of fatigue—kenotoxin.

"Further than that," continued Kennedy, "the depressing influence of these substances on what is known as striated muscle—heart muscle—is well known. The physician at the Idlewild might very well have mistaken the cause of the relaxation of Murchie's heart. For German investigators have also found that the toxin of fatigue, when injected into the circulation of a fresh animal, may not only bring on fatigue, but may even cause death—as it did finally here." Kennedy paused. "Lady Lee," he said, looking from one to the other of his audience keenly, "Lady Lee was the first victim of the fiendish cunning of this"——

"But Lady Lee won the race!"

It was McGee, the jockey. Kennedy looked at him a moment, then tapped another beaker on the table before him.

"Weichardt has also obtained, by the usual methods," he replied, "an antitoxin with the power of neutralizing the fatigue properties of the toxin. You thought Lady Lee was not friendly with strangers that morning at

"Best Designed" House That Won a First Prize

AT the recent Complete Building Exposition at the Grand Central Palace, New York City, a cozy little stone house, erected at Bryn Athyn, Pa., carried off first prize honors. It won the competition, not because it was handsome or palatial or luxuriously planned, but simply because, in addition to "combining the best design and plan," it had been completed for less than $5500. The actual cost of the Bryn Athyn house was $5360, and this included everything except the land, from foundation excavating to painting and even to electric light fixtures and sidewalks.

CONTRACTORS and architects and commuters are agreed that to build a $5500 house today when the prices of building material are soaring higher and higher, a tremendous amount of close figuring is necessary. Of course, you can build a house for $2500 or even less, providing the owner doesn't anticipate too much in the way of modern conveniences. But in the Bryn Athyn prize house a solution seems to have been found for the vexatious problems of how to build a substantial modern house with the least possible expenditure.

A glance at the accompanying plans will give an idea of how far the $5360 was made to go. Downstairs, there is a big living room 13 feet by 24 feet with a big open fireplace, hardwood trim and electric lights. The entrance hall is quite imposing and so is the 12 feet by 12 feet dining room. The kitchen and laundry are also on the ground floor. Upstairs there are four good-sized bedrooms and a bathroom. The attic probably shares the fate of most attics.

The house is substantially built of rough stone. It probably will be standing years after its brothers and cousins of frame construction have fallen into decay. The masonry work, in fact, contributed the one big item of expense.

From figures covering in detail the actual cost of building the prize-winning house it was learned that the excavating was done for $75. This represented an enormous saving as compared with ordinary charges for excavating and was due principally to the fortunate lay of the land. Stone for buliding material is easily obtainable in that section of Pennsylvania, so the entire cost of the building stone and masonry work was kept down to $2030. The timber for beams, floors and trim and carpentry work which of course, included windows and doors and setting them in, added another $2000. The roofing cost $140, plastering $145 and there was $50 for exterior woodwork, such as front and rear entrances and porches.

Stone houses have one distinct advantage over frame buildings: they require very little paint. The painter's bill for work on the prize house amounted to only $45. The plumbing cost $300, this including all fittings and materials. The heating apparatus, plus the labor of installing same, added $200 to the cost of the house. The tin work such as flashing around chimneys and gutters, cost $75. Wiring the house for electric lights added another $75 and the electric light fixtures $40. The last item for interior work was $90 for hardware, such as locks and hinges, window fasteners and weights.

And there you have an itemized list showing the cost of the prize house. Add to it $95 for outside sidewalks and the cost reaches a total of $5360.

It should be explained that nobody planned or erected this house with the idea that it was to compete for a prize. The house just happened to be built on economical lines. Then when New York's Building Exposition was projected an architectural competition was announced in which prizes were offered for the best designs and plans for houses which had actually been erected since January, 1914, for less than $5500, exclusive of lot. Seven architects, all members of the New York Chapter American Institute of Architects, acted as a jury. They went over all the plans submitted and then they inspected the houses themselves. And by their verdict the cozy little stone house at Bryn Athyn got the first prize.

Mme. Breshkovsky's Own Story

the severe rheumatism that now affects her.) The Government had allowed me $6 a month. My hut rent was 50 cents, wood $1.50, food $4. My friends at home? Yes, they sent money, too, but, of course, I sent this to my Kara friends. At long intervals one of their many letters reached me—sometimes sewed in the lining of a Buriat cap. I grew almost frantic with loneliness, and to keep my sanity I would run out on the snow shouting passionate orations, or even playing the prima donna and singing grand opera arias to the bleak landscape, which never applauded.

The seven years over, I was allowed to travel all through Siberia. I lived three years in Irkutsk, the main Siberian city, and many years besides in Tobolsk, Tiumen and other smaller towns. Here as my hardship ended I saw the sufferings of others begin. By the increasing procession from Russia I knew that our work was spreading. With hundreds of comrades I planned future work. In September, 1896, thoroughly "reformed," I secured permission to return to Russia, and three hours later I was on the train.

In speaking of her methods in spreading her propaganda among the peasants, Mme. Breshkovsky once told an interviewer:

"We put on peasant dress, to elude the police and break down the peasants' cringing distrust. I dressed in enormous bark shoes, coarse shirt and drawers, and heavy cloak. I used acid on my face and hands; I worked and ate with the peasants; I learned their speech; I traveled on foot, forging passports; I lived 'illegally.'

"By night I did my organizing. You desire a picture? A low room with mud floor and walls. Rafters just over your head, and still higher, thatch. The room was packed with men, women and children. Two big fellows sat on the high brick stove, with their dangling feet knocking occasional applause. These people had been gathered by my host, a brave fellow whom I picked out, and he in turn had chosen only those whom Siberia could not terrify. I now recalled their floggings; I pointed to those who were crippled for life; to women whose husbands died under the lash; and when I asked if men were to be forever flogged, then they would cry out so fiercely that the three or four cattle in the next room would bellow and have to be quieted. Again I would ask what chances their babies had of living, and in reply some peasant woman would tell how her baby had died the winter before. Why? I asked. Because they had only the most wretched strips of land. To be free and live the people must own the land! From my cloak I would bring a book of fables written to teach our principles and stir the love of freedom. And then far into the night, the firelight showed a circle of great, broad faces and dilated eyes, staring with all the reverence every peasant has for that mysterious thing—a book.

"These books, twice as effective as oral work, were printed in secrecy at heavy expense. But many of us had libraries, jewels, costly gowns and furs to sell; and new recruits kept adding to our fund. We had no personal expenses.

"Often, betrayed by some peasant spy, I left a village quickly, before completing my work. Then the hut group was left to meet under a peasant who could read aloud those wonderful fables. So they dreamed, until a few weeks later another leader in disguise came to them.

"In that year of 1874, over 2000 educated people traveled among the peasants. Weary work, you say. Yes, when the peasants were slow and dull, and the spirit of freedom seemed an illusion. But when that spirit grew real, one felt far from weary. Then, too, we had occasional grippings of hands with comrades. We could always encourage each other, for all had found the peasants eager; to own the land had been the dream of their fathers; their eagerness rose; and stout words of cheer were sent from one group to another. An underground system was started, a correspondence cypher was invented, the movement spread through 36 great provinces of Russia and became steadily better organized. So the People's Party was established."

The Sleepmaker

the track. She was not, when the stranger jabbed a needle into her neck and pumped an extra large dose of the antitoxin of fatigue into her just in time to neutralize, before the race, the long series of injections of fatigue toxin.'

Kennedy drew from his pocket the little bottle which he had picked up that night in the cabaret saloon.

"One word more," he said, as he held up the bottle and faced Cecilie Safford, who was now trembling like a leaf ready to fall: "If one with shattered nerves were unable to sleep, can you imagine what would be a most ideal sedative—especially if to take almost any other drug would be merely to substitute that habit for another?"

He waited a moment, then answered his own question.

"Naturally," he proceeded, "it might be, theoretically at least, a small dose of those products of fatigue by which nature herself brings on sleep. I am not going into the theory of the thing. The fact that you had such a thing is all that interests me."

I watched the girl's eyes as they were riveted on Kennedy. She seemed to be fascinated, horrified.

"This bottle contains a weak solution of the toxin of fatigue," persisted Kennedy.

I thought she would break down, but, by a mighty effort, she kept her composure and said nothing.

"Someone was trying to discredit and ruin Murchie, by making the horses he trained lose races—somebody whose life and happiness Murchie himself had already ruined.

"That person," pursued Kennedy relentlessly, "was defeated in the attempt to discredit Murchie when by my injection of the antitoxin, Lady Lee finally did win. In that person's mind, Murchie, not the horse, had won.

"The wild excitement over Murchie's vindication drove that person to desperation. There was only one more road to revenge. It was to wait until Murchie himself could be easily overpowered, when an overwhelming dose of this fatigue toxin could be shot into him—the weapon that had failed on the horses turned on himself. Besides, no one—not even the most expert physician or chemist—would ever suspect that Murchie's death was not natural."

"That—that bottle is mine—mine!" shouted a wild voice interrupting. "I took it—I used it—I"——

"Just a moment, Miss Safford," entreated Kennedy. "That person," he rapped out sharply, picking up the pedigrees O'Connor had handed him, "that person gave the toxin to a poor dope fiend as a sleeping potion in one strength, gave it to Lady Lee in still another strength, and to Murchie in its most fatal strength. It was the poor and unknown pharmacist described in this pedigree whose dream of happiness Murchie shattered when he captivated Cecile Safford—her deserted lover, Ronald Mawson."

To End Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness and head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can be successfully treated at home by an internal remedy that in many instances has effected a complete cure after all else has failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know some one who is troubled with head noises or catarrh, or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them, and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home, and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ozs. of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

The first dose should begin to relieve the distressing head noises, headache, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., while the hearing rapidly returns as the system is invigorated by the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms that show the presence of catarrhal poison, and which are often entirely overcome by this efficacious treatment. Nearly ninety per cent of all ear troubles are said to be directly caused by catarrh, therefore there must be many people whose hearing can be restored by this simple home treatment.

Every person who is troubled with head noises, catarrhal deafness, or catarrh in any form, should give this prescription a trial.

Saved His Life by Own System of Gentle Exercise

Frail in youth, tells how he regained health and achieved robust manhood after doctors had informed him he had not long to live — Studied human anatomy and perfected course in physical culture which admits no restriction on "good things to eat" :: ::

"SOON after 8, every morning, I get to my desk. At noon I partake of a hurried lunch. At 6 p. m. I stop work—not because I am tired, but to satisfy a healthy appetite—I never grow tired. I can't spare time to walk home, so invariably ride to and from the office. This has been my daily routine for several years. I don't get a bit of what people commonly call exercise, yet my muscles are as hard as steel and I am literally in perfect health.

"I have forgotten what it is to have indigestion or headaches, or feel lowspirited. My day's work is all the cocktail I need for a hearty dinner and happy evening. Full of eagerness for the next day I drop off to sleep the moment my head hits the pillow.

"I don't want anyone to envy me for being 'born with such a wonderful constitution,' for such was not the case. I used to feel depressed much of the time, and a few years ago I was what is popularly termed 'all in,' really to such an extent that I couldn't buy a dollar's worth of life insurance."

These were the assertions of Parker B. Tyler of New York, in a letter to the Post-Dispatch. In response to a request for an explanation as to how he caused such a change from an almost "down and out" physical condition, to one approximating ideal health, Mr. Parker writes:

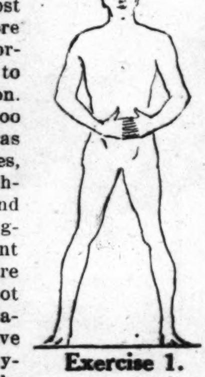
"It is true the change is wonderful—almost miraculous, I should say, considering the fact that it was brought about by myself, solely by means of a few minutes' daily attention to my body, in my own bedroom.

"I have pursued an entirely different system than most persons to restore the muscles and organs of the body to normal condition. Most methods are too strenuous, such as cross-country hikes, running, bag punching, dumbbell and Indian club swinging. Such violent forms of exercise are all wrong and do not result in any permanent good. I have a wonderful physique, which I obtained by a mild form of exercise which I have practiced for years.

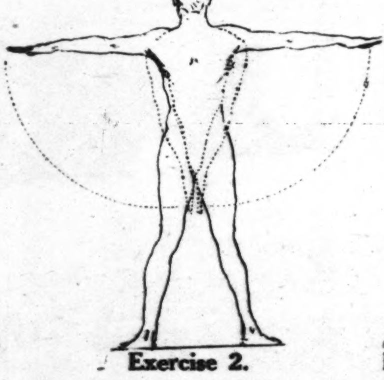
"Shortly after graduation from college physicians declared that tuberculosis would claim me as a victim within the year. I then resolved that 'Mr. Consumption' would get a tough contest for this honor. It was a case of life and death, I determined, and I realized that to win out an intelligent fight must be waged.

Parker B. Tyler and children.

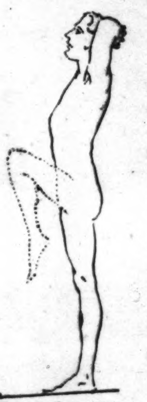
"I did not begin by dieting, for I disbelieved in starvation as a means to any good end. It is not necessary for any man to deprive himself of good things to eat, or even his cigars, beer or cocktails, provided he takes the right sort of exercise to offset irregular living. Neither did I take to swinging heavy clubs or weights or bag punching. I just sat down and made a careful study of the human anatomy and worked out a system of mild exercises to strengthen the lungs and other vital organs—strengthen them gradually and naturally. Inside of a year I was well, with a chest expansion that would have gratified a pugilist."



Exercise 1.



Exercise 2.



Exercise 3.

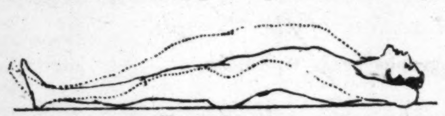
In the seclusion of his bedroom Mr. Tyler went through the following exercises twice a day, after rising and before retiring, performing each movement five to ten times:

1. First position: Stand before an open window, feet 18 inches apart, hands clasped on abdomen. First movement: Inhale slowly and with gentle pressure of the hands, draw in abdomen. Second movement: Exhale slowly through the mouth and let abdomen fall back to first position, at the same time relax pressure of the hands. Bend head forward while exhaling.

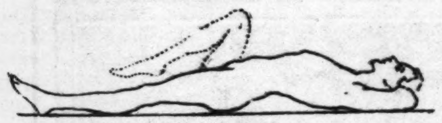
2. First position: Stand erect, feet 18 inches apart, arms out, horizontal with shoulders. First movement: Clench fists and make arms and shoulders rigid and bring arms down and backward as far as possible. Second ond movement: Open hands, relax muscles and return to first position. Exhale on downward motion and inhale as arms are brought back.

3. First position: Stand erect, heels together, hands clasped behind head. First movement: Inhale slowly, bend left knee and raise leg towards chest as far as possible, keeping toes pointed downward. Exhale slowly and go back to first position. Second movement: Exercise right leg same way.

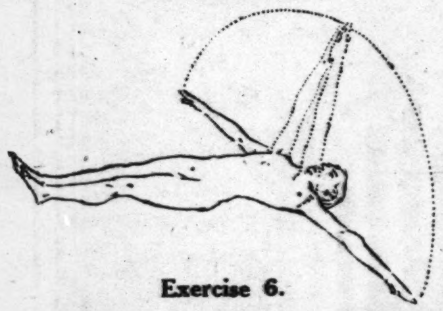
4. First position: Lie flat on back, arms folded back of head and heels together. First movement: Inhale slowly and bend or arch body upward, keeping heels and head on floor during movement. Second movement: Exhale and return to first position.



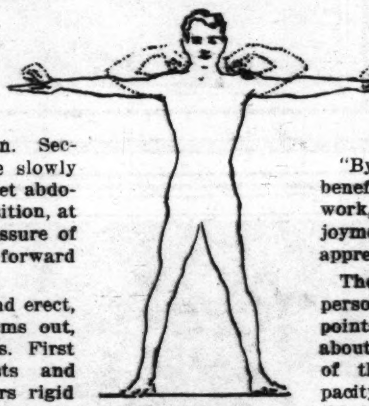
Exercise 4.



Exercise 5.



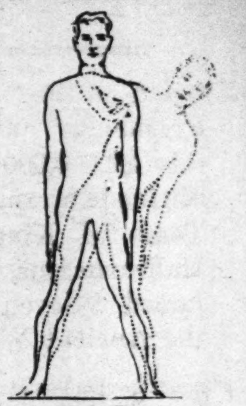
Exercise 6.



Exercise 9.

5. First position: Lie flat on back on the floor, arms folded back of head, heels together. First movement: Raise legs together, drawing knees as far as possible towards the chest. Second movement: Return legs slowly to first position. Inhale as knees are drawn forward and exhale with second movement.

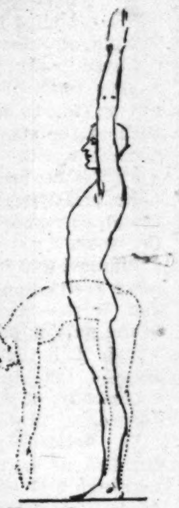
6. First position: Lie flat on back on floor, heels together, arms straight out from shoulders. First movement: Inhale slowly and deeply, keeping arms straight, then raise them straight over chest until hands meet. Second movement: Exhale slowly and return arms to first position.



Exercise 7.

7. First position: Stand erect, feet 18 inches apart, arms at side of body. First movement: Make abdomen rigid, clench left fist tightlyand bend body to right, bring left fist up under left armpit. Do not make arms rigid. Second movement: Drop left fist to side and bring right fist up under armpit, bending body to left. Breathe naturally.

8. First position: Hands above head, feet 18 inches apart, toes turned outward. First movement: Exhale slowly and bend forward as far as comfortable, hands stretched towards the floor. Do not strain to touch floor. Second movement: Inhale slowly and push abdomen out, rigid, as though to burst a belt; then return to first position. Make abdomen rigid on upward motion only; body relaxed on forward motion.



Exercise 8.

9. First position: Stand erect, feet 18 inches apart, arms out horizontally with shoulders. First movement: Clench fists, make arms and shoulders rigid and bring fists over to the shoulders. While in this position relax muscles for a moment. Second movement: Clench fists, make arms and shoulders rigid and return to first position. Relax muscles for a moment before repeating. Breathe naturally.

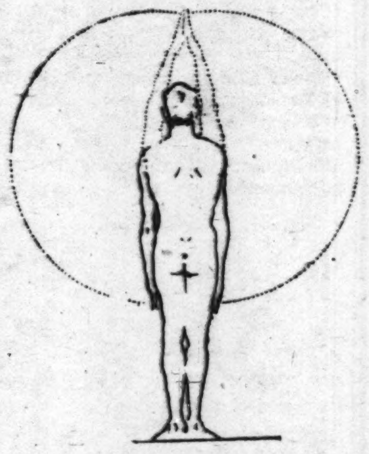
10. First position: Stand erect, hands at sides of body. First movement: Keeping arms straight and inhaling slowly, raise arms out from sides and above head until hands meet. Second movement: Keeping arms straight, and exhaling slowly, return arms to first position.

Mr. Tyler claims that these exercises will stretch the thorax, expand the lungs, massage the abdominal muscles, make the heart more vigorous, keep the arteries elastic, preventing the prevalent disease, arteriosclerosis, and at the same time will not overtax or cause strain.

"The 10 exercises set forth above will teach one control of the abdominal muscles and increase their efficiency to a marked degree in a short time," he asserted. "Any person who will follow for a few weeks these few exercises will have a better co-ordination of mind and body than they have heretofore experienced. The exercises will bring into play the strongest and largest group of muscles in the body, namely, the flexors and extensors of the thighs, muscles of the back, abdomen and shoulders.

"By constant use of these, the vital organs are greatly benefited and one is thus enabled to perform better work, both physically and mentally, besides adding enjoyment to life that must be experienced to be fully appreciated."

The average person, Mr. Tyler points out, uses about two-thirds of the lung capacity, the other third soon failing through disuse and presenting a seat for disease. Those who keep all the physical forces active first learn to breathe so as to make each cell in the lungs perform its full duty in blood purification. Persevere to get the best results.



Exercise 10.

Uncensored Diary of American Woman

Hungary, do not consider for one moment making a separate peace, which would save our skins, but sacrifice our allies. Hungarians are not Italians or Rumanians. We do not break our word."

They have a high sense of honor in Hungary. The German point of view is somewhat different. For instance, this is a part of a conversation that Billy had with a high Government official in Berlin:

"Would you, in order to make a separate peace with Russia, promise her Constantinople?"

"We might," he answered.

"Wouldn't it be rather hard to throw over the Turks?" Billy went on.

"No," said the German. "We would only have to publish full accounts of the Armenian massacres and German public opinion would become so incensed against the Turks that we could drop them as allies."

AUGUST 30.—Bill found his bathroom locked this morning when his desires were centered on a shave. He rang for the maid.

"Who is in my bathtub?" he demanded.

"The Prince," said the chambermaid.

"What Prince?" asked Billy.

"The Prince of Thurn and Taxis."

"I won't have a Prince in my bathtub," shouted Billy, and he went downstairs to make a complaint.

In a few moments the Prince was ousted.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—Have to send my diary to the Foreign Office tomorrow to be censored, and I shall not be able to write any more. All our papers have to go ahead of us to Copenhagen by the courier from the Foreign Office. We have volumes of pamphlets, all of Billy's notes, books of statistics, etc., and my own magnum opus. Yesterday I told Dr. Roediger (of the Foreign Office) that, if he cut a word out of it, I would come back and finish him with an ax. He promised that it should not be touched. I think the German Foreign Office is most obliging.

Bill has just had a second talk with Von Jagow. Food is getting scarcer. You are supposed to get only one egg a week. No more butter is served on the table, which makes breakfast rather dreary; and milk cannot be bought for children over 6 without a doctor's prescription. The city is making plans for municipal kitchens on a large scale. There were quite a number of people at lunch at the embassy yesterday.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 28.—They behaved beautifully at the frontier. It must have hurt the censor cruelly to let my dairy get by unscathed. He put crosses and exclamation points down all the margins. Billy's notes were cut to ribbons and he was in a rage. Billy has learned from the German Foreign Office that German officials received the Austrian note to Servia 14 hours before it was presented in Belgrade. This fact has been persistently denied by every German, official or unofficial that we have met.

Last night we went to a dinner that Minister Egan gave for Mr. and Mrs. Gerard. All the rules of precedence were followed. It was quite a formal affair.

The complications of life in neutral countries are great. I would not for anything be the servant who opens the door. If a French woman comes to tea and then one of the ladies belonging to the central Powers arrives, the man has to say that his mistress is not at home. A French woman and German woman got mixed up at Mrs. Totten's tea yesterday, but they were perfectly polite to each other. There are special days at the tennis clubs for the different countries. Its very amusing.

The World's Most Majestic Modern Temple

THE monumental grandeur of old Egypt, the majestic beauty of Baalbek, Greece and Rome, are embodied in the newly erected Masonic Temple of Scottish Rite at Washington, D. C. Specifically, this is a reproduction of the mighty tomb of King Mausolus of Halicarnassus (fourth century B. C.), which was the fifth of the classic "Seven Wonders" of the ancient world. John Russell Pope of New York is the architect, and to him the Architectural League has awarded its gold medal of honor for the finest building of the year.

Planned and built absolutely without monetary restrictions, the temple cost $2,000,000, and is the grandest structure of its kind in the nation, probably in the entire modern world. It is the shrine of thirty-third-degree Masons, the highest order of the great Masonic body, of which George F. Moore is the Sovereign Grand Commander.

The building is pure Greek in style, constructed of marble and bronze. It is 150 feet high and occupies nearly a whole block of ground on Sixteenth street, between Avenues R and S—a broad, stately thoroughfare of the national capital, leading directly to the White House, and hence called the "Avenue of the Presidents." All four sides of the building are harmoniously finished, and the entrance has imposing embellishment in the form of two colossal sphinxes guarding the door in the forecourt.

The interior of the temple is spacious, solemn, magnificent. Its most striking feature is the great symbolical screen of finest gold-bronze, in the form of a sunburst—the largest of the sort ever cast, and said to have cost $300,000.

The Grand Chamber is 64 feet square and 95 feet high to the top of the dome. A colonnade of 33 marble uprights, 35 feet high, surrounds an altar of solid black-and-gold marble, on a raised platform approached on all sides by black marble steps, and flanked by classic bronze incense burners. On each side of this chamber is a great window 30 feet square, with columns of dark-green granite and bronze frames. Pompeiian mural decorations cover the walls; while floods of seemingly celestial music descend from a great organ concealed in the dome.

A FAMILY TO BE PROUD OF.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rowan of Marion Ind., are the parents of fourteen children, thirteen of whom are living. The boy in the lower picture is in the United States navy. The elder Rowan served for a time in the British navy as did his father before him. Naturally the high cost of living has been a problem with the Rowans but the contentment on the faces of the parents and children indicates that the problem has been well met. What is particularly worth remarking is the fresh youthful appearance of Mrs. Rowan. Her husband is 60 years old.

Get together all the precious possessions of the family too valuable to trust to ordinary soap and water.

Dad's golf stockings—not shrunk a speck—and the color as cheerful as when new.
The big blankets on Mother's bed—Lux makes them so fleecy, so soft—white as a snow drift.
Brother's white flannels, soft and snowy white after they are washed with Lux.
The little Chap's sweater—so soft and shapely it is new all over again.
And baby's little shirt—so different from the harsh, "scratchy" shirt ordinary soap makes.

The secret of Lux success lies in the formula—wholly different from anything ever produced. Think what it would mean in your home to find something which will wash any woolens that pure water alone won't injure.
